More Import Gas

Amoco Canada Ltd. says it plans to import substantial amounts of natural gas into British Columbia in an effort to make up for some of its sharply reduced production capacity in this province.

The company, which imported 60 million cubic feet per day from the Northwest Territories, will increase this immediately to 90 million cubic feet in order to meet part of its sales commitment to Westcoast Transmission.

In addition, Amoco is speeding up work on a new well in the Northwest Territories that could push this total to 120 million cubic feet.

The company also has a Yukon well it is trying to get into production to supply British Columbia.

Ironically, while B.C. is scurrying for imports, it is exporting to the United States at the rate of 900 million cubic feet per day.

Production problems encountered by Amoco in its Beaver River gas field in northern British Columbia will result in a shortage at peak demand periods this winter.

No homes will be affected, as industry will be expected

BUMPER GIFT of 800 pounds of salmon was given to Greater Victoria Silver Threads Service members Sunday by the Victoria branch of the Pacific Trollers Association. Another 300 pounds were sent to a Kamloops children's hospital. A PTA spokesman said it is hoped to make it an annual end-of-season event with "a couple of tons" being given away in 1974. IMF Hits Famine First

NAIROBI — The western nations today gave the twin crises of hunger and inflation priority over world monetary reform at the first meeting of their five-day annual session.

The meeting brought together 3,500 delegates from 126 International Monetary Fund member nations — the biggest financial session in history.

It opened to the beat of African drums, the cry of Kenyan dancers and a warning from Kenyan president Jomo Kenyatta that "the world cannot continue on its present course" without disaster.

Monetary reform had been expected to take up most of the five-day meeting. But an agreement Sunday by major industrial nations to produce a reform package within 10 months settled that matter and left the forum open for other matters.

"The world cannot continue on its present course," Kenyatta told delegates in the wood-paneled Kenyatta Conference Centre Hall.

"If it does, monetary and economic situations similar to those of 40 years ago would be inevitable."

While monetary matters figured prominently in this week's discussions, he said, "a more fundamental crisis facing the international community is the economic and social development of the peoples of the Third World. The whole world is watching."

World Bank president Robert S. McNamara announced a record $22 billion budget for 1974-78 to help millions of persons in underdeveloped nations who are "degraded by disease, illiteracy, malnutrition and squalor."

As he spoke, towering Masai tribesmen, driven this year from traditional grasslands by the worst drought in recorded African history, grazed treir hungry cattle in Nairobi suburbs within view of the 32-storey conference centre.

Johannese Witteveen, the new IMF managing director, urged the non-Communist nations represented here to work together to halt the onward rush of world-wide inflation, which "could ultimately exact a price that today is only discernible.

"It should be one of our most essential tasks to bring this inflation under control," Witteveen said. He predicted that monetary reform would ease inflationary pressures, but warned that the world still might need "some form of incomes policy to act directly on prices and wages which are not determined competitively."

The original aim of the week-long IMF annual meeting was to revamp the system, which collapsed with this year's decline in the overseas value of the U.S. dollar.

Only two months ago, chances appeared bright for at least some form of agreement on monetary reform at this meeting. Finance ministers from the committee of 20 reported at the time they were near accord.

When the minister's deputies met early this month in Paris, however, they failed to close the remaining gaps, leading to pessimistic predictions about the IMF meeting.

Sunday morning, the committee of 20 met in a basement conference room in Nairobi's new Kenyatta Hall. The two-hour session produced agreement on two points — that U.S.-European differences persist on almost all aspects of reform, but the nations would pledge to resolve the conflicts within 10 months.

Conference sources said one reason the ministers agreed to the compromise was heavy criticisms at home from businessmen and the public over the slow pace of reform.

PROBE HALT SOUGHT

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Vice-President Agnew's lawyer says he will file suit this week to stop the federal investigation of Agnew's alleged involvement in a Maryland kickback scheme because of the flood of news leaks about the case.

The apparent hardening of Agnew's strategy, including formation of a defence fund, came as attention re-focused on the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal after a seven-week recess.

Agnew attorney Judah Best said, "there have been an inordinate number of disclosures that would preclude the right to a fair trial."

Junta Hunts Arms

Times News Services

SANTIAGO — The army cordoned off 10 blocks of mid-town Santiago today as it pressed a search for illegal arms and for supporters of the late President Salvador Allende.

Chief target in the area appeared to be a large block of apartments, many assigned to officials in the Allende regime.

A number of foreigners also lived there.

Along with the campaign to "exterminate Marxism," the junta is trying to reorganize the economy to curb inflation that in 12 months reached nearly 325 per cent.

Shops have begun to sell essential items at prices set by the government.

Junta member Gen. Gustavo Leigh said "The doors will be opened to foreign capital seeking a place in Chile."

Foreign investors would be guaranteed against expropriation, he said, but indicated there would be no rollback of Allende's nationalization of the copper mines and other major United States investments.

The junta, in denying a report by an American couple, said that it had not executed "even one person" in the national stadium where thousands rounded up in the hunt

U.S. Sets Hike In Gas Prices

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon told the Cost of Living Council today to act this week to increase the retail price of gasoline.

Acting as some service stations closed down to protest pricing policies, the president got assurances from Cost of Living Council Director John Dunlop that the panel would try to speed up action on the issue.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said the council had already concluded that an increase in retail gasoline prices was needed and had been following a timetable that would have placed the increase into effect Oct. 2.

Thousands of gas stations have been closed for the last three days in California and about 75 per cent of the stations in Indianapolis closed today.

In Bremerton, Wash., a spokesman for Olympic Peninsula gasoline dealers said a continuing protest closure was 98 per cent effective Sunday despite reports of oil company efforts to maintain supplies for consumers.

Tom Logudice, chairman of the Olympia Peninsula gasoline dealers group, said only eight stations between Purdy and Poulsbo — a 65-mile stretch — were open. He said about 175 stations were closed.

But, he said, his group was trying to confirm reports that two major oil companies, Standard and Union Oil, were offering dealers unlimited quantities of gasoline if they remained open.

Half-Way Houses Stressed

OTTAWA (UPI) — A special task force urged the government in a report, made public today, to assist in development of more half way houses across Canada as an alternative to prisons.

The task force, headed by W. R. Outerbridge, of the University of Ottawa's criminology department, was formed in 1972 by solicitor-general's department.

Its 85-page report identified 156 community-based residential centres in existence across Canada in 1972. While all accepted released prison inmates, only 52 were half-way houses in the traditional sense.

The report said the centres appeared to represent "an alternative to correctional forms of incarceration whose potential has only begun to be realized."

While stressing that the centres had risen as a response to "perceived need," the report said they survived "in the face of considerable difficulty."

Chrysler Lines Rolling

DETROIT (UPI) — The assembly lines at Chrysler Corp. plants in Canada and the U.S. began to roll again today as the shortest national strike in the history of the United Auto Workers came to an end.

The nine-day strike against the smallest of the "big three" automakers officially ended Sunday when the UAW announced that its rank-and-file membership overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract.

With 38 out of 42 Chrysler production and maintenance locals counted, the vote was 103,907 in favor of the new pact and 16,260 opposed.

First Bomb Death

Times News Services

LONDON — A British army explosives expert died Sunday in a Birmingham hospital from injuries suffered a week ago when a bomb exploded while he was attempting to defuse it.

It was the first fatality as a result of the wave of terrorist attacks in England since Aug. 18. At least 30 people have been injured by bombs, letter bombs and incendiaries. Scotland Yard blames the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing.

The dead officer was Capt. Ronald Wilkinson, who underwent a five-hour operation after the explosion Sept. 17 in the Edgbaston district of Birmingham.

In Northern Ireland, a bomb blast shattered a pub Sunday night in a small town south of Belfast. Detectives questioned two young women captured in a gun battle between an army patrol and a squad of militants in the capital.

A police spokesman said the bomb badly damaged the White Horse Inn in Ballynahinch. He said there were no injuries because the pub was evacuated in time after a man telephoned a warning.

HAKODATE, Japan (AP) — Flooding and landslides touched off by a day of heavy rain have killed at least seven persons and left 10 missing in northern Japan.

Blast Kills 2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two men were killed today when an explosion erupted at an east-end shop for repair of gasoline tank trucks. A third man was injured.

Golda to Run

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir Sunday accepted her party's nomination to run in next month's general elections and predicted a tough fight against demands for concessions in the Middle East dispute.

Lights Go Out

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) — The threat of an electric power shortage in the Pacific Northwest is so strong that Oregon Gov. Tom McCall Sunday ordered all outdoor lighting not needed for security purposes to be turned off starting tonight. Western governors were also told at their annual conference that plans for mandatory cuts in electric usage of up to 25 per cent should be ready by Nov. 1.

Eighth on List

NAIROBI (CP) — Canadian foreign aid this year will be eighth in the list of 16 countries providing the bulk of development assistance and will still be eighth by 1976, say figures provided today by the World Bank.

Women to Protest

EDMONTON (CP) — A series of demonstrations will be held across Canada Oct. 22 to support women facing eviction from Indian reserves, Jenny Margetts of Edmonton, co-chairman of a local women's rights group, said Sunday.

Girl Vanishes

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Detectives are investigating the disappearance from a luxury liner on the high seas of an attractive 19-year-old girl stowaway. Michele Kirkwood from South Africa. She vanished on the Rotherwick Castle between Capetown and Southampton. Police are holding a 17-year-old engineroom crew member for questioning.

Winds Fan Flames

PALERMO (AP) — Fires raged on the western tip of Sicily today, spurred on by 50-mile-an-hour winds. Three firemen were sent to hospital, one in critical condition.

MORE UFO SIGHTINGS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — An unidentified flying object blinked its spotlights twice Sunday night, then disappeared into the darkness with a whirring noise, according to Shelby County sheriff's deputy P. L. Pilalas.

"If I was a drinker," the deputy said, shaking his head, "I could understand it, but I'm not."

At least three other UFO sightings were reported in the Memphis area late Sunday night and early today.

Skylab Clean-Up Begins

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The Skylab 2 astronauts performed clean-up chores in their space station today to prepare for Tuesday's end of their record 59½-day orbital journey.

Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma planned to spend all of their last full day in space tidying the craft for the eight-week visit by the Skylab 3 crew starting Nov. 11.

Included is the transfer of film, tapes and equipment from the space laboratory into the Apollo ferry ship and the shutting down of systems not needed during the nearly seven weeks the station will be unmanned.

Meanwhile, a top Russian space official said Sunday the Soviet Union will attempt a soft landing of an unmanned spacecraft on Mars next March.

Roald Sagdeyev, director of the Space Research Institute, said at least one of four unmanned spacecraft now speeding toward the red planet will make the attempt.

Viet Flare-Ups

SAIGON (UPI) — The Indochina war flared into fierce combat on all three fronts today. A South Vietnamese ranger station was believed overrun, and new fighting broke out in Laos and Cambodia.

A battalion of between 300 and 400 South Vietnamese rangers, former Montagnard mercenaries for the U.S. Green Berets, lost radio contact with headquarters while under heavy Communist assault, military spokesmen said.

In Laos, North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops attacked at least three government positions in the first reported violations of the Laotian truce signed 10 days ago. The defence ministry spokesmen said the Communists attacked the hill-top headquarters of Maj. Gen. Vang Pao, whose private army has long been financed, trained and paid by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and another base nearby.

About 400 other pro-Communist troops overran a government outpost only eight miles southeast of Luang Prabang, the royal capital 180 miles northwest of Vientiane.

In Cambodia, insurgent gunners ambushed a supply convoy on the Mekong River, setting afire one of three freighters. The other eight ships in the convoy steamed through the ambush unharmed, shipping sources in Phnom Penh said.

True Peace: Kissinger

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the United States "seeks true peace, not simply an armistice," and called upon all members of the United Nations to abandon their bickering and join in a co-operative effort for a more harmonious world.

Kissinger made his maiden address to the U.N. General Assembly almost exactly 48 hours after being sworn into office.

His speech was a broad philosophical outline of "the spirit of U.S. foreign policy" in which he pledged U.S. efforts and influence in settling such regional issues as the Middle East and Southeast Asia, but he made no specific pledges beyond promising that the United States would not abandon its traditional allies in carrying out its policy of detente with the Soviet Union and China.

He acknowledged that the U.S. people and government "have sometimes been disappointed because this organization has not been more successful in translating the hopes for universal peace of its architects into concrete accomplishments."

Hunt Fingers Colson 'Plot'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt testified today that the White House, trying to win the Catholic vote for President Nixon in 1972, tried to prove falsely that the Kennedy administration had plotted the 1963 assassination of South Vietnamese President Diem.

Hunt, first witness as the Senate Watergate hearings resumed after a seven-week recess, said he had been "directed" by Charles Colson, then a special counsel to Nixon, to concoct phony state department cables to implicate Kennedy in the deaths of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu and then leak them to reporters.

"I believe it was desired by Mr. Colson, or at least some of his colleagues, to establish that a Catholic U.S. administration had conspired in the assassination of a Catholic chief of state of another country," Hunt testified.

The implication was that Catholic voters would vote for Nixon when they learned that Kennedy, a Democrat, had been implicated in the assassination.

Hunt, one of the original Watergate Seven who pleaded guilty in January to conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters here last June said he believed he had been acting as a secret government agent when he broke into the Democrat offices and when he participated in the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

He said in the aftermath he felt "crushed by the failure of my government to protect me and my family, as in the past it has always done for clandestine agents."

As part of his clandestine work, Hunt said, Colson asked him to review secret government communications in the weeks leading up to the 1963 coup in which Diem and Nhu were killed.

He said he found gaps in the records but nonetheless felt there was "every reason to believe . . . that the Kennedy administration was implicitly if not explicitly responsible" for their deaths.

Italian Cholera Arrests

NAPLES (UPI) — Authorities fighting a lingering cholera outbreak arrested four owners of food packaging plants today on charges of polluting public lands and waters with noxious wastes.

The arrests came as health officials resumed a second round of anti-cholera vaccinations in the province which recorded 15 of Italy's 23 cholera deaths since last month.

In the city of Naples, street vendors crowded into the most densely-populated areas to sell fruit and vegetables, ignoring a ban on such sales.

Residents of the areas around the port of Naples filed protests today about an infestation of large rats in their sewers. Elsewhere in the city there were complaints of sand in the drinking water.

PERON

PERON VICTORY CELEBRATED

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Thousands of Argentinians danced, sang and shouted in the streets of Buenos Aires early today, celebrating the election of 77-year-old Gen. Juan Peron to the presidency from which the military ousted him 18 years ago.

Unofficial returns from Sunday's election gave Peron 7,286,034 votes, or 61.68 per cent in 54,777 of the country's 55,475 election districts.

Ricardo Balbin of the Radical Civic Union ran second with 2,887,587, or 24.44 per cent; Francisco Manrique had 1,440,049, or 12.19 per cent; and Juan Carlos Coral of the Socialist Workers' party had 187,002, or 1.58 per cent.

The outcome had never been in doubt; the only question was how big the winning margin would be.

Peron's third wife, Isabel Martinez ran with him. When she takes office with her husband Oct. 12, she will become the Western hemisphere's first woman vice-president. Because of Peron's age and uncertain health, she might succeed him as president.

Objection to Union Opt-Out Bill Nonsense, Says Christian Labor

The B.C. Federation of Labor was accused today of over-reacting to expected new labor legislation allowing people to opt out of union membership on religious conscientious objection grounds.

"To make a fuss of this is nonsense," said Neil J. Roos of Coquitlam, western Canada representative of the Christian Labor Association of Canada.

He said he would be surprised if more than 500 people in B.C. took advantage of such a legislative provision, which New Democrat Party governments have introduced in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

"Union people will not leave unions en masse. It's a false fear," he said.

The Christian Labor Association has described itself as being concerned "first and foremost" with the revival and implementation of "the fundamental motifs of the Christian faith as these pertain to the economic sector."

Roos said the group has no official tie with any religious denomination. According to the federal labor department, CLAC had 2,693 members in 63 locals, including 18 locals in B.C., in 1972.

The 200,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor is holding a special meeting in Vancouver today to "discuss the threat to the union shop posed by the proposed new labor legislation." Although no details have been revealed, the government's throne speech did say it will "recognize the sanctity of individual religious beliefs."

The union shop, a feature of some contracts, requires that all employees in a bargaining unit must be union members as a condition of employment.

Roos wondered why unions "get so excited" about religious conscientious objection when the "union movement has prided itself on being humanitarian and democratic and pushing civil liberties."

He said legislative provision for religious conscientious objection is only a minimum and what CLAC wants is "true freedom of association. We believe in the open shop." But the government's indicated move was regarded by him as a first step.

Asked what religions have an objection to mandatory trade union membership, Roos said he has come across Jehovah Witnesses, the Christian Reformed Church and some Pentecostal groups.

"There is a growing awareness among Christians that this must be a commitment in lifestyle and be a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week thing and they are becoming more critical of the brands of trade unions they are confronted with," he said.

Asked if trade unions weren't really non-denominational, Roos said people will act according to their beliefs "and I don't think you can say unions are neutral. People decide what is fair and honest and just from the principles they believe in. We don't believe you can take a neutral position."

(A similar, but opposite, view was taken by one speaker at the Vancouver and District Labor Council last week, which voted to oppose the indicated legislation. He said "the way we look at it, anyone who doesn't join the union is anti-union."

JUNTA HUNTS ARMS

for Allende supporters have been held.

The Americans, Patricia and Adam Garrett-Schesch, are graduate students at the University of Wisconsin and were held for a week in the stadium.

They arrived in Miami, Fla., during the weekend and said they witnessed the execution of 400 to 500 persons while they were prisoners.

At a Washington news conference today, Garrett-Schesh, 31, said the first interrogating officer to question him "beat me with his fists and kicked me several times with his army boots."

While they were confined, his wife Pat said she saw two men, including a friend arrested with them, led out of the field.

"I heard the people sing the Internationale (the Communist anthem) and then the shooting began," she said.

"The singing slowly faded, fewer and fewer voices were singing and then it stopped."

"We are firmly convinced that these people were executed," her husband added.

Canadian embassy officials said today they intend to "camp" at the stadium until three Canadians are released.

In Ottawa, the external affairs department identified the three Canadians as Robert Everton of Vancouver and Michel Baubien and William Patterson, for whom hometowns were not known.

"Whatever happens to the rest I can't say, but these people should be safe," he added.

Dolgin said he was told Friday that the three Canadians were to be released Saturday but when he went to the stadium, he was told the Canadians would not be released until today.

Over 200 foreign correspondents and cameramen raced across the stadium playing field Sunday to gape at prisoners baking in the sun in the bleachers under the guard of heavily-armed soldiers at the invitation of the junta.

Many in the guarded area were young. Some of the Latin American correspondents recognized Uruguayans or Brazilians and Bolivians who were living in Chile as political refugees from military regimes in their countries.

to find alternate fuel sources to make up for cutbacks.

The shortage was announced as being 10 per cent of the provincial supply, but it is actually in excess of 12 per cent.

The Beaver River wells were producing 240 million feet per day but is reduced to 60 million feet daily, because of water incursion.

The 240 million cubic feet represented 16 per cent of the provincial supply of natural gas. The field at 60 million cubic feet will be producing only four per cent of the B.C. supply.

Imports from Northwest Territories are already being increased to 90 million cubic feet per day.

The company is not certain how soon it can bring its new well into production.

Because of the urgency, the company is rushing through with the project but they are experiencing severe weather problems.

Supplies that have to be brought in include an oil rig and pipeline.

It might be spring before they are able to set up the rig and complete a feeder pipeline of one mile to their main line.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

GAS FIGHT LATER

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government does not plan to push hard right now to acquire the surface rights to the natural gas-rich Suffield block from Ottawa but discussions could begin next year, Don Getty, minister of federal and intergovernmental affairs, said today.

Getty said in an interview that the province plans to complete its 77-well exploratory drilling program at Suffield this year to determine the extent of natural gas reserves under the 1,000-square-mile soueastern Alberta block before pushing for production activity.

Natural gas has been found by all 27 wells in the first stage of the evaluation program this summer.

Getty said it is too soon to say whether reserves are more or less than estimated — four trillion cubic feet worth $1.6 billion.

The province holds the rights to the natural gas under the Suffield block but the federal government controls the surface rights and Ottawa has an agreement with the British Army to allow it to use the area for military exercises.

Big Sask. Outage

WEYBURN (CP) — Several southern Saskatchewan centres including Weyburn were without power for five hours Sunday. A break in the line between Weyburn and Estevan triggered a reaction in the Boundary Dam power plant and resulted in the outage, from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m.

11 Chinese Intercepted

NEW YORK (CP) — The capture of two Canadians smuggling 11 Chinese aliens into the United States at a Canada-U.S. border point was announced today by immigration authorities.

Officials said two Montrealers and the Chinese were arrested at 3 a.m. Sunday in a van-type truck on a back-country road which crosses the border a few miles east of Highgate Springs, Vt.

Edward J. Wildblood, deputy regional director for immigration operations at Burlington, Vt., identified the Canadians as Jean Claude St. Pierre, 31, and Roger Mercier, 33, both of Montreal, and said they have been charged with smuggling aliens into the United States.

The Chinese were charged with entering the U.S. illegally.

In State Home —For 98 Years

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Martha Nelson celebrated her 102nd birthday last June in the place she has called home for the last 98 years — a state home for the mentally retarded. She was admitted in 1875.

Dr. A. Z. Soforenko, appointed two months ago as superintendent of the Orient State institute near here, said today "she never had a chance."

She was originally admitted to the Columbus State institute for the feeble minded and later transferred to Orient. Her records were destroyed in a fire in 1883 and no one knows why she was admitted.

Soforenko said he knew of the year she was admitted by "word of mouth" passed on by officials throughout the last century.

He said Miss Nelson was probably a victim of what was known as "eugenic alarm" which was quite prevalent at the turn of the century.

"During that time it was believed if you moved feebleminded people out of the community and into an institution it (feeblemindedness) would never return to the community," he said. "She apparently was trapped in that system. It is a wasted life.

"She is quite coherent for her age," said Soforenko. "She has no relatives and has had no contact with anybody for the last 78 to 80 years."

He did not say exactly what the legal arguments would be, but indicated that the leaks violated Agnew's constitutional rights.

The Washington Post Sunday reported that the papers have already been drawn up but will probably not be filed before Wednesday.

Presidential adviser Melvin Laird, meanwhile, said news stories that he had been the source of reports that Agnew was going to resign were "false."

He refused to comment on last Thursday's meeting between Agnew and President Nixon, calling it "a serious matter, and one that should not be discussed by the White House staff."

Meanwhile, Nixon's popularity slipped by three points during the last three weeks, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

Gallup reported Sunday 55 per cent of the American public disapprove of the president's performance in office.

According to Gallup, 72 per cent of the American people now believe that Nixon himself either planned the Watergate bugging, knew about the plan in advance, or tried to cover up the scandal.

Imports Eyed

FAIRLEE, Vt. (AP) — An oil company executive said Saturday that United States refineries are incapable of meeting the rise in demand for home heating oil this winter and the U.S. will have to rely on a significant increase in imports to get through the winter.

Indian Claims Italy

ROME (AP) — Lucky Eagle, in his American Indian outfit as chief of the Chippewa tribe alighted from a jumbo jet at Rome's airport, set foot on Italian soil, rested his spear on the tarmac and said:

"In the name of the Indian people I claim the right of discovery and take possession of this land. I proclaim Sept. 24 the Discovery of Italy Day."

Lucky Eagle—Adam Nordwall, 43, a professor at the University of California—was reciprocating what Christopher Columbus did in 1492. With an Italian policeman standing at his side, he told reporters his "discovery and conquest" was peaceful.

Nordwall, a leader in the American Indian Movement, said his "discovery and possession-taking of Italy's was basically similar to Columbus' discovery of America and the ensuing claim to American lands by European governments.

"What right did he have to discover a land which had been inhabited by the Indians for tens of thousands of years?" he asked. "The same right I have to come to Italy now and proclaim the discovery of this country. As far as I know Italy has never been discovered. What an awful thing for a country to have never been discovered!"

Eaten by Fish

QUEDAS DO IGUAZU, Brazil (AP) — Officials fear that many of the persons who died when a riverboat sank Thursday may have been eaten by Piranha, the voracious fresh water fish. The riverboat reportedly sank due to excess weight. At least 120 persons were said to be aboard.

Indians Eye Loans

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Indian Association says it wants to set up a co-operative trust company to enable Indians to make their own financial decisions.

The announcement was made by Kipawa chief Mike MacKenzie at a weekend meeting of the association in nearby Chateauguay.

MacKenzie, an association director, said a committee of four Indian chiefs and four businessmen has been set up to study the proposed Indian Trust Co.

He said establishment of the trust company would permit reserve Indians to obtain loans — which they are currently unable to do. Interest rates would be lower than those offered by finance companies.

Reserve Indians are unable to obtain loans since they have no collateral to offer. Land and houses on a reserve belong to the tribe, not the individual, and cannot be used as guarantee for financial transactions.

MacKenzie said the Quebec government seems to regard the project favorably.

the weather

The last in the series of Pacific disturbances has skimmed southeast along the outer B.C. coast giving some light rain to the West Coast of Vancouver Island during the night. The main rain areas associated with this disturbance has moved onto the Washington-Oregon coast. A drying trend will occur along the B.C. coast today as a ridge of high pressure approaches. Cool moist air over the interior will give rise to a few showers today with a clearing trend expected tonight. Sunny weather is promised for most of B.C. on Tuesday, though a storm moving into the Gulf of Alaska will likely spread clouds onto the north coast late Tuesday.

Farm Bills Today

Some of the major agriculture legislation promised for this session by the NDP government will be introduced in the house today by Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich.

Stupich is to introduce a bill called the Beef Grading Act today and is also expected to bring in at least one message bill, the nature of which is not known until it is before the house. A message bill involves the expenditure of money.

The government, in the throne speech, has promised significant legislation to improve the economic position of the province's farmers this session. Stupich has said there could be as many as 15 or 20 separate pieces of legislation introduced.

Four bills, mainly of a minor nature, have already been introduced in the agriculture area this session.

Meeting Sought Over Fish Weir

A Vancouver fisheries official said today the department is trying to arrange a meeting with a protest group of young Indians who are using what they've been told is an illegal weir on the Cowichan River near Duncan to catch salmon.

"We're still discussing it," he said. "Things are still up in the air. We're attempting to get a meeting arranged.

"It's a very tight situation. We don't want to force an extremely bad situation."

The weir, which neither the fisheries department nor the Cowichan band council supports, was built three weeks ago.

The demonstrators, led by Gordon Elliott, 29, of the Quamichan Reserve near Duncan, say band members are not able to catch enough salmon to feed their families if they abide by current regulations.

They are demanding the right to catch salmon by any means, including the old-time weirs, in order to meet family needs while ensuring sufficient salmon escape to provide future runs.

The weir they've built is a fence-like structure across two-thirds of the river about a mile above its mouth on the Kosilah Reserve.

Major Pay Increases Sought by Nurses

Negotiations have begun in Vancouver between the B.C. Hospitals' Association and the two major employee groups in the province.

The Hospital Employees Union Union (HEU), with 10,000 members covering a wide variety of occupations, announced it is seeking pay raises across the board of $1 an hour or 25 per cent, whichever is greater; a 36-hour week based on an eight-hour, five-day week with four hours being "banked" to the employee's credit; and additional raises to bring about equal pay.

The Registered Nurses Association of B.C. (RNABC), with 4,500 members working in hospitals, declined to say what its proposals are but it is known the union is seeking a substantial pay raise.

Their contracts expire at the end of December.

Asked about rumors that registered nurses are seeking a starting scale 35 per cent above the top practical nurse scale under the HEU contract, Duncan Bradford, executive secretary of the B.C. Hospitals Association, said "I am sure they are looking for a re-alignment of their position with practical nurses. It is something that is concerning them."

Mrs. Claire Marcus, director of communication services for RNABC, said her union's policy is not to discuss proposals while negotiations are in progress.

"I don't know if that is correct," she said of the 35 per cent rumors.

Practical nurses have been successful this year in winning equal pay with orderlies, providing a top scale of $70 a month. This compares with a starting salary of $685 a month for registered nurses beginning work after three years in training.

If rumors of a 35 per cest differential are true, registered nurses would want a starting scale of $956 a month, well above the present top rate and $271 above present starting scale, or a beginning raise of almost 40 per cent.

'Rich World' Killed Allende

VANCOUVER (CP) — A London-based cybernetics consultant who worked for two years with Chilean president Salvador Allende said Sunday the rich world is partly to blame for the violent overthrow of Allende's Marxist government.

"It is a case of the rich world bringing down a poor country," Stafford Beer said in an interview before boarding a plane for Toronto. Beer was going to Toronto to deliver this year's Massey lectures for CBC television and was here to lecture at the University of British Columbia.

Beer spent two years commuting between London and Santiago in his role as a cybernetics consultant and last saw Allende July 26, six weeks before his death when the Chilean military forces seized power.

"I admired the man enormously," he said. "He had tremendous dignity and he was fiercely protective of Chile's democratic tradition. He would never do anything outside the law."

Commenting on Allende's death on Sept. 11, reported a suicide by the junta's leaders, Beer recalled the president's pride in his country's democracy and his words: "They will drag me out of the presidential palace only in wooden pajamas."

Without naming specific countries Beer said "as soon as Allende was elected the rich world cut off supplies — except for armaments — and then they cut off his credit."

He noted that Allende increased his share of the vote by seven per cent in March of this year and said the world's press had played down the embattled leader's popularity.

He said the coup was not unexpected.

"Everybody knew it was likely to come. But I don't expect it to be so violent and so rightists."

"In Chile the army has always been a benevolent force but the reaction has been so violent that I don't know if my friends are dead or alive," he said.

Beer was approached by the Chilean government two years ago to help develop new systems for managing the economy. Cybernetics is the seience of effective organization.

SHEARED HYDRANT SENDS UP GEYSER

A 17-year-old Saanich youth is in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with internal injuries suffered in a car accident Sunday at Ferndale and Pauls Terrace.

Ralph Muller, 1635 Spilsbury, was passenger in a car driven east on Ferndale by Robert Doyle, 3897 Panther, when it left the road and hit a mailbox.

Doyle and another passenger, David Marks, also 17, were treated for minor injuries and released.

In another traffic mishap Saturday night a 16-year-old motorist sheered off a fire hydrant at Lampson and Ellery sending water more than 20 feet into the air.

Esquimalt police said the youth was travelling south on Lampson when the vehicle went out of control and hit the hydrant causing some flooded basements in the vicinity. City water works employees stopped the hydrant geyser a short time later, police said.

The driver's name was not released.

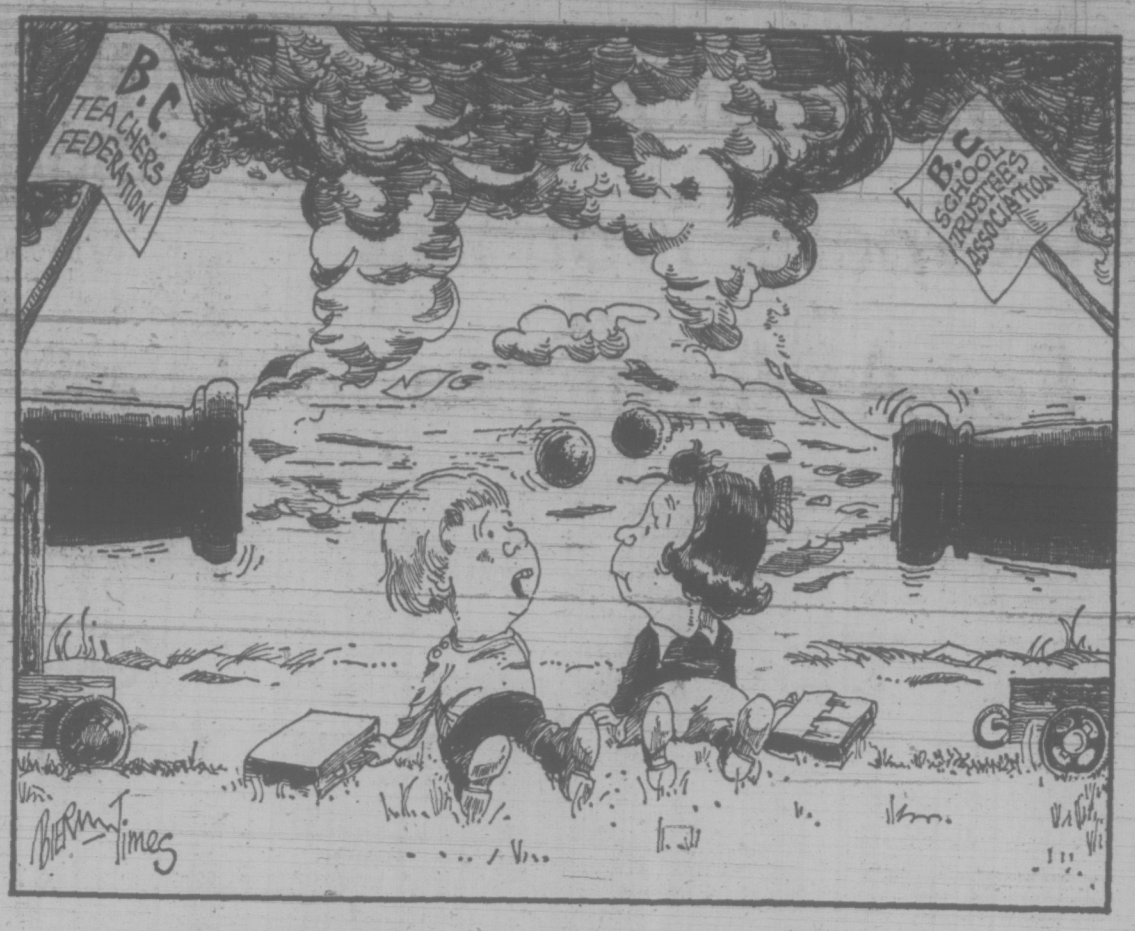
Deep Thinking Ahead for Tories

With the resignation of party leader Derril Warren Friday the provincial Progressive Conservative party is back to square one. When Mr. Warren became the leader in November 1971 the Tories had no sitting members in the legislature and could count on little support at the polls. It would be too much to say the 34-year-old lawyer revived the party single-handedly, but he did give it a focus in the public eye which resulted in the election of two members in last August's provincial election.

Mr. Warren had all the qualities any party could ask for in a leader except one: he could not get elected despite strong campaigns in North Vancouver last year, and again this year in the South Okanagan byelection. He has often stated that a party leader must have a seat in the house — a consideration that prompted his resignation. Meanwhile, Mr. Warren has left the door open by saying he might be a candidate for the party leadership again when the Conservatives hold a general meeting November 30.

While the logic of resigning in order to run again is curious, the former leader may be forced into the position because of no other serious candidates. Of the two sitting Tory members, only Oak Bay's Dr. Scott Wallace has indicated he might consider running for the leadership. Saanich and The Islands MLA Hugh Curtis has said it was very unlikely he would throw his hat in the ring. That leaves Dr. Wallace and Mr. Warren. Perhaps other candidates will emerge from the Conservative woodwork — including provincial Conservative President Peter Hyndman who was also defeated last August in West Vancouver. But the Warren-Wallace team is the only Tory combination which indicates interest in running, and at the same time is well known to the public.

The provincial Conservatives have come a long way since Mr. Warren took the helm but they have an even longer way to go. Besides the resignation of their leader, Mr. Hyndman's trial balloons on a free enterprise coalition were firmly rejected by the Social Credit and Liberal parties. Whoever the new leader may be, it is obvious he will have to do some deep thinking to maintain the party's foothold and prevent it from slipping back into political limbo where it remained so many years.



"... don't be scared, Jane ... they have no intention of hurting us ..."

Hesitation in High Places

Successive federal governments have encountered financial and political peril when they have become entangled with Canada's aircraft industry. This country produced the world's first intermediate range jetliner which ran out of funds when the Korean war erupted. Then came the Avro Arrow, considered the most advanced intercoptor of its time, yet it was cancelled by the Diefenbaker government when export sales contracts did not justify development.

Right or wrong, Canada lost a commanding lead in two specialized aviation fields because government lost its nerve. It is just possible we may lose out in a third field. Last year the federal government poured $75 million into deHavilland Aircraft's short take-off and landing program. The aircraft, the proposed DHC-7, is the key to a total Stol package, including navigation aids, engines and other materials with which Ottawa hopes to capture the international market.

But now the government has been told that it may cost as much as $200 million to get the plane into production. Without firm orders there is understandable hesitation in the department of trade and industry about proceeding. Should the government pour more money into a project that has already eaten up $75 million in public funds or should it fly into the wild blue yonder with deHavilland and hope for the best?

A U.S. Civil Aeronautics expert hired by the government as a consultant on the project believes Canada has a commanding lead in the field with its total-package concept. But it is still a $200-million gamble at a time when the government has said it is trying to curb expenditures to halt inflation. The prize is tempting, yet the thought of losing $200 million gives us sweaty palms.

The Myths Go Into Limbo

It is probably not an earth-shaking combination of circumstances but on the same day Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced it was virtually dropping out of the film business sometime starlet Eva Gabor appeared in Victoria promoting wigs. It was, however, a tacit sign of how popular North American culture has changed in the last 30 years.

The large studios that have all but disappeared used to market something called "the American dream," lavish productions showing us how the other half lived. Yet the stars of these forgettable epics can still be seen. Ann Blyth is selling instant treats on television; Jane Russell shows us the merits of certain undergarments and the Gabor sisters open shopping centres and promote other products.

With few exceptions the new stars of television and film drop out of sight with Nielson ratings or an unsuccessful flick. Independent producers and corporate conglomerates back films that purport to show a slice of life. Realism is the key in films where man's depravity and penchant for violence are depicted in graphic detail. Television has usurped the dream machine, and perhaps that explains why so many former stars are so successful selling things through this medium.

While many people decry the loss of innocence in films and entertainment generally, the change has come about only because the audiences became more cynical and worldly. It is difficult to bemoan the passing of a world that never really was, but it achieved a following and a substance which in many cases could outlive the current-day harsh reality.

MAURICE WESTERN

Minister With a Fast Draw

OTTAWA — The abrupt reversal of long-established oil policies by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald suggests that co-operative federalism is the latest victim of the inflation crisis in Canada.

Even in calmer times co-operative federalism, as then practised, was not proof against criticism. There was the objection that Ottawa appeared to do most of the co-operating. There was also complaint that the processes of consultation were extremely time consuming — in some cases involving years of negotiations before programs could be implemented, often in strangely altered forms.

Neither of these criticisms has yet been levelled at the dynamic Mr. Macdonald. According to indignant Albertans he dispensed with consultation.

The minister denies this charge. There was, he feels, a process of consultation going back to the publication in June of the federal paper, An Energy Policy For Canadians. There were talks in July of which we have been told little. Finally, there was the meeting in Ottawa with Mr. William Dickie, the Alberta mines minister, immediately before the export tax announcement and the outbreak of hostilities between Edmonton and Ottawa.

Significant Document

Evidently, the policy paper was of basic importance; a more significant document than was generally realized at the time. It was, of course, exploratory and analytical; it was intended to generate discussion by identifying problems. It did not commit the federal government to very much; at the same time it was more than a simple summation of pros and cons. Since it was designed to bring provincial responses it was so written as to give the premiers at least a general indication of federal thinking.

Some passages in the June report make fascinating reading in the new circumstances of September. For example:

"Federal and provincial responsibilities and interest in the energy fields are intimately interrelated. No national policy can be contemplated without the fullest of inter-governmental consultations and consensus. Clearly the balance of priorities between energy producer and consumer needs, regional interests, Canada's international competitive position and domestic prices for consumer goods, are among the major questions which the federal government must weight in the national interest. The process of arriving at satisfactory policies cannot be rapid or without difficulty. But resolution of these problems through bilateral and possibly multilateral discussion deserves the most sustained and determined effort."

Mr. Macdonald is noted for action, not contemplation. Obviously, there is no consensus — not one in any case, which extends to Mr. Lougheed. But there is a new policy achieved with almost lightning speed.

Such a policy, according to the thinking of June, could not be satisfactry. But Mr. Macdonald has been firm in defence of it, which suggests that the wisdom of June is obsolete in September. Co-operative federalism has gone with the summer.

The above quotation was no random reflection. Another interestng paragraph begins: "That there can be no effective set of national energy policies developed without the participation of the provincial governments is readily apparent." It concludes: "Obviously, policies developed in isolation in Ottawa hold scant hope for success."

It is important to note that the federal government, in publishing its paper, anticipated higher petroleum prices. There is the flat statement (page 66) that "crude prices are expected to escalate rapidly from today to 1985."

DONALD MACDONALD
... policy reversal

The trouble was that escalation exceeded expectations. This of course, was the reason for the sudden policy change.

Mr. Macdonald must have been aware that the paper would be read with closest attention in Alberta, since oil is of vital importance to that province. What impressions of federal policy was it intended to convey to Albertans? What conclusions could they reasonably draw from it?

There is a long discussion in the paper of the Montreal pipeline alternative, now adopted as federal policy. While the government does not slam the door on this option, the weight of the argument is quite clearly against it. Indeed, the summary of the analysis puts it this way: "Continuous assessments of security of supply are proceeding. To date, the security threat has not appeared serious enough to justify the very costly arrangements of supplying the region east of the Ottawa Valley with western Canadian crude oil."

The security argument is in fact discounted in the paper. "There are other means," we read, "which seem to offer a better balance of costs against benefits in covering off Eastern Canada's security exposure until such time as indigenous oil can be more economically introduced. These other means include augmenting the current average stock level of crude oil and refined products in Eastern Canada, a national rationing scheme which could be brought into force quickly during an emergency and a possible oil exchange arrangement with the United States."

Even more interesting, however, is a paragraph dealing with the possibility of reducing exports during times of emergency.

"As for oil, it is not clear that Canada would benefit significantly from such a step since the transportation capability is not likely to be present to deliver the interrupted exports to those areas in Canada which would be potentially short of supply. On the other hand, a program of gradual withdrawal of oil from the export market and construction of the necessary transportation facilities to become increasingly self-sufficient in terms of petroleum and its products, could be instituted, at some significant cost to the Canadian economy."

The word "gradual" was placed in italics for emphasis. From this Alberta ministers might perhaps have concluded that Ottawa was giving serious consideration to a change effected over a considerable period of time. They could scarcely have read it as a signal of change effective on October 1.

Still in the Dark

As noted, we are still in the dark about the consultation that took place in July. But we do know that the Alberta government was to have responded in October. While that response has yet to come, the new federal policy is already in place.

The contrast between Mr. Macdonald's dynamic new course and the old ways of co-operative federalism was underlined on Thursday by Premier Bourassa's triumphant announcement of Quebec's new family allowance scheme. This was made possible by very long negotiations with Ottawa in the course of which the federal government drastically revised its own plans to accommodate the province. It will be remembered that the same thing happened with the Canada Pension Plan and the Quebec Pension Plan.

Mr. Bourassa, much elated, speaks of "profitable federalism." Mr. Lougheed is not elated and has yet to discern profit for Alberta in the new course.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Drawing the Line at Sea

WASHINGTON—Henry Kissinger is probably better qualified than any other man to become American Secretary of State and, despite the lamentable political atmosphere in this country, one is justified in hoping this promise will be borne out by success.

Of course Sen. Fulbright was right when he remarked during confirmation hearings that Kissinger had in effect already been Secretary of State four years. He certainly ran Nixon's foreign policy and played a crisper intellectual role and more dynamic diplomatic role than the placid William Rogers.

Even so, it is one thing to be the top White House adviser and another thing to hold the No. 1 Cabinet position. It is even more impressive when the same man apes John Foster Dulles by holding both jobs at the same time.

Until Dulles actually moved into State he was never certain he wanted to be Secretary because that minister was "too tied up with political manoeuvres and party obligations" and it might be "much more fun" to play the part of Harry Hopkins (under Roosevelt) or Col. House (under Wilson).

Solved Quandary

He solved that quandary be being two things at once, flying about the world as a kind of proto-Kissinger and carrying in his briefcase the decision-making functions of his department and its appurtenances except for the great seal.

There isn't any problem about duality of functions for the newly appointed Secretary since the President has specifically stated that he will not relinquish his special advisory functions at the White House.

Kissinger brings twin advantages to his new office: He knows more about the theory and practice of foreign policy than any predecessor save perhaps Dulles; and he also happens to be the first Secretary of State in a quarter of a century who wasn't trained as a lawyer.

The last non-legal mind running state was that of Gen. George C. Marshall. Since his tenure, Dean Acheson and Dulles (two distinguished attorneys) and Christian Herter and Dean Rusk (both of whom had law degrees) served as Secretary, as well as the lawyer, Rogers.

In his remarkable treatise (De la Maniere de Negocier Avec les Souverains) Francois de Callieries, private secretary of King Louis XIV, wrote in

HENRY KISSINGER
... dual role

1713: "In general the training of a lawyer breeds habits and dispositions of mind which are not favorable to the practice of diplomacy."

Callieres's implication was that an attorney might be more interested in winning a case than in developing a long-range program, that he might be more facile than wise; that be could be more concerned with exploiting flaws in an opponent's argument than in attaining reasonable and enduring solutions; and that he is professionally accustomed to adroitly changing positions.

Surely all of these habits could be attributed to the flamboyant Dulles who was both a brilliant negotiator and a felxible acrobat even though one doesn't need to stress Callieres's point artificially by analyzing the careers of other legal beavers at State.

Not even Kissinger's most biased critics contend he is ignorant in the complex field of foreign affairs and he has even managed under difficult circumstances to maintain tactful personal relationships with legislators now angry with the executive. Moreover, there is reason for the State Department and the career Foreign Service to take heart from the fact they will now be headed by a tough, intelligent man.

Strengthen Representation

Kissinger must surely see the need to strengthen our diplomatic representation abroad at every opportunity presented. In this endeavor he is likely to be aided bq his former chief lieutenant, Alexander Haig, who has fortunately replaced R. R. Haldeman at Nixon's right hand in the White House and who is unlikely to measure ambassadorial capacities in terms of G.O.P. political donations, as seemed to be Haldeman's custom.

Here too one may expect Kissinger to take his cue from the admirable Callieres, who wtore: "We find that instead of gradual promotion by degress and by the evidence of proved capacity and experience, as is the case in the usages of war, one may see often men who have never left their own country, who have never applied themselves to the study of public affairs, being of meagre intelligence, appointed so to speak overnight to important embassies in countries of which they know neither the interests, the laws, the customs, the language, nor even the geographical situation."

Escape

When Prime Minister Trudeau makes his second visit to Communist China October 10, it is hoped that his "detente" will not have him forget the millions of Chinese people who have endangered their lives while they escaped Mao's "paradise!"

While "youthful idealism" may have been responsible for his enthusiastic co-authorship of Two Innocents in Red China in 1960, a 54-year-old Trudeau might be expected to think about the half-million Chinese citizens who have fled Communist China since his last visit in 1960.

According to Hong Kong police reports of September 12, the 214,000 Chinese refugees detained for illegal entry (ranging in age from 16 to 30) represent only half of the number which escaped from Communist China. Should Prime Minister Trudeau believe that the situation has "improved" let it be noted that the number of escapees increased from 8,041 annually in 1969 to 24,000 in 1972.

Personally, I do not appreciate Canadian tax dollars financing games of "Russian roulette" with a totalitarian dictatorship that "secures" its people with bayonets and gunboats lest they develop a taste for freedom. — Patricia Young, 1030 Nanton Avenue, Vancouver.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of September 24, 1913

VANCOUVER — That the attorney-general had not made good so far as the overcrowding of streetcars was concerned was the emphatic declaration of Alderman McSpadden at the meeting of the city council. The alderman suggested that to give effect to the protest against the increased fares not a man, woman or child should pay a cent until they got a seat. Notice was given at a later stage of the meeting by Alderman McBeath to move that the police commissioners be instructed to take steps to prosecute the company for infractions of any bylaw, "particularly that with reference to overcrowding streetcars." Alderman Ramsey complained that the company heretofore had the public up a tree.

'Spirit of Algiers' Spells Trouble For Affluent World

By JIM HOAGLAND

ALGIERS — Coming soon from those Third World folks who are bringing you the energy crisis; the sugar shortage, the copper crunch and other hair-raising commodity confrontations.

That might have been the slogan to emerge if Madison Avenue had had a hand in packaging the most important message to emerge from the fourth non-aligned summit conference in Algiers this month.

The mood of the non-aligned after Algiers is of economic militancy. It stands in sharp contrast to the pious politics of neutralism that was the focus of this third world grouping in the last decade and, although few specific steps were taken at the Algiers conference, it could spell new trouble for consumers and investors of the western world.

The spirit of Algiers, as some are optimistically calling this new mood, is marked by growing distrust of foreign investors and multinational corporations, increased confidence in the third world's bargaining power because of the sharp upturn in petroleum and other commodity prices this year, and a distinct lessening of commitment to purely political ideology.

A New Mood

It was the biggest gathering ever of the 76 nations of Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe that have formally declared their independence of the big power blocs. It was also the first non-aligned summit since detente between those powers had become a reality.

No new definition of political non-alignment in the era of detente emerged, despite energetic prodding from the host Algerian delegation, Libya's Col. Muammar Qaddafi, and a few other leaders. But the new mood of the poor of the southern hemisphere confronting the rich of the north could, over the coming decade, transform itself into a definition, if the members of the non-aligned take a serious view of the new unwieldy group.

That remains a gigantic if, as the degeneration of the conference's public sessions into pointless repetition of the same outmoded rhetoric by nearly all of the leaders there demonstrated.

The Algerian plan to sidestep this broke down because of the Afghan factor. In the middle of the third day—after the most important Arab leaders and the traditional hierarchy of the non-aligned that includes Yugoslavia and India had given their talks—the conference steering committee decided to limit the remainder of the hall-emptying formal speeches to one representative per continent and get on with serious debate.

The man from Afghanistan was on his feet immediately, protesting that the viewpoint of the new democratic government there (installed by military coup in July) had yet to be heard. The conference secretary-general gloomily predicted that if Afghanistan could not give up its turn, neither would any one else. Twenty-four hours later the speeches were still going on.

Moreover, the strength of the 76 nations that make up the non-aligned group continues to lie more in word than in fact. The leaders who assembled here may represent the majority of mankind, as they repeatedly said, but the fact remains that the majority of that majority is still sunk in poverty, misery and ignorance.

To build a true independence, it is necessary to eliminate foreign domination and to take in hand the national resources and to exploit them for the benefit of the people, states the political declaration that the conference approved.

The tone and substance of the Algiers declarations were significantly different from those of the Lusaka summit of 1970, where the little attention paid to common economic strategy centred on getting more aid from abroad.

The net flow of financial transfers from developed to developing countries should correspond, by 1972, to a minimum of one per cent of the gross national product of each developed country, three-quarters of which should be from official sources, the Lusaka declaration wistfully pleaded.

This year aid was scarcely mentioned in the conference's final documents. If detente was a shaping factor of the mood at Algiers this year, so was the growing disinterest of the United States and the Soviet Union in continuing large foreign aid programs. That message was received loud and clear in Algiers, even if little was publicly said about it.

Different from Lusaka, the Algiers declarations bear even less resemblance to the tidy, oralistic principles that established the non-aligned grouping in Belgrade in 1961, in a meeting held one month after the Berlin Wall went up.

Seeks New Role

Many of those principles, enunciated by a fairly cohesive group of 25 countries presided over by Tito, Nehru, Nasser and Sukarno, have been overtaken by the momentous change in the world order of the past three years.

The Belgrade meeting deliberately did not set binding membership qualifications nor establish any permanent committees for the group.

At the Belgrade meeting members were asked to commit themselves to elimination of colonialism, imperialism and neo-colonialism in all their manifestations, and to support peaceful co-existence as the only basis of all international relations.

With the heady initial days of liberation from colonial rule having passed and the big powers striking out on the road of peaceful co-existence and disarmament without the help of the non-aligned, the movement is clearly casting about for a new political role.

Allowing the non-aligned movement to define itself as it goes along has, as colonel Qaddafi forcefully pointed out this year, created a pseudonymous 'grouping of countries, few of which could truly be classified as non-aligned politically. The majority of the countries represented here were ex-colonial territories that have either kept tight relations with their former metropoles or, in angry reaction, have become clients of Communist powers.

'Dignity'

Thus, the two qualifications most usually cited by students of non-alignment — that member states should not belong to military alliances with the big powers, and should not have foreign bases on their territory—have never been officially prescribed by the movement, and have in fact been blithely ignored in the name of third world solidarity.

Algerian President Houari Boumediene probably defined the current common denominator of the grouping when he spoke of the non-aligned members searching for dignity, which is a meaningful word for all the peoples who have been dominated and oppressed.

This definition breaks the world down along racial and poor vs. rich lines much more sharply than does the communism-capitalism split of the cold war.

Siting the conference in Algiers contributed significantly to the new militancy. With its political independence achieved, Algeria is turning its attention to an ambitious economic development program being built around its petroleum industry. The Algerians suggested that their policies should become the model for the third world.

The more serious leaders here kept focusing on the economic balance sheet for the developing world, which turned upward sharply this year as booming industrialized countries scrambled for raw materials from the third world producers.

Clearly, the most visionary leaders here hope that they see the beginning of a long-term pattern in the energy crisis: that of the developed world depleting its own natural resources and having to turn to developing countries for commodity supplies that the producers, in a united front, will be able to charge ever spiraling prices for.

Ghana's cocoa, Peru's copper and Malaysia's rubber are all bringing twice as much in world markets this year. The commodity prices indicator established by The Economist magazine of London shows an overall 89 per cent increase. Developing countries that trade with the world's richest nations are piling up foreign reserves at twice the rate of the industrialized countries and may end up with an unprecedented surplus on balance of payments.

Much of this financial increase is narrowly concentrated on the oil-producing states of north Africa and the Middle East, which should take in $15 billion this year. But Arab leaders here argued to the producers of minerals and other commodities that they must copy the pattern of banding together and bargaining ruthlessly, as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has.

The conference economic declaration picked up on this advice, stating that the oil tactics reflect the power and the efficiency of an organized and concerted action of the producing and exporting countries.

Copied West

If the message sank in deeply enough in Algiers, this could affect development strategy in a number of countries that have tried to copy the western world and Russia by industrializing, often with disappointing results. They may now find it more useful to expand commodity production — if they are prepared to ride out the sudden market fluctuations, which have killed such booms in the past.

But it remains to be seen if most developing countries can afford to risk foregoing immediate revenue in a confrontation with consuming nations, the sparsely populated Arab oil producers can.

Another weakness in expanding economic coordination in the third world is the relative incompatibility of most developing economies. Ethiopia cannot import Uganda's copper, since it cannot process it, and Uganda does not want Ethiopia's coffee, since Uganda also exports the crop.

Qaddafi underscored the lack of general economic linkage of the third world by proudly declaring at the meeting that "my country has raised the price of petroleum several times since the revolution." Most of the countries at the meeting are oil importers and eventually will have to cough up more money for petroleum because of Qaddafi's actions.

Another important edge of the new economic program adopted at Algiers was the conference's specific promise of support for countries that nationalize their natural resources and also set their own levels of compensation for the nationalized properties.

The summit declaration called for joint action against multi-national corporations that pose a threat to developing countries. A centre for the study of the 500 leading international firms is to be set up.

Because of its loose structure, there is a considerable time lag between the planting and blooming of ideals and trends in the formal non-aligned world.

The economic program adopted here is remarkably similar to the plan that Tanzania tried, and failed, to get discussed at the Lusaka summit in 1970. After another three years, when the leaders are to gather in Colombo, Ceylon, for their next summit, the economic ideas may have made more headway than one would have guessed in the organizational chaos of the Algiers conference.

It is not inconceivable, in fact, that Liberia's relationship with Firestone, or Saudi Arabia's with Exxon, may be as controversial in Colombo as Cuba's ties to the Soviet Union and Malta's harboring of NATO bases was in Algiers.

Price Too High For Progress?

By ALVIN SHUSTER

STOCKHOLM — The cliche about Sweden is that she has the world's highest standard of living, income levels almost as high as the U.S., an unparalleled system of social-welfare benefits and pretty girls. The unanswered question is whether the Swedes are happy.

This month's election, which left Premier Olof Palme and his Social Democrats on a precarious perch but still in power, suggested a large measure of discontent. There is applause for the record of the Social Democrats in four decades in power, but also rising disquiet.

Those who voted against the durable Social Democrats were not saying: "What have you done for me lately?" They seem to be saying, among other things: "What you've done has come at too high a price."

Fewer voted for Palme's party, wiping out the 10-seat parliamentary advantage it enjoyed with its allies, the Communists. The non-socialist coalition of three parties — the "bourgeois" group — gained ground and ended with the same number of seats as the socialists — 175 for each group in the 350-member Parliament.

The 46-year-old premier, who has a way to go before he achieves anything resembling the father-figure image of his predecessor, Tage Erlander, did not lose the reins of power in the deadheat election, but he did not win a mandate either. The 5.1 million votes — about 90 per cent of those eligible in the population of eight million — were split virtually down the middle.

Now the morning-after debate continues. Why, it is asked, does there appear to be declining public support for the Social Democrats, who have become accustomed to winning since 1932, when they came to power and proceeded to transform Sweden.

Many people take the view that the price for all the immense progress has been running too high. The tax bite is nothing less than incredible — the highest in the world, at 42 per cent of gross national income. The people, who are paying 40 per cent and more of income to the government, found themselves in agreement with opposition pleas that it should be "worthwhile to work."

The Social Democrats, to their credit, have overcome the housing shortage, for example, but people complain that they have built the wrong kind. The public wants one-family houses rather than the apartments that tower outside prosperous Stockholm.

Under the lavish system of welfare benefits, there are no fears about going broke because of illness — a patient pays about $2 a day for hospitalization — but the complaint is that medical service is too impersonal, that the doctor is likely to be different at each call or visit.

The downturn in the economy two years ago — since partly remedied — has also given many people the uneasy feeling that the Social Democrats may no longer know all the answers. Inflation is running at about six or seven per cent a year — low for most European countries — but unemployment, at rate of more than three per cent, is unusual here and is causing concern even among those working.

Moreover, there is a sense that perhaps Sweden has become overly organized and overly directed and overly bureaucratic despite the benefits that flow from the machine. One appeal that struck home during the month-long campaign was the nostalgic references to the countryside, the days before intense industrialization, when life was simple and carefree and a man enjoyed his work.

Most experts seem in agreement that the success of the former agrarian party, now the Centre party — the big gainer in the non-socialist group — stemmed not only from its hammering at high taxes but also because its leader, Tordjohn Falldin, was a pipe-smoking sheep farmer with big hands who evoked images of green fields and tall trees.

This may seem difficult to grasp, but in a country as highly industrialized as Sweden, it strikes chords among those who find their work boring even if they are enveloped in a blanket of security from cradle to grave.

Heart Attack Country

Finland Area Rate High Despite Physical Work

By LAWRENCE K. ALTMAN

JOENSUU, Finland—Tens of thousands of Finns have begun to change their diets and life-styles in a community-wide experiment to soften the deadly impact of arteriosclerosis in the area with the world's highest incidence of heart attacks.

The five-year experiment, which involves 186,000 Finns living in North Karelia, along the Russian border, will seek evidence that many of the heart attacks caused by arteriosclerosis can be prevented. The experiment aims also at determining just how far people accustomed to a tasty diet unusually high in fat content will go to increase chances of longevity.

Because heart disease is the leading killer in most Western countries, results of the experiment are expected to be as important to Americans as to Finns. For that reason, many American doctors have come here to see the project sponsored by the World Health Organization and Finnish government.

In the past, doctors have advised individual heart attack patients to stop smoking and eat less fat.

However, doctors have not actively intervened with intense public education and medical examination and have not monitored the effect of life-style changes in a community as they are doing here.

Studies have documented that the heart attack incidence in North Karelia is twice that elsewhere in Scandinavia. Each year heart attacks strike 9.3 per 1,000 North Karelian males aged 20 to 64 ccompared with 5.3 in Helsinki and about one in Sofia, Bulgaria, where the rate is considered the world's lowest.

Ilomantsi, with 14.9, has the highest rate in North Karelia. Even towns with the lowest rates are higher than Helsinki's. Rates for female heart attacks, though higher, do not show as dramatic a rise.

The specific reasons for such large geographic and sex differences are not known.

"It's very dangerous to be a man in North Karelia—we have many beautiful young widows," Dr. Harry Mustaniemi, a cardiologist here said.

Mustaniemi recalled the cases of a father and his 8-year-old daughter who complained of chest pains the same day. The father survived. The girl died of a heart attack.

The fact that North Karelia has the highest incidence of heart attacks is a paradox.

Heart attacks have come to be considered a disease of stress in industrialized urban societies. Typically, they are thought of as striking overweight people who seldom exercise, sit behind desks at work and drive home to watch television.

But North Karelia is a serene lakeland, forested with fire and pines. Farming and lumbering are the bases of the economy.

Hard physical work is the way of life.

Yet heart attacks fell robust Finnish lumberjacks like timber.

Doctors have identified several risk factors that are associated with a greater chance of suffering a heart attack. North Karelian health leaders have concentrated on just the three they consider the most important and easily measurable—cigarette smoking, increased cholesterol blood levels and high blood pressure.

Dr. Pekka Puska, principal investigator for the North Karelia project, said in his University of Kuopio office:

"We're working on the hypothesis that it is the environment—chiefly the diet and smoking."

The predominant weight of scientific evidence points to the North Karelian diet, which is high in dairy fats and contains few vegetables, as the primary risk factor for the rising number of heart attacks.

North Karelians rely on dairy products with highly saturated fats as a basis for cooking other foods. North Karelian housewives use butter to bake fish and a pastry called piirakka. Lumberjacks customarily take along for lunch a food that contains herring and globs of fat rolled in black rye bread.

In co-operation with local dairies and health officials, many North Karelians have started to drink milk that contains much less fat yet tastes as delicious. Doctors are also encouraging North Karelians to eat more vegetables and less butter.

OVERTIME DISPUTE CAUSES SERVICE DELAYS

B.C. Telephone advises its customers that some installation and repair services are being temporarily curtailed due to an unprecedented demand for service and a continuing ban on overtime work by the Federation of Telephone Workers.

Although B.C. Tel has increased its outside work force by more than 300 employees so far this year, the union's actions have hindered our efforts to meet customer demands.

Every effort is being made to return service to normal as quickly as possible.

In the meantime, the company must give priority to installations of new residential and business telephones, transfer of telephones for people who are moving and out-of-service repairs.

Services such as installation of extension telephones, changes in party line status, relocation of telephones and addition of optional equipment are being reduced to a minimum for the time being.

B.C. Tel greatly regrets the inconvenience caused its customers and asks for their co-operation during this difficult period.

OIL FIELD CLOSURE THREAT

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Times quotes the Libyan oil minister, Ezzedin A. Mabruk, as saying major oil-producing countries will shut down their fields if the Western oil companies attempt a boycott of Libyan oil.

Expanding on the meaning of a declaration of support that Libya received from oil-producing nations last week, Mabruk told The Times in an interview in Vienna "there will be a general shutdown of all fields."

"The Persian Gulf states are committed to agree on this too."

Libya has given six major oil companies until Oct. 1 to reply to its demands involving nationalization of 51 per cent of their Libyan operations. The companies are Atlantic Richfield Co., Exxon Inc., Mobil Oil Corp., Royal Dutch Shell, Standard Oil of California and Texaco Inc.

The six said recently in a joint statement they will take such steps as they individually "deem necessary to protect" their rights.

If the western companies do not accept a 51 per cent nationalization "they will lose not just 50 per cent of their assets but 100 per cent," Mabruk was quoted as saying in the interview.

U.S. CARRIER FIRE FOUGHT FOR 9 HOURS

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The United States Navy says it may be several days before investigators determine the cause of a weekend fire aboard the giant aircraft carrier Saratoga while it was in the Norfolk naval shipyard for overhaul.

No injuries were reported.

The blaze broke out Saturday night, and firemen battled it for nine hours before putting it out.

Gallery: Sadly, a Triple Header

By JEREMY BOULTBEE

Whirrr . . . whirrr . . . whirr . . .

Turn left and face up the stairs of the Greater Victoria Art Gallery just as you enter the place — and come face-to-face with the new-fangled of yester-year: nine kinetic yellow cocktail olives that would be better consumed, or pickled and stashed in a dark larder.

First reactions to the current show at the gallery: a disappointment — though somewhat salvaged by the humor of Nanaimo artist Ian Garrioch, who would fare better with a one-man show. Unfortunately the numerical weight of the colorful stuff that squeezes his own brilliant work into a far end of the gallery detracts somewhat from his own showing.

The other two artists sharing the current exhibition are glass sculptress Mary Filer and sculptor John Charnetski.

Over-all, the show is a jarring experience — like eating a pound of maple sugar at one sitting.

If one may by-pass for a moment the Charnetskis and Filers—hurry blinker-eyed to the far end of the room and feast first on the Garriochs, one will discover an artist of great ability and worth — and with a most delightful and humorous imagination.

Garrioch seems to play with his viewers — tickling their tummies with his paint and whimsy.

He has a "thing" for silk cords, motorcycles, bows, fishes, toothy monsters, clouds—and practically anything else. There's a comic-book quality to the fragmentation of his canvases, but all the pieces are pulled in tight by design and disciplined attention to rhythm.

Charnetski comes over flat, like a joke you cannot avoid hearing again.

Some of his bronzes—Madonna and Reclining Nude, also Forms One and Two—are simple, uncontrived, and artistically pleasing. Also his shaped synthetic wall-pieces, Reliefs Five and Eight.

But these were far upstaged by his other period pieces — technically well-wrought, but near replicas of which one might have seen in practically any provincial museum a decade ago.

Chernetski's pieces of silver jewelery, surely, would be better shown (against little scraps of colored silk, yet!) at some Bastion Square boutique. Displayed, as some are, against forms of demure black plaster mannequins, they really add a touch of brazen farce to an inferior showing.

Mary Filer, thank goodness, receives a room unto herself.

There is no denying that her pieces — delicate glasswork — convey a measure of solid impact.

Which is hardly the adjectival nuance one should administer to the delicacy of glasswork.

Her pieces have been raised to almost eye-level by a hideous conglomeration of long-legged table forms that frankly make a mess of the display.

Schools Can't Cope

FAIRMONT HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — A Victoria seoondary school principal called on school trustees meeting here Saturday to ask Education Minister Eileen Dailly to establish regional facilities to deal with problem children in the school system.

William Garner told 125 delegates from school districts in southeastern B.C. that schools must recognize there are students who have behavior problems that cannot be treated by regular school staff.

He said schools could survive without the strap and stressed the importance of input from teachers, parents and students in settling disciplinary problems, saying that students are basically honest and understanding.

WHAT IS JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT?

It is a "learn-by-doing", practical, economic education program in which high school students organize and manage their own small-scale businesses under the guidance of adult advisers from business and industry. It operates in 390 communities in Canada and the U.S., and its members produce a wide variety of products and services. Adult businessmen, specialists—in production, in administration, or in sales—provide the benefits of their experience to the "junior" executives who operate the company.

If you are interested in participating in this worthwhile project, either as a Junior Achiever, as an Adviser or a Contributor, please contact the Centre Manager at 658-5439.

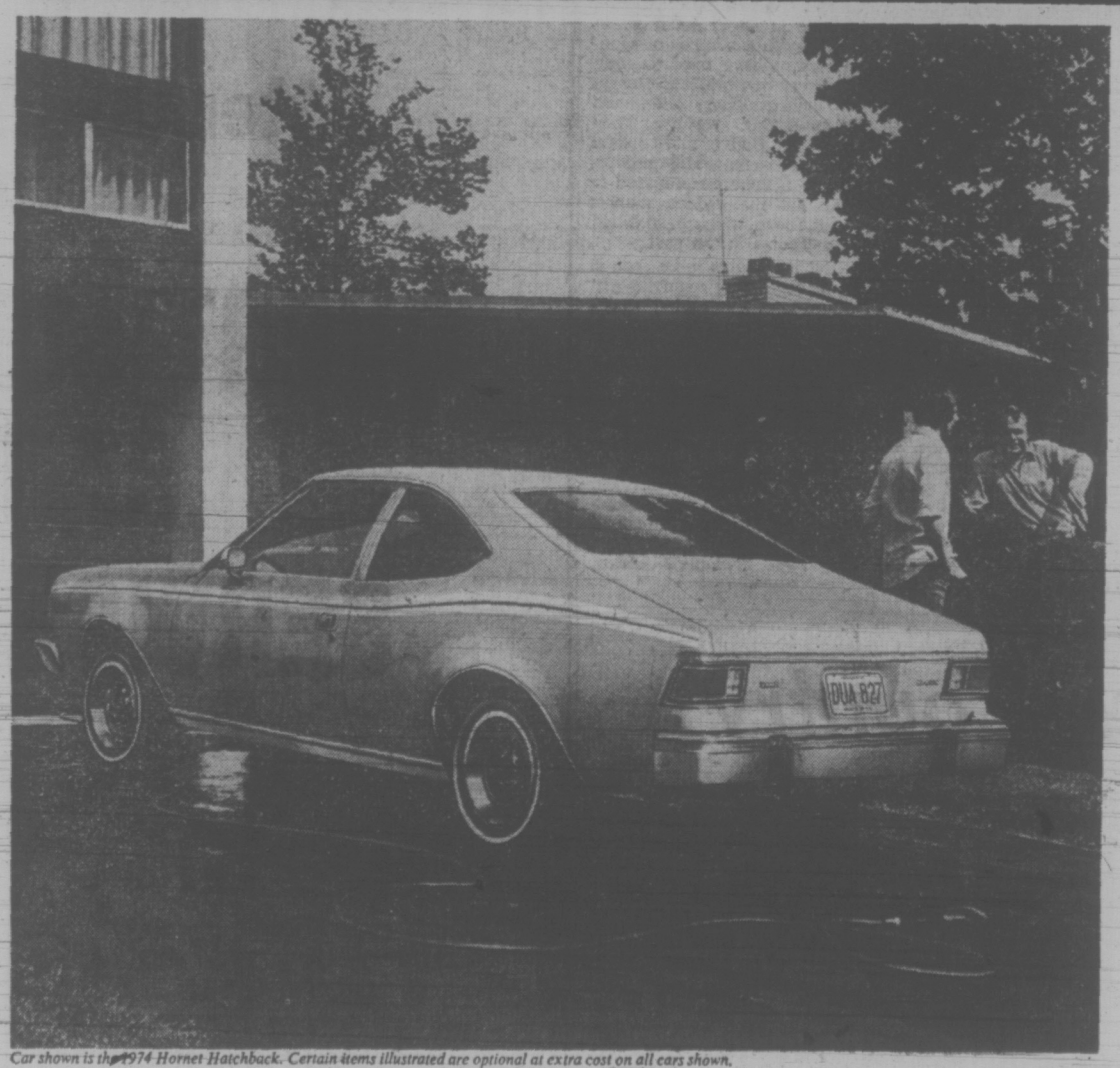
The American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

We believe a customer isn't really sold until after he's bought the car.



Car shown is the 1974 Hornet Hatchback. Certain items illustrated are optional at extra cost on all cars shown.

After all, how do you really know whether a car that looks good in the showroom will give you good value and live up to your expectations until after you buy it. That's why at American Motors we think that you're entitled to a promise of quality when you buy one of our cars. So with every new 1974 Gremlin, Hornet, Javelin, Matador and Ambassador you get the exclusive American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

What it means is that when you buy a new 1974 AMC car from an American Motors Dealer, American Motors guarantees, except for tires, to have repaired or replaced any part it supplies that's defective. And this Guarantee is good for 12,000 miles or one entire year from the date the car is first used, whichever comes first. See your American Motors Dealer for full particulars.

You see, we believe that regardless of what you look at in the showroom or read in the pamphlets, you're not really sold until after you buy the car. And we think the best way to keep you sold is to give you 12 months or 12,000 miles of as much worry-free driving as we can.

OK Helicopters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan Helicopters Limited and subsidiary companies report increased revenue for the six months ended July 31.

The company's interim statement showed revenues of $8.6 million compared to $6.4 million during the same period of last year. Net earnings, however, declined to $387,900 or 32 cents a share compared with $470,800, or 63 cents a share for the corresponding 1972 periods.

John Pitts, chairman and president, said the figures reflect the acquisition and consolidation of Haida Helicopters Limited and Lac St. Jean Aviation Limited as well as the issuance of 150,000 ordinary shares at $14 a share.

Pitts said the increase in revenue came from the addition of new equipment to the company fleet and the purchase of the two companies.

Block Bros.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Block Brothers Industries Ltd. of Vancouver reports net earnings for the first six months of this year increased 71 per cent to $1,528,142 or 24.3 cents a share, compared with $892,495 or 14.2 cents a share, for the same period last year.

Real estate sales were up 82 per cent to $282 million from $156 million for the corresponding 1972 period. The across-Canada average rise in real estate sales was 26 per cent.

Gross income increased 58 per cent to $18,999,244.

Total assets rose 27 per cent to $84,552,000, and net worth was up 13 per cent to $17,396,000.

Woodward's

VANCOUVER (CP) — Woodward Stores Ltd. sales of $185.3 million for the first six months of 1973 were 20-per-cent more than the sales in the first half of last year.

Profit for the period, however, dropped 12 per cent.

Cost of merchandise sold and operating expenses were $180.8 million compared with $160.6 million.

Net income was $2,328,647 or 35½ cents a share compared with last year's $2,594,344 or 39¾ cents a share.

The company's half-year statement blamed the loss of net income on increases in merchandising costs and operating expenses.

Profit margins, especially in the food section, suffered because retail pricing increases did not keep pace with the rapid increases in source costs, a statement said.

Amoco Cuts Back

CALGARY (CP) — Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd. has announced a reduction of its oil exploration program on the Grand Banks offshore Newfoundland.

Key to the drilling slowdown is a decision to withdraw the Sedneth 1, one of two semi-submersible drilling rigs now used by the exploration consortium.

This rig and one or more supply vessels will leave the Grand Banks between mid-October and early November.

Amoco says the reduced drilling program will provide specialists time to thoroughly study technical data gathered to date about the geological and geophysical characteristics of the area.

This would provide a better evaluation of the oil and gas potential of the Grand Banks.

The drilling vessel Sedco I will continue exploration drilling in the area while the Sedneth 1 begins service in the North Sea.

Amco is a consortium of Imperial Oil, Skelly Oil and Standard Oil of B.C.

He's After New Image

WINNIPEG (CP) — John E. King of Toronto doesn't like the "stuffy big business image" often associated with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

He says the business community in Canada is constantly evolving and becoming more socially responsible as younger executives with "enlightened social attitudes" take over.

King, incoming president of the national chamber, intends to emphasize during his term that business is concerned with more than just profits.

"We've got a great image lack of how business really acts and how people see it," he said in an interview prior to his election today at the chamber's 44th annual meeting. He succeeds John Ellis of Vancouver.

At 62 he doesn't pretend to be part of the new wave of young under-35 executives moving into the business world. But his views, consistent and firm, reflect some of the new thinking that has infected businessmen in the last few years.

That doesn't mean the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is forgetting about profit or a business environment that will lead to efficient production of goods and services. It will continue its crusades in that direction.

"But we say loud and clear that business must behave in such a way as to enjoy public esteem," said Mr. King. "The social responsibility of business is its best way back to credibility."

King is vice-president of public affairs for Texaco Canada Ltd. in Toronto. He was born in Manitoba and educated in Winnipeg where he graduated from the University of Manitoba. He has been in the oil business for 38 years, mostly in marketing and administration.

During the interview he gave these views of business-related subjects:

On government: "Government has to get a greater involvement in affairs which were formerly private, simply because of the international complexities of doing business. . . . We can't really operate in a vacuum."

On what's needed: "Business urgently requires a stable and encouraging environment in order to plan and operate efficiently. Such an environment is increasingly difficult to realize as the time frame necessary for good forward planning gets longer and longer."

On profit: "If we want to grow then the expectations people have of business have got to include the expectation that we're going to make a profit. We have got a big job to do convincing people that profit is not a bad word, that the machine doesn't work without it."

On inflation: "We don't believe there's anything to be gained from putting prices-incomes controls in. . . . What's best for Canada is to ride out this worldwide inflationary pressure. . . . Personally, I feel the inflation swing can't last more than 18 months."

On social assistance: For the "economically defenceless" there should be subsidies and protection. "The people who are helpless economically shouldn't have to bear the brunt of the inflationary pressures."

On Foreign investment: The onus of proof that a particular foreign investment is harmful to the Canadian economy should be on the government.

CALGARY STOCKS

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. from the Calgary Public stockyards show sales of about 325 head, mostly slaughter cattle.

Trade was slow with a narrow demand. Due to a late start on morning sales, there were insufficient slaughter cattle sold to establish quotations.

Preliminary slaughter figures for the week ended Sept. 22: Alberta hogs 33,801, beef 23,182; Canada hogs 163,251, beef 61,685.

There were insufficient good replacement cattle or stock calves sold to establish quotations.

Hogs sold F.O.B. Calgary to 11 a.m. average base price 58.85.

CRUNCH BITES AWAY AT CHIP INDUSTRY

TORONTO (CP) — Rising prices are nibbling away at another tradition—the 10-cent bag of potato chips.

O. B. Walker, general manager of Nalley's Ltd., Vancouver, and now president of the Canadian Potato Chip Association, told the group's annual meeting here:

"We are coming to the end of an era. The day of the 10-cent bag of chips is ended. Increased labor and packing costs, plus the spiralling cost of frying oil, will force manufacturers to raise prices."

Tobacco Workers Unite

GENEVA (AP) — The workers of the world's leading multi-national tobacco companies, including R. J. Reynolds, Philip Morris and Ligget and Myers, decided Friday to organize on an international level.

Affiliated within the International Union of Food and Allied Workers, which held a three-day conference here, the workers complained the multinational tobacco companies were showing "hostility" toward labor in some countries, even though they may have good relations with unions in others.

They accused multi-national tobacco companies of making decisions without consideration of their effects on workers, and charged they employed women under conditions inferior to those normally offered to men.

Trader Vic says -- Thank you for making the Pepsi-Honda contest a -- three cheers for THE GRAND PRIZE WINNERS!

RIP ROARING SUCCESS

Winner: Mike Matwick, age 14, of 535 Kenneth St., Victoria.

Mike's Grand Prize included the Matwicks' flight, Sept. 10th, to Vancouver via Air Canada and an exciting sea voyage aboard the P&O Arcadia. There they were met and taken to the Hotel Disneyland where they were presented with free passes for all rides and the Monorail by Mr. Ron Yeakley, Advertising Manager of Disneyland.

Mrs. Matwick and her five children, aged from six to fourteen, are seen here tired, but excited on their return, Sept. 16th, from their fun-filled vacation.

The fun, which started when Mrs. Matwick was called by Shirley Rowbotham of CKDA to confirm Mike's good fortune, turned the dream of a family vacation in Disneyland into a reality although Mr. Matwick was unable to make the trip.

A truly great vacation for the Matwicks, who moved to Victoria several years ago from Thunder Bay, Ontario. Congratulations Mike!

The Gibson family is all set to go on their new Honda Mini-Trail. It is being presented to Mike Gibson, 2912 Diskerson Place, by Marianne Kowalchuk of The Traders.

The big smile of the happy Honda winner is from Danny Richardson, 2701 Forbes. Congratulating him is Mel Bushell of The Traders and at left are Walter Cownden and Eileen Clay of CKDA.

Happy with his new Honda is Tony Price, 9866 4th Street, Sidney. Presenting him with his prize is Andy Reid of The Traders.

The family is going to enjoy this new Honda as Mrs. Olive Merriman, 1745 Newton, receives her prize from Andy Reid at The Traders. Her daughter Janine has already made her claim for the bike!

Honda happiness for Pat Tennant, 7656 Wallace Drive, Saanichton, as she receives her prize of a Honda Mini-Trail from Trader Vic.

Another happy Honda winner . . . Maureen Cyr, 1000 Trunk Rd., Duncan presented with her prize by Richard de Beaumont of The Traders.

Already to go on the Honda he has just won is David Marsh, 2127 French Rd., Sooke. Presenting David with his prize is Lyle Braun of The Traders.

All smiles astride the Honda he's just won is Tom Rickinson, 288 Stewart Avenue. Vic of The Traders is making the presentation.

PLUS MORE HAPPY HONDA WINNERS!

WEAVING RUN by Calgary halfback Rudy Linterman gets him past defensive end Mike Walker (69) of British Columbia Lions before he is stopped by linebacker Carl Weathers (right). Baseball Races Bring Out Poets

Times News Services

Watching major league baseball make the turn into the final week of the regular season recalls words written 2,000 years ago.

"There were many brave men before Agamemnon," wrote the poet Horace, "but none had a poet to sing their praises."

But this is 20 centuries later, and the fans are singing praises of baseball teams and players in cities like New York, Baltimore, Oakland, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Atlanta.

They haven't given up in Montreal, St. Louis, Chicago or even Los Angeles.

Horace might have made something out of it.

Praise rang out loudest in Baltimore and Oakland. Their teams wrapped up the two playoff berths in the American League at the weekend.

Baltimore's 7-1 victory over Milwaukee Brewers, combined with Boston Red Sox's 4-3 loss to Detroit Tigers on Saturday, gave the Orioles the Eastern Division championship for the fourth time in the five years since divisional playoffs were established.

The world champion Oakland Athletics clinched the Western Division title for the third straight year by beating Chicago White Sox 10-5 on Sunday.

That sends all the final-week interest over to the National League, especialy to the Eastern Division, where five teams are hooked up in a mad dash for first place.

Western Division enthusiasm is tempered, more or less, by the fact Cincinnati Redlegs are assured of at least a tie for first place. Steve Garvey and Tom Paciorek both clouted two-run homers Sunday as Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Redlegs 6-4 and prevented Cincinnati from wrapping up the Western playoff berth.

Atlanta is out of the playoff picture, but their fans reserved praise for slugger Hank Aaron, who cracked his 712th home run Saturday in a 4-2 victory over Houston Astros. The blast left Aaron only two home runs away from Babe Ruth's career record of 714.

Aaron sat out Sunday's 10-2 romp past Houston, but plans to play in each of Atlanta's five remaining games in an effort to break Ruth's record this season.

Otherwise, the "poets" concentrated on the zany Eastern Division battle in the National League.

Friday, Pittsburgh Pirates lost their fourth straight game and first place to New York Mets — and immediately left the country.

Then they turned up in Montreal, looking for amnesty — or at least for a breathing spell.

They got their breathing spell Saturday when their game with the Expos was rained out and got at least partial amnesty Sunday afternoon when they broke out of their slump with a 6-3 and 7-4 sweep of the Expos.

The win moved them to within a half game of the Mets, who beat St. Louis Cardinals for the second straight day, 5-2.

Willie Stargell's three-run homer capped a four-run outburst that carried the Pirates to their opening victory. In the second game, Richie Zisk belted his first major league grand-slam homer, high-lighting a six-run fifth inning that gave Dock Ellis his first pitching victory since Aug. 5.

The Pirates, with a record of 77-76, have lost one game less than the Mets who are 79-77.

The Cardinals are 76-80 and the fading Expos 75-80.

Wayne Garrett drove in the trying and winning runs with a two-run triple in the sixth and Tug McGraw picked up his 24th save as the Mets won their sixth in a row.

'Trying' Cowboys Shade Lions

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders held a day to honor former linebacker Wayne Harris Sunday but Larry Robinson got into the act and almost everybody got a boot out of it.

Robinson kicked four field goals to highlight the Stampeders' 13-12 victory over British Columbia Lions in a Western Football Conference game. His production boosted his career scoring total to 976 points, five more than the record held by Tommy-Joe Coffey.

Robinson, a Calgary junior graduate playing his 12th season as a Stampeder, enabled Calgary to overcome a 5-0 deficit. His third three-pointer of the game, a 40-yarder, put him ahead of Coffey and put the Stampeders ahead 9-5.

The only other Calgary point Sunday was a 43-yard single by Don Moulton.

Karl Douglas threw a seven-yard touchdown pass to Jim Young in the final minute for B.C. Ted Gerela tried a short kick that failed when officials ruled a Stampeder touched the ball last before it went out of bounds.

Gerela collected six B.C. points on a field goal, two singles and a convert. He missed two field goal attempts, both costly, and got a single both times.

Although Calgary head coach Jim Duncan welcomed the victory, he did not hide his concern after the game.

"They're trying me," he said of his inconsistent players who failed to score a touchdown despite 377 yards in pet offence. B.C., with Douglas going all the way at quarterback in place of the injured Don Moorhead, managed 350 yards.

Douglas completed 13 of 31 passes for 214 yards and Eric Guthrie, on a fake punt, completed one for 26 yards. Peter Liske, the Stampeder veteran, completed 19 of 31 passes for 242 yards.

Liske's favorite targets in his short-passing attack were Gerry Shaw, with five receptions for 64 yards, and Rick Galbos, who caught four for 58 yards. Fullback Bob Wyatt led Calgary's ground-gainers with 79 yards in 16 attempts.

Top rushers for B.C. was Monroe Eley with 51 yards in seven carries. (See scores on Page 14.)

WHITWORTH CAPTURES PORTLAND GOLF TEST

PORTLAND (AP) — Veteran Kathy Whitworth shot an even-par 73 in a steady drizzle Sunday to win the $30,000 Portland Ladies golf tournament, her third straight professional golf title.

The 33-year-old from Richardson, Tex., finished with a two-under-par 144 for the 36 holes on the 5,977-yard course.

Two strokes behind at even-par 146 was Sandra Palmer, a 10-year LPGA veteran, who shot a two-under-par 71 for the final round.

Tied for third at one-over-par 147 were Carole Jo Skala and Debbie Ausin.

Rain fell throughout the day, but wasn't heavy enough to cancel play as it did Saturday, eliminating one round of the scheduled 54-hole event.

Victoria amateur Dale Shaw, who opened with a 77 Friday and was one under par for eight holes when play was halted Saturday, carded 80 Sunday for a 157 total.

Low-amateur honors went to Oregon's Mary Budke, with 153 on rounds of 77 and 76.

Blanda on Target; Namath on Shelf

By The Associated Press

Miami Dolphins finally had their long winning skein snapped, Joe Namath suffered a shoulder separation and Washington Redskins were upended by St. Louis Cardinals in National Football League action Sunday.

George Blanda, playing in his 300th pro football game, kicked four field goals as Oakland Raiders beat Miami 12-7 at the Memorial Coliseum in Berkeley, Calif., ending the Dolphins' NFL record-equalling streak after 18 regular season and playoff victories.

The rugged Raider defence shut out the defending Super Bowl champions until there was just 1:07 left to play in the game, when Bob Griese hit tight end Jim Mahdich with a 27-yard scoring toss.

The 46-year-old Blanda kicked a field goal in each quarter, giving him seven this season, his 24th as a pro. They were from 12, 46, 19 and 10 yards.

Namath, New York Jets' superstar quarterback, suffered a separation of his right shoulder in the first quarter when he was tackled on a blitz by Baltimore Colts linebacker Stan White. He will be sidelined a minimum of six weeks, and if X-rays show an operation is needed, he may be lost for the season.

Despite the loss of Namath, the Jets went on to defeat the Colts 34-10, with reserve quarterback Al Woodall connecting on 17 of 21 passing attempts and the New York defence intercepting eight Colt aerials.

Donny Anderson scored three touchdowns to spark the Cardinals to their stunning upset of the National Conference champion Redskins.

The Cards, trailing 10-7 early in the third quarter, moved in front on Anderson's second one-yard touchdown run, then Jim Bakken booted a 23-yard field goal and Jim Hart connected on a 12-yard scoring pass for a 24-10 lead. After a 10-yard scoring pass by Sonny Jurgensen made it 24-17, St. Louis' Don Shy and Washington's Herb Mul-Key traded 97-yard kickoff returns to make it 31-24. Each team added a late field goal.

In other games, New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles tied 23-23; Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers battled to a 13-13 draw; Pittsburgh Steelers pounded Cleveland Browns 33-6; Cincinnati Bengals beat Houston Oilers 24-10; Kansas City Chiefs edged New England Patriots 10-7; Minnesota Vikings defeated Chicago Bears 22-13; Los Angeles Rams blanked Atlanta Falcons 31-0; San Diego Chargers beat Buffalo Bills 34-7, and San Francisco 49'ers beat Denver Broncos 36-34.

Dallas Cowboys will play host to the New Orleans Saints in tonight's nationally televised game.

Pete Gogolak booted a 14-yard field goal as the final gun sounded, lifting the giants to their tie with the upset-minded Eagles. Philadelphia had gone ahead 23-20 with 1:54 left to play on a 16-yard touchdown pass from Roman Gabriel to Harold Carmichael.

Chester Marcol's 24-yard field goal with 19 seconds left to play climaxed a 56-yard drive engineered by reserve quarterback Jim Del Gaizo and carried the Packers to their tie with Detroit.

John Hadl threw two touchdown passes and the Los Angeles defence stifled Atlanta, recording the Rams' first shutout at the Coliseum since the team came to Los Angeles 27 years ago.

John Unitas threw two touchdown passes and Ron Smith returned a punt 72 yards for another score, leading the Chargers past the Bills.

'Cat' Couldn't Catch Hubert

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — "This cat's gonna get me," Hubert Green thought as he went into the last half of his final round in the $100,000 Endicott Open golf championship.

But that "cat"—Dwight Nevil—did not, despite his splurge of birdies Sunday.

"When I birdied the 11th, I knew I was in good shape," said Green, who won $20,000 to become the tenth pro golfer to top the $100,000 earnings mark this year.

Green, who went into the final round of the 72-hole tournament 14-under par with a five-stroke lead, played the last 18 holes under regulation.

He topped Nevil, in with 66 and 272, by six strokes.

Green, who opened his day with seven straight pars admitted that when Nevil birdied the 10th, his sixth in the first 12 holes he began to worry a bit. He birdied the 11th and 12th and fretted no more.

Following his victory, Green left for Montgomery, Ala., where he reports for National Guard duty today.

Nevil posted seven birdies in all, but offset two of them with a pair of bogeys. He collected $11,400.

A closing round of 67 gave Ben Kern of Toronto a 282 total, good for $1,200 in prize money.

Turnovers Hurt Esks

By The Canadian Press

When Edmonton Eskimos invade Hamilton's Civic Stadium tonight, they will no doubt be in an ugly mood.

The reason is simple—the Eskimos will be looking to save some face after losing a 32-20 decision to Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League interlocking game Saturday.

"I expect they are going to give Hamilton a rough time," said coach Jack Gotta after his Rough Riders had posted their fifth straight win after four consecutive losses. Ottawa's win, coupled with Montreal Alouettes' 19-10 triumph over Toronto Argonauts Sunday, left the Rough Riders one point behind the leading Argos in the battle for top rung in the Eastern Football Conference standings.

"They got burned pretty badly," said Gotta of Edmonton's performance. "They are a much better team than they looked here."

Turnovers hurt Edmonton as they fumbled three times and had six passes picked off. In addition to the nine Edmonton turnovers, the game featured a record-tying performance by Gerry Organ.

Organ, a graduate of the University of Guelph, kicked six field goals, tying a CFL record set by Edmonton's Dave Cutler last season against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Organ's field goals, plus a pair of converts on touchdowns by Terry Wellesley and Jim Evenson, left the Riders' kicker with 74 points for the year and in a good position to win his third consecutive EFC scoring title.

Wellesley's TD came on a 50-yard pass-and-run play with quarterback Jerry Keeling while Evenson smashed across the goalline from two yards out.

Roy Bell scored on a two-yard run and George McGowan caught passes of 14 and 12 yards to account for Edmonton's TDs. Cutler kicked a pair of converts.

Tonight's game, which will be seen on the full CTV network, is vital to Hamilton's playoff hopes. The Tiger Cats now are three points behind Montreal, who posted their first win of the year over Toronto onto at the Autoslade Sunday.

Montreal combined a strong running attack with good ball control on a muddy Autostade pitch and for once the pass defence was able to contain Joe Theismann, Toronto's shift quarterback.

"I thought our defence played a fine game," said Montreal coach Marv Levy. "We hurried Theismann even on some of his completions. The front four, particularly Gord Juges, were excellent."

Both Montreal touchdowns came on running plays with John Harvey diving in from one yard out in the first quarter, and Larry Smith running in on the left side from 21 yards out after Montreal had recovered a fumble.

Theismann was good on 19 of 29 passes for 290 yards, but he was the victim of dropped passes by some of his receivers.

"We had so many opportunities and we just didn't take advantage of them," said Toronto coach John Rauch.

"There's no excuse for dropped passes. We just have to regroup."

Evonne Invites Riggs to Australia

Former Wimbledon tennis champion Evonne Goolagong would like to play anti-feminist Bobby Riggs in Australia.

"If it would boost interest in tennis in Australia, then I would like to have a match against him," Miss Goolagong said Sunday when she returned in Sydney from a holiday in Fiji.

"Tennis is one of the most popular sports in America and Riggs has done a lot to promote it," Miss Goolagong said.

Riggs lost to Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King last Thursday in a $100,000 winner-take-all challenge match in Houston, Tex. Earlier he had defeated another former Wimbledon champion, Australia's Margaret Court.

Games Plans Get Approval

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Art Phillips has returned to Vancouver with his "very different plans" that gave his city a chance to play host to the 1980 Winter Olympic Games.

Vancouver, with no opposing bid against it, was unanimously approved Sunday by he Canadian Olympic Association (COA) as Canada's choice for the site of the 1980 Games.

The city, with the COA's backing, will now go before the International Olympic Committee (IOC) to submit its plans. The group will hold a meeting in Vienna during October, 1974.

The IOC's deadline for applications from other cities runs out at the end of March, 1974. Several American and European cities are expected to enter the bidding before then.

Mayor Phillips' plans for the Games include splitting the events between Vancouver and Whistler Mountain, in Garibaldi Park, 75 miles north of the city.

This will alow spectator sports like hockey, skating and ski jumping to be held in Vancouver, the mayor explained

Such an arrangement, he added, would eliminate the need to build large construction projects to house major events in Whistler Mountain.

Two major points in the mayor's plans are to stay away from "the monument-building aspect of the Olympic Games" and to emphasize protection of the environment.

In keeping with the mayor's plans, the city's Olympic organizing committee is planning a relatively modest budget of $14 million for capital investments.

Of this $14-million budget, $10 million would be provided by the federal government with an additional $2 million from Vancouver's city council.

But the mayor, allowing for inflation, admitted "that the final cost will undeniably be higher."

The only additional sports facilities he foresaw building in the city for the event was a ski jump and a speed skating rink.

He expected no problems raising the money for the Games because "finances will just not be a major concern since the Winter Games are only one-fifth the size of the Summer Games."

Farmers Hammer Mustangs

Utilizing a powerful rushing game, Oak Bay Farmer Construction hammered James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs 57-9 Sunday at Macdonald Park to extend an unbeaten string to four games in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

Running-back Bill Green led Farmers, who were ahead 10-3 at half time, with two touchdowns while quarterback Rick Jones kicked a field goal and six converts.

Single touchdowns were scored by Wayne Stadnik, Ron Smith, Scott Woodburn, Evan Jones, John Eldridge and Ian Paladini.

John Hunter scored the lone Mustang touchdown and Bill Galego booted a field goal.

Position Is Vital, Cougars Discover

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

It isn't wise to predict big things on the basis of exhibition game results against your farm team, but Victoria Cougar coach Ollie Dorohoy noted one promising sign among his hockey players Sunday night.

Cougars, preparing for the Western Canada Junior Hockey League season, cruised to a 13-1 victory over their B.C. Junior League affiliates, Nanaimo Clippers, before 601 fans at Memorial Arena.

And Dorohoy, a stickler for being in the right place at the right time, expressed pleasure with the positional play of his hopefuls and the way they head-manned the puck.

The win was the second in as many nights for the Cats. Saturday night they posted a 5-2 decision against the Clippers in Nanaimo. Dorohoy used a full pre-season squad of 25 in that one and didn't feel his players got enough ice time individually for him to properly study them.

So Sunday he went with 17 players, including goalies Glen Bueckert and Danny Rogers, and settled on three forward lines—Brad Richardson centering Brian Miller and Al Dredger, Derek Haas between Peter Morris and Brian Day and Mel Bridgeman centering Brad Anderson and Glen Ing.

Sitting out were goaltender Perry Mulhall, defenceman Rick Williams and forwards Al McLaren, Ron Poole, Don Dziadyk, Mark Lomenda, Cam Connor and Don Eastcott.

They'll all see action this week, however, as Cougars play six pre-season games in six nights. They're at Powell River against that community's intermediate club tonight and tomorrow, play Cowichan Intermediates at Lake Cowichan Wednesday, oppose Langley Lords of the B.C. Junior League at Vancouver's Cloverdale Arena Thursday, then meet Kamloops Chiefs of the WCHL Friday in Kamloops and again Saturday in Revelstoke.

Miller and Anderson led the scoring fest Sunday with three goals each, Miller adding two assists. Two-goal marksmen were Dredger, Day and defenceman Rick La Pointe while Ing got the remaining goal.

Saturday, McLaren was the hero, scoring two goals and setting up two others, both by Connor. Dziadyk scored the other Victoria goal. Butch Stewart and Brad Rota counted for Clippers.

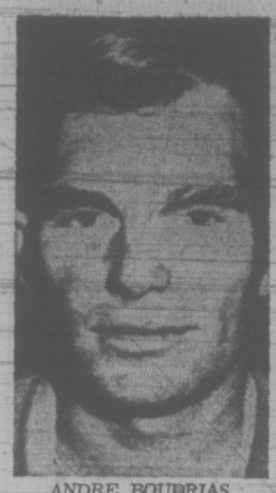
In other WCHL weekend developments, league president Ed Chynoweth announced in Saskatoon that five players have been suspended as a result of a series of brawls last Thursday in an exhibition game between Calgary Centennials and Edmonton Oil Kings.

Chynoweth said he has approached Calgary officials with demands for better crowed control and police protection at Centennial home games and vowed stiffer fines and suspensions "until we get this nonsense cleaned up."

Centennials, meanwhile, saw their pre-season winning streak end at five Saturday night with a 5-3 loss in Kamloops to the Chiefs. Chris McMasters and Jack Patterson each scored twice for the winners and Don Murdoch once. Jerry Holland, Dennis McLain and Mike Rogers scored for Calgary.

In other exhibition games Saturday, New Westminster Bruins whipped the Oil Kings 6-2 at Westlock, Alta., and Flin Flon Bombers posted a 5-3 win over Winnipeg Clubs in Winnipeg.

Bombers made it two in a row Sunday in Winnipeg, whipping the Clubs 9-2 before 1,283 fans while in Edmonton the Medicine Hat Tigers made the most of their opportunities for an 8-4 victory over the Oil Kings despite being outshot 40-28. Regina Pats and Saskatoon Blades, meanwhile, fought to a 2-2 tie in Regina.



ANDRE BOUDRIAS
. . . leads Canucks

Double Loss to Kings

Times News Services

It was a good weekend for Vancouver Canucks, not so good for Los Angeles Kings and a downright disaster for Vancouver Blazers.

Canucks posted a pair of National Hockey League pre-season victories over the Kings while the Blazers, embarking on their maiden World Hockey Association season, were embarrassed 5-2 Sunday by Roanoke Rebels of the Southern Hockey League. Rebels, a farm team of the Blazers, counted four goals in the second period before 1,600 fans in New Westminster.

Canucks got two goals and an assist from Andre Boudrias to subdue the Canucks 3-1 Sunday night in Spokane where 4,500 watched. It marked the third win for Vancouver in three pre-season meetings with the Kings.

Boudrias set up rookie Dennis Verbergaert for the third Canuck goal while Wayne Chernecki got the lone Los Angeles goal in the third period.

Three second-period goals did in the Kings Saturday night at Medicine Hat. Greg Boddy, Bobby Schmautz, Jocelyn Guevremont, John Wright and Gene Sobchuk scored for Canucks while Juha Widing and Randy Rota replied for Los Angeles.

In other NHL Sunday contests, Minnesota North Stars edged Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 in Bloomington, Minn.; Gary Donaldson's goal midway through the third period enabled Chicago Black Hawks to tie Montreal Canadiens 3-3 after the Habs jumped off to a 3-0 lead in Chicago; Atlanta Flames burned Buffalo Sabres with three third-period goals for a 4-3 victory in St. Catharines.

In other Saturday NHL games, Atlanta and New York Islanders tied 4-4, Montreal beat Boston Bruins 5-3, California Golden Seals thumped Pittsburgh Penguins 8-1, St. Louis Blues edged Detroit Red Wings 5-4 and New York Rangers trampled Philadelphia Flyers 10-3.

New Name for Old Powerhouse

Fans who mourned the passing of Columbus from the Pacific Coast Soccer League and then watched the fledgling Premier League dissolve before their eyes in its first season have cause to rejoice again.

Mighty Columbus has returned.

The team isn't back as Columbus, mind you. But take a look at the lineup. That squad calling itself Italia in the new B.C. Soccer League is the old Columbus, all right.

And those ex-Columbus guys showed on Sunday they still have what it takes when they blanked Westminster Blues, former Canadian amateur champions, 1-0 to take over first place in the league.

Bill Young got the game's only goal and for acrobatic Peter Greco, who has played in goal for Canada, it was his third straight league shutout.

Italia moved two points ahead of the Blues, Victoria London Boxing Club, Pegasus, Simon Fraser University and North Shore United, who are in a five-way tie for second place.

North Shore pulled into the tie for second by edging Greek Olympics 1-0 on Colin Atkinson's goal in Sunday's only other game.

Boxing Club crushed Hungarian Turuls 8-2 at Empire Stadium Saturday and SFU got its share of second place by playing to a 1-1 tie with Vancouver Sporting Club.

Centre-forward Tom Forrester and playing-coach Ron Thompson scored two goals each for the Boxers and the other scorers were Bob Bolitho, new signing Brian Hughes, Jan Bentley and George Pakos.

Winger Dean Stokes set up six of the goals.

The Hungarians, playing hard to stave off their fourth straight defeat, held Victoria to 2-2 in the first half but were swamped after the interval when the Boxers scored four goals in the first 12 minutes.

Alex Irwin gave Vancouver Sporting Club a 1-0 first-half lead but Kim Blank, a Nanaimo player attending SFU, rammed in the equalizer in the second half for the Burnaby university.

Victory Saturday for Victoria Gorge Molsons would have made that a six-way tie for second, but they ran into a stubborn University of British Columbia team and were lucky to come away with a 2-2 draw.

Only 339 fans turned up at Royal Athletic Park but they were rewarded with an entertaining end-to-end game by two of the youngest and fastest teams in the league.

Showing more cohesion in the early stages, UBC grabbed a 1-0 first-half lead on a goal by Chris Suzuki.

Dan Henry scored for Gorge early in the second half but the Thunderbirds went ahead again when Ed Soltysik scored. Mark Robb got the equalizer on a booming shot 20 minutes before the end.

John Iruretagoyena had a reasonably impressive debut in goal for Gorge and was particularly sound in the last few minutes when the team was shorthanded after Ken Paton was sent off for kicking an opponent.

Royals Get a Boost From Rudi's Booting

Rudi Kuebler fired both goals Sunday as Cosmopolitan Royals blanked Victoria West 2-0 at Heywood Avenue Park to take over sole possession of first place in the Premier Division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

In other matches, Nanaimo City nipped visiting Oak Bay 1-0, UVic Vikings topped Duncan Powell's Men's Wear 3-1 at Centennial Stadium and the Lusitanos-London Boxing Club match ended in a 1-1 draw at Topaz Park.

Florida Colt Holds On

By Associated Press

London Company took the lead in the stretch and drew out to win the $60,200 Manhattan Handicap over the grass course at New York Belmont Park Saturday.

Owned by Bert Firestone's Chance Hill Farm and ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., the three-year-old Florida-bred colt by Tom Rolfe scored by two lengths over the fast-closing Big Spruce.

Triangular finished third and Bemo, the leader at the head of the stretch, fourth. Gleaming, the 2-1 favorite and top weight under 126 pounds, was a dismal 11th in the field of 13.

London Company ran the 1⅜ miles under 116 pounds over a firm turf course in 2:15 3-5 and paid $18.80, $7.80, and $6 as an 8-1 shot.

At Bowie, Md., True Knight set a track record of 1:49 2-5 in winning $61,500 Chesapeake Handicap.

Owner Don W. Galbreath picked up a cheque for $39,975 after True Knight clipped two fifths of a second from the mark set by Passe Nova in January, 1970.

CASTAWAYS WIN THRILLER

Castaways edged James Bay Athletic Association in a 12-10 thriller Saturday to win the Victoria Rugby Union's annual seven-a-side tournament at Macdonald Park.

Both teams scored two tries, with Graham Hunter and Gillie Greig diving over for Castaways and Chuck Shergold and Ray Rogers crossing for James Bay.

But Barry Robbins of James Bay could manage only one conversion while fullback Cliff Yorath of Castaways converted both tries, with long kicks from almost on the touchline, to provide the winning points.

Castaways downed University of Victoria Vikings 14-3 and James Bay beat Oak Bay 18-3 in the semi-finals.

All four clubs in the semi-finals play in the union's first division. Sixteen teams from all three divisions took part in the one-day tournament.

Saanich Velox beat Peninsula Agrarians 16-6 in the consolation final.

Wheeler Wins Cross-Country

John Wheeler of Victoria Saturday turned in the fast time of 31 minutes, 54 seconds in winning the open men's 10,000 metres in the annual University of Victoria cross-country race.

A total of 52 runners competed in men's and women's open events and a joggers' race at the meet, held at Beaver Lake Park.

Wheeler, a first-year commerce student at the University of British Columbia, edged Charlie Thorne of Victoria to take first place. Chris White of UBC was third and schoolboy Tom Griffin of the Victoria Mercuries Track Club, who was ninth, posted the fast time of 34:09.

The UBC "A" squad was first out of eight teams in the men's open.

Jack Farrell led a sweep of the first three places by Victoria Flying Y Club members in the 4,000-metre joggers' race. Clubmates Pat Boulger and Gil Parker were second and third respectively. Farrell's time was 14:27.

Schoolgirl Ulla Hansen of the Mercuries won the 4,000-metre women's open race in 16:21. Bev Cox of UVic was second and Nicki Webb, also of UVic was third. UVic won the team event.

Dazzling Cricket Show

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It was a mutual thing.

Rival captains Mike Denness of the Kent County cricket team from England and Nick Walton of the Victoria Selects decided they would dispense with the traditional toss of the coin.

"Oh, we threw a coin up there, all right," Walton grinned. "For the crowd, you know. But no one looked at it. I just said 'Okay, you bat first.' We both felt this was best and would give Kent a chance to put on a show for the 800 or so fans who turned up to see the start."

And what a show they put on, racing to 249 runs for the loss of only three wickets and then dismissing Victoria for 157 to win by 92 runs with about 30 seconds left on the clock.

But for those who stayed right through the match at Beacon Hill Park Saturday, the entertainment never tailed off. If anything, in fact, it picked up as Victoria batsmen carried on in the same big-hitting vein as their opponents and the crowd got a chance to watch the slick Kent fielders in action.

Opener Graham Johnson was out without scoring, bowled by Victoria's Alec Porter, who finished with two for 116.

But that was Victoria's only break of the match. Derek Underwood, who made 43, and John Shepherd, a 22-year-old West Indian international already heralded as another Gary Sobers, hit 54.

Then wicketkeeper Alan Knott got going, delighting the crowd with 10 sixes and four fours on the way to his 100 not out.

When Knott's century came up, Kent declared at 249 for three. David Laycock was 40 not out. And the visitors didn't even need to use their batting star, Brian Luckhurst, who has hit 37 centuries in first-class cricket, or captain Denness.

Victoria looked in early trouble when openers Dave Clarke and Keith Dixon went for 17 and 14, respectively, but Dave Billingham and Jim Wenman stayed together in a great stand.

Billingham, who came from Ramsgate in Kent 2½ years ago, thoroughly enjoyed himself against his former countrymen and, completely relaxed even when facing the legendary Underwood, cracked a fast 50, including five sixes and four fours. He went out in true hitting style — caught on the boundary.

Wenman, too, batted well and had two sixes and four fours in his 42. His wicket fell at two minutes to six. And, in those last thrilling two minutes, Kent destroyed the Victoria tail-enders to snatch victory.

Denness was impressed with "several individual players" both in Victoria and on the mainland.

Then he allowed a smile to sneak out.

Of course, there was, he said, "a great difference between amateur and pro cricket."

Slow Start Hurt, Says Beaten Gray

TORONTO (CP) — Clyde Gray said he should have started a little faster and "hit a little harder."

"I don't think I could get in better shape," said the 26-year-old Gray who lost a unanimous decision to Jose Napoles in a world welterweight boxing match Saturday.

Gray, nursing a swollen left eye, said in his crowded dressing room:

"I think I hurt him a couple of times. He didn't hurt me anytime . . . I just wasn't hitting hard."

His manager, Irv Ungerman, said there was no return match stipulated in the Gray-Napoles contract, but added that his fighter would be interested in another bout.

Although admitting Gray lost the fight to a strong boxer, Ungerman took time to say he was disappointed with the scoring of judge Tony Canzano of Toronto.

Canzano scored it 71-65 for Napoles; judge Jose Guerra of Monterrey, Mex., had it 71-67 for the champion and referee Jay Edson of Phoenix, Ariz., 71-67 for Napoles.

Napoles, a 33-year-old Cuban exile living in Mexico City, was in control from the start and had Gray down in the fifth, hitting him with a left hook to the jaw for the fight's only knockdown.

Gray, 26, put on a furious rally hoping for a 15th-round knockout, and while he hit hard and often it was too little and too late.

Napoles, who weighed in at the 147-pound limit, was the consummate artist, hitting with both hands to the head and body. Gray, in superb condition at 145 pounds, showed his inexperience by concentrating on the head.

Kick the "I Forget Habit!"

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read, whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address, and zip code to: Memory Studies, 555 E. Lange St., Dept. 630-48, Mundelein, Ill., 60060. A postcard will do.

Snead Makes a Point In Ryder Cup Golf

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — J. C. Snead again scored the point that clinched the United States victory over the British team in the Ryder Cup golf matches Saturday.

The expected American triumph came on a 19-13 score and marked the 16th time U.S. victory against only three losses and one tie in the biennial series that dates back to 1927.

The U.S. team included Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer, Homero Blancas, Gay Brewer, Tommy Aaron and Snead.

The 1957 U.S. squad has been the only American team to lose to the United Kingdom aggregation since the Second World War.

While the American margin was convincing, forged on a domination of Saturday's final 16 singles matches, it was in doubt until the last day. Britain led, 5½-2½, at the end of the first day's play, and the teams were tied, 8-8, at the end of Friday's action.

The American team, averaging 36 years in age, won nine of the singles, lost three and drew in four.

The gangling, slow-drawling Snead, a nephew of Sam Snead, won two of those matches, taking Ireland's 48-year-old Christy O'Connor, 1-up, in the morning and clinching the team victory with a 3 and 1 decision over big, pipe-smoking Brian Barnes in the afternoon.

Snead, who also had won the decisive match against the British in the 1971 Ryder Cup matches in St. Louis, 35-foot birdie putt on the 16th clinched this one with a hole and a scrambling par against Barnes' bogey six on the 17th hole.

The 42-year-old Casper was the Americans' only other double winner on the final day. He rallied to beat Barnes —who had rare consecutive eagles—2 and 1, then turned back Europe's premier player, Tony Jacklin, 2 and 1.

In other morning matches, British Open champion Weiskopf beat Scotland's little Bernard Gallacher, 3 and 1; Homero Blancas romped over Peter Butler, 5 and 4; while Nicklaus, Trevino and Brewer had to be content with draws against Maurice Bembridge, Peter Oosterhuis and Neil Coles, respectively.

Jacklin scored Britain's only victory in the morning, taking Masters champion Tommy Aaron, 3 and 1.

GRAND PRIX CONFUSION

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Peter Revson, an American driver for the British McLaren racing team, won the Grand Prix of Canada Sunday after a rain-delayed and confusing 200-mile Formula I race. His victory was good for at least $25,000 in prize money and the Labatt's 50 Trophy.

For the first time since this road track opened in 1961, there was doubt as to who was winner and the track announcer did not declare Revson the victor until five minutes after the checkered flag had dropped. A protest delayed the results.

Intermittent rain during the day delayed the start of the race, for an hour.

Then nearly halfway through the race, most of the drivers went into the pits to change their ribbed rain tires for dry-racing slicks.

Later, track authorities issued a list of unofficial results in which Brazilian Emerson Fittipaldi, 1972 world champion, was in second place and Jackie Oliver, a Briton who races out of California in a radically new car named the Shadow, was third.

When the official results were released about 3½ hours after the end of the race, they backed up the unofficial results placing Revson, Fittipaldi and Oliver in 1-2-3 order.

Vampires Take Over Top Berth

Saanich Vampires took over first place by blanking Saanich Hornets 20-0 at Royal Athletic Park, Cowichan Chiefs tripped North Island Warriors 21-6 in Courtenay and Oak Bay Invaders pummelled Nanaimo Trojans 39-1 in the Hub City in Vancouver Island Bantam Football League games Sunday.

Brad Leason led Vampires with a touchdown and two conversions, Ross McCauly topped Cowichan scorers with one TD and three converts and Cole Kirby scored two majors to lead Oak Bay.

Field Hockey Shocker

Castaways and Rebels Grey remain the only undefeated teams after Sunday's games in the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association.

The much-improved Castaways shocked Tigers, runners-up for the last two seasons, 1-0 on Russ McDowell's goal at Pemberton Park and Rebels Grey, the defending Island champions, defeated Castaways' second team 5-1 at Lampson Street Park.

In other men's games Sunday, Orangemen blanked a shorthanded Fossils team 3-0 at Windsor Park and Rebels Red and University of Victoria Vikings battled to a scoreless draw at UVic.

In the Island Women's Association, Mariners and Oak Bay stayed in a tie for first place in the first division.

Mariners nipped UVic 5-4 at the university and Oak Bay edged Sandpipers 2-1 at Oak Bay High School Saturday.

In the second division, UVic No. 2 blanked Evergreens 2-0 to take over first place, Sailors and Castaways battled to a 3-3 tie and Rebels Grey and Sanderlings fought to a 2-2 draw.

Rock-Hard Defence Overcomes Dolphins

VANCOUVER — Rock-hard defensive play helped North Shore Cougars blank Victoria Dolphins 24-0 Sunday to clinch second place in one of two B.C. Big Four Junior Football League games at Empire Stadium.

In the other game, first-place Meralomas thumped Burnaby Spartans, 34-0.

"They stopped us when we got close," said Dolphin coach Roy Vollinger. Victoria was able to move in midfield but couldn't penetrate past the North Shore 30-yard line.

After factor contributing to the Victoria defeat was the inability of the offensive line to provide enough protection for quarterback Ron Taylor.

Dolphins also were assessed 15 penalties for a loss of 171 yards while North Shore had five for 56 yards.

Defensively, the Dolphins were led by some sparkling performances from Max Edison, George Roberts, Rod Crowe, Steve Ludvigson and Gary Leitch.

Bill Triance scored two touchdowns for Cougars and Roger Hatch added the other six-pointer. Dolphins missed on two field goal attempts.

Les Weiss scored three TDs and Rick Price scored another for Meralomas, while John Blake had an interception return of five yards for the final Vancouver major.

MORFITT KEEPS CROWN

Sizzling drives that hugged the side walls and deft cross-court shots that kept his opponent scurrying enabled George Morfitt to retain his "A" class title in the annual Victoria Racquet Club's invitational squash tournament Sunday.

The Vancouver player, currently ranked No. 2 in the Pacific northwest easily, took the first set in the final, 15-5.

But Victoria's John Dowling, who stunned second-seeded Dick Radloff of Seattle 3-0 Saturday to reach the final, came back to win the second set 15-10 and shot into an 8-1 lead in the third.

Morfitt, who edged Les Harding of Seattle 3-2 in Saturday's semi-finals, took control in the vital third set. He soon had Dowling digging in the back corners again and came from behind to win 15-12. Morfitt took the fourth set 15-7 to win the match 3-1.

Dowling was one of four Victoria players in the finals of the three-day tournament which attracted 104 competitors from all over the Pacific northwest.

Egon Kuhn of Victoria was defeated 3-1 by Andrew Hunt of Vancouver in the "B" class final. Hunt beat Victoria's Phil Green 3-0 and Kuhn down Doug Wescott of Vancouver 3-0 in Saturday's semi-finals.

Don Starling of Vancouver downed Bill Bell of Victoria in the "B" veterans' class final. Bell got past Victoria's Doug Hawkes 3-1 in the semi-finals while Starling ousted Stan Heard of Victoria 3-2.

Promising Bruce Faaland of Seattle defeated Stan Fisher of Victoria 3-1 to win the "C" class title. Faaland beat Martin Kaffka of Vancouver 3-0 and Fisher downed Bill Malinowski of Vancouver 3-1 in the semis.

Cary Nathan of Vancouver was the "D" class champion. He beat Peter Bradbury, also of Vancouver, 3-2 in the final.

Linda Kaser of Vancouver took the women's title, beating Seonaid Bampton of Tacoma 3-2.

Home Course Suits Winner

DUNCAN — Bill Wakeham cardeda 71 on his home course Saturday to retain his title in the third annual Village Green open tournament at Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

Wakeham, who is the top golf money winner on Vancouver Island after winning the Metro Toyota-CFAX tournament and the Esquimalt-Molsen open earlier this year, took the top professional prize of $200.

Terry Weins of Langara and Tom Moryson of Vancouver collected $137.50 each for their second-place 72s and Mike Parker of Vancouver was third with 73 to win $75.

Hal Jacobsen of Glen Meadows led amateurs with a gross 72, one stroke better than Cec Ferguson of Gregarah and two under Gordie Rands of Cedar Hill.

Bruce Rands, Gordie's brother, shot a 74 and tied for fourth spot among the professionals with Gary Urton of Mt. Brenton. Each won $25.

Hans Fengewisch of Nanaimo won the low net title with a 67 while Jack Taylor, Gord Bell, Ralph Thorne, Diek White and Irv Smith were tied for second with 68s.

THOMPSON GETS CALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mike Thompson, a 24-year-old right-hander who posted a 7-7 record with Tulsa of the American Association, has been called up by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Baseball League.

12-Year-Old Top Fisherman

Twelve-year-old Allan Shortings topped all other fishermen in the fourth annual Saanich Rotary-CFAX Sportsman derby Sunday with a 32-pound chinook taken off Otter Point.

His prize was a 26-inch color television.

Following in order were J. Barnes (31:10, Saanich Inlet), Ken Grant (30:00, Beechey Head), H. M. S. Nelson (28:13, Esquimalt) and Matte Korpelle (28:08, Beechey Head).

Dave Randall won the ticket draw and E. Ferriday collected the hidden weight draw prize. Each received a 15½-foot boat, trailer and motor.

B.C. Takes West Title

EDMONTON (CP) — British Columbia posted two narrow victories during the weekend to capture the Western Canada juvenile soccer championship in a round-robin tournament involving Manitoba and Alberta.

B.C. defeated Alberta 2-1 Sunday after edging Manitoba 4-3 Saturday in the opener of the two-day competition. Manitoba downed Alberta 3-2 to finish second.

The British Columbia team, which includes Victoria players Wayning Lee, John McGuire and Frank Woods, now advances to the national under-18 final against the eastern champion.

Juniors Tied

Les Haskell and Brad McLeod share the lead after the first round of the Uplands Golf Club junior championships. Both shot 76 for the first 18 holes Saturday. The final round will be played next Saturday.

Anusol Plus eases hemorrhoid pain, then helps promote healing.

Ask anyone with hemorrhoids. The thing that bothers them most is the pain. To help with this problem, Anusol Plus contains a topical anaesthetic.

This relieves your hemorrhoid pain almost as soon as you apply it. It eases the burning sensation. And it soothes the maddening itch.

And while it does all these things in minutes, the relief it gives will last for hours.

New Anusol Plus also contains ingredients that help promote hemorrhoid healing.

There's a gentle decongestant that helps to reduce hemorrhoid swelling and inflammation. There's a soothing, cooling emollient that protects tender tissues from further irritation. And there are two antiseptic agents that help to prevent infection.

What's more, so that applying Anusol Plus won't add to your suffering, it comes in a silky-smooth cream form. This goes on gently and easily, even in those areas that are tender and inflamed.

New Anusol Plus is now at your nearest pharmacy in cream or suppository form. We think you'll like the way it eases your pain, while helping your hemorrhoids to heal.

Quilici Stays With Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Twins have signed manager Frank Quilici to manage again in 1974 with an increase in salary from his current estimated $40,000 contract — despite a losing season.

"I feel Frank has come along as a manager and I'm confident the experience he has gained in a year and a half as our field leader will bear fruit in a winning season in 1974," said Calvin Griffith, Twins' president.

Aircraft Support Coming

Provincial government support to improve aircraft facilities has been promised the B.C. Aviation Council.

Speaking at the council's annual convention at the Empress Hotel Saturday, Travel Minister Ernie Hall, said a ministry had been established especially to deal with the transportation industry and its problems.

An administration system is being set up to permit input from other departments, such as parks, recreation and travel, on matters dealing with transportation, he said.

"The departments have started to talk to each other, instead of individually making unilateral decisions without any regard for other resources," he said.

However, Hall said support and assistance for air transportation might not come as soon as the council would like.

He explained that no one, "not even the government, can do everything at once."

"There must first be priorities, and everything must wait its turn."

Later, Aviation Council general manager Gordon Brown said the council would like to see more airstrips in wilderness areas for aircraft on wheels.

"We are short of airstrips," he said. "Some who fly along the west coast have no place to land. In wilderness areas of the interior, a small aircraft may have to fly 400 miles before finding a field.

He said there is a total of 1,600 registered aircraft in B.C. Of these 1,100 are privately owned. The number of aircraft is increasing at about 5 per cent every five years.

The convention ended Sunday.

Education Emphasis Shift Urged

COURTENAY (CP) — The emphasis in education should be shifted from administration back to teaching, the New Democratic Party's Vancouver Island regional conference urged Sunday.

The conference passed a resolution asking the provincial government to rotate supervisory jobs and to stop paying administrators more than teachers.

The conference voted to ask the government to include the history of women's struggle for equality in schoolbooks and also asked NDP MLAs to establish a caucus committee on women's rights.

Diane Recalma told the conference that before the First World War as much as 50 per cent of Indian reservation land was taken from the Indians by a royal commission. The delegates voted to ask the provincial government to include that land in future discussions of Indian land claims. Mrs. Recalma is the wife of Arnold Recalma, chief of the Qualicum Indian band.

The conference also passed a resolution aimed at getting rid of the United States torpedo testing base at Nanoose Bay. The resolution asked the province to urge the federal government to keep American nuclear submarines, which use the base, out of Canadian waters.

Man Fined $125 For Having Pot

Nineteen-year-old David Anthony Kvasheminikoff, alias Carl Anthony Nero, was fined $125 when he pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Saturday to possession of marijuana.

Kvasheminikoff, who gave the Salvation Army as his home address, was charged after police found some marijuana on him during a search at the Churchill Hotel on Government Street Friday night.

The Day of the Movers —Life's Darkest Hour

Being some items selected from a man's personal diary:

Item: The movers here today to give their estimate on hauling our stuff to the new digs and I know of no more humiliating domestic experience.

You may go on for years contentedly thinking that you have some pretty nice things or, at least, that you're reasonably comfortable, but the moment that an outside, appraising eye lights upon your dearest possessions they become just so much junk.

The mover seems a nice enough man, but when he says "Does this go?" indicating that it might be smarter if it stayed or got burned with the rest of the thrown-out rubbish, some terrible doubts may come to your mind.

Suddenly you see the sag that's been there, unnoticed, in the chesterfield and the worn patches in the rugs and the generally seedy appearance of everything that, only yesterday, was loved. It's all you can do not to apologize to the chap for asking him to dirty his hands by touching it.

It's a particularly hard time for a woman who, anticipating a new home as a fresh start, already visualizing it in her mind's eye, sees through a stranger's eye what she'll have to begin with and realizes, cringing, that it isn't very much.

Item: Reading this night a profound article by the Swedish poet, Tomas Lofstrom, and I found myself in a deep depression because there is not one of his judgments on the world's condition that is not terribly true.

Lofstrom writes this:

"Like children tampering with the mechanism of a parlor clock with their grubby fingers, or like amateur surgeons, we have opened the body and soul of the earth and are conducting experiments on its heart.

"Today's forests are planted on cultivated fields. Today shrubs and brush are destroyed by poisonous chemicals. Today forests are being chopped down in Sweden, Canada and Siberia. Today erosion is rampant, life-giving plants are being murdered, ground water is drying up, fields are turning into wild steppes, steppes into sand dunes, sand dunes into deserts. The jungles of Vietnam have been turned into a sterile moonscape. This is only a fraction of the total devastation of living organisms.

"Today merchant vessels sail from industrial ports carrying hundreds of thousands of tons of unknown poisonous chemicals, wastes of synthetic products, oil and radioactive substances. They are buried in an ocean grave, but one, three, 10 or 50 years hence, they will return to our tables in the cyclic process.

"Today seaweed is perishing in the seas, fish are dying out. Dead birds fall to the ground, killed by the poisonous clouds that hang above the large cities and industrial centres. The populations of Tokyo and Los Angeles, of New York and London, of the Ruhr Basin and Katowice live in an eternal fog. Today, the number of units producing poison increases endlessly (machines, heating plants, factories, vehicles) and the number of poisons continues to increase.

"Today people are moving from the country to the cities where they find employment. The developing countries of the Third World are compelled to welcome industries that are harmful to the environment because industry means economic progress, at least in the short run.

"Today most of the Earth's people go hungry. The natural resources are being exhausted and wells are drying out. It is possible to predict with fairly reliable accuracy when the supplies of oil, natural gas, coal and uranium for nuclear power plants will run out. This can occur in the late 1980's or perhaps even at the end of the present decade.

"We are already living with radioactive substances in our bones and this pertains not only to those who were born in Hiroshima. Our internal organs are wasting away. Sulphuric acid falls in raindrops on our heads in the spring and autumn and during the winter blizzards.

"This is the situation today. Tomorrow is not far away."

Item: Yet another note today from a hitch-hiker, this now being the 15th, and it's interesting how this came about.

Seems a certain senior civil servant ran off some copies of the notes in which we described the Polish system of hitch-hiking. (For about two dollars any Pole over the age of 17 may buy a card which identifies him, provides insurance for the driver who may pick him up, and rewards the driver with prizes in periodic draws.)

Along with the item outlining this fine idea the civil servant includes a letter addressed to the hitch-hiker, urging him to write his own ideas about the Polish plan or any other aspect of the subject. The letter, handed to hitch-hikers, says, "Your fare for this trip, if you care to accept the responsibility, would be to discuss this idea with another hitch-hiker . . . a note on the back of this sheet might prove fertile." And a stamped addressed envelope is given.

The hitch-hikers agree unanimously, two of them being university students with no other way to reach the campus, that the Polish idea is a good one and that motorists would be more inclined to stop if they knew they were protected in the case of an accident.

But half or more of them take the jaundiced view that fewer than one in a hundred drivers, even if they are alone in big cars, are willing to give a thumber a lift and that no inducements will make much difference. And I guess they ought to know.

Beach Giant Sewer

Oak Bay council is being bit heavily with letters from residents who claim the extension of the breakwater at Oak Bay Marina and a spur from Mary Tod Island is turning the beach into "a giant sewer."

The letters will be dealt with at tonight's council meeting.

One resident said the beach from the marina to Glenlyon School is in an "abominable and filthy condition," adding that the stench is repugnant and that the beach will become a giant sewer unless the breakwater is removed.

Residents complain that the cutback of tidal action in the bay by the breakwater extension has taken away the cleansing action and the beach's muddy surface is now covered with a filthy, sewage-like slime.

"Now the whole bay is dead," says another resident.

"The health people should be called in to investigate," says Dr. W. T. Westwood of the Rudyard Kipling on Beach. "The sludge over the sand is just like sewage."

"Any time you interfere with nature," says another resident, "something's bound to happen. The muck and stuff is pretty terrible."

Mayor Frances Elford promises:

"We must find out what is causing this and what can be done about it."

She concedes the beach has deteriorated. Instead of sand it now has a "kind of scum over a muddy bottom.

"Those who are objecting claim it is caused by the extension of the breakwater and the spur built last spring from Mary Tod Island. However, the federal government did extensive studies on a hydrographic model for about two years to determine the possible effects of the breakwater."

Agreeing that there appears to be a lack of current in that part of the bay, Elford says the whole matter will be investigated from a technical point of view.

Residents near the marina are also complaining that the marina complex has depreciated their properties.

"Disgust, despair and anger," says one resident, is felt by those who live near the marina because of the noise and traffic.

"To live on the waterfront has become a nightmare," she writes.

Blaming the "quarries" that have been built (the breakwater and the Mary Tod Island spur, she adds:

"It's deplorable to see the Oak Bay Marina complex growing like a cancer."

Test Turnout Startling

Five times as many people wrote the first set of provincial high school equivalency tests at Camosun College over the weekend than anywhere else in British Columbia.

A total of 310 registered to write the five tests and all but about a dozen showed up Friday and Saturday, Graham Holland, Camosun counsellor in charge of the tests, said today.

At eight other community colleges in the province where the tests were offered, the turnout ranged from nine at New Caledonia College in Prince George to 62 at Douglas College in New Westminster.

Provincial director of examinations Harry Chalmers called the Camosun turnout startling.

"It's an anomaly of some kind going on," said Chalmers.

Finding the reason for the high turnout in Victoria will require some investigation, he added.

The tests, never before offered in the province, give people who never finished high school a chance to earn a high school equivalency certificate.

Chalmers said there is already a list of 50 people in Victoria anxious to take the tests the next time they are offered.

Next scheduled testing was to be in December, but the demand may prompt the education department to offer the tests at a special session this fall, he said.

People who write the five multiple choice tests must be over 19, out of school at least a year and a B.C. resident at least six months.

The group who wrote the tests at Camosun ranged in age from 20 to 59, with people in their 20s represented more than any other age group.

Turnout at other testing centres was: 11 at Okanagan College, 33 at Vancouver City College, 33 at Malaspina College, 30 at Selkirk College, 10 at Capilano College, and 22 at Cariboo College.

The tests were given two weeks ago to 83 inmates of the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster and 47 inmates of Matsqui Prison.

Results of the tests won't be sent to those who wrote them for several weeks.

Want Ad Changes

Following the general trend to recognize equal job opportunities for both sexes, Victoria Press Ltd. will introduce a new system of "help wanted" classification headings effective Oct. 1, Hector Alexander, director of advertising and assistant general manager, announced today.

Alexander said the present categories of male help wanted, male or female help wanted and female help wanted will be replaced by one overall classification: help wanted—general.

Other headings under job opportunities will be: office help, skilled trades, sales persons and agents, teachers, part-time-temporary help and situations wanted.

The two Victoria daily newspapers will not have the same number of classifications as the Vancouver Sun, which has also changed its job ads structure, as Victoria has a much smaller employment market.

But Alexander said if experience dictates that more categories are needed, these will be added in due course.

Noting that newspapers in Ontario, Alberta and Manitoba already have advertising recognizing equal opportunity, Alexander said: "It's the coming thing and we're trying to get ahead of it."

Jitters Raise Rents

By WAYNE HARDING

Times Staff

Landlords' feelings of insecurity about the economy and the law are creating sharp rent increases throughout Greater Victoria, welfare and industry spokesman said today.

John Woods, director of the Landlord and Tenants Advisory Bureau, said:

"I think there is a general feeling of insecurity among landlords which may account for it. It may be partly inflation and may be partly the hint there will be rent control —although the government has denied there will be."

In the past, rents on apartments would rise by "$2 or perhaps $3.50 a month," Woods recalls, "but we hear of some that are $25 a month."

Wes Dickie, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association, confirms "there is a feeling of insecurity" but adds the association does not keep track of rental increases.

Not knowing what is going to happen to the Landlord and Tenant Act, which has been referred by the provincial government to the Law Reform Commission for major revision, is one of the sources of the insecurity, Dickie says.

He adds that it is reflected in the availability of financing to landlords.

Jim Nelson, director of Victoria Rental Aid, reports a major increase in the number of people calling his agency to say their rents have been raised.

Act Violations Claimed

Rent increases reported to his agency have been between $20 and $60 a month for houses and $5 and $20 a month for apartments.

He charges many landlords are violating the one-year control on rents and in some cases, raise rents every time a tenant vacates a premises.

The sharp rental increases are adding to the general shortage of housing for poor people, Nelson claims.

Woods said a number of persons who have phoned the municipally-supported Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau indicate they cannot afford the rent increases and "will have to move one."

Among the hardest hit are senior citizens whose fixed incomes — even with the $200 minimum old age pension — cannot pay the increases.

"You can get a room for $60 or $70 a month if your income is $200," says Brigadier V. C. Underhill of the Salvation Army welfare department. "But some people really should have small apartments and they can't afford them."

He notes, however, "the lot of elderly people is generally better than it has been."

Mrs. Pauline Barker of the Victoria Silver Threads Centre reported the organization knows of a number of cases of rent increases on accommodation for old people.

"But very often these people are frightened they will lost their place and they won't complain," she said.

Lorne Nicholson, provincial minister responsible for housing, was not available to comment on the situation.

Case Hasn't Missed Boat

A Victoria architectural firm wll have its bid on a new ferry design contract considered by the provincial government, the firm's president said today.

John Case, of Case Existological Laboratories, said he had a "very good" meeting this morning with Transport Minister Robert Strachan and the minister promised to consider his offer.

The naval architect criticized the government Saturday because he thought the design contract had already been given to a Seattle firm, Spaulding and Nickum.

"He (Strachan) said he would consider our proposal," Case said, adding that the minister made it clear that he "had absolutely not committed himself" to the Seattle firm.

Case said a Canadian team could design the ferries and would be able to meet the 1975 delivery date.

He said the purpose of his meeting with Strachan was to promote a Canadian contract hopefully for his own company, but above all Canadian.

The architect emphasized that a Canadian company would have the technology to design the ferries and that his own company could meet the deadline.

The charge that Canadian firms are more expensive is unjust, Case said, because the architectural fees are set by the B.C. Association of Professional Engineers.

"We are bound to that fee," he said.

Case said he also recommended to Strachan that a technical advisory and planning committee be set up immediately to operate separately from the existing ferry authority to look into the mismanagement of the ferries.

The committee would "overcome poor and no planning" within the service, he said, advise on new ferries under consideration and monitor safety on all B.C. ferries.

Case said he talked to the minister "on a number of urgent matters needing instant consideration" but would not disclose what those matters were.

FIRST FULL-TIME legal aid office was opened in Victoria today at 69 Bastion Square and handled a dozen inquiries before noon. It is staffed full-time by lawyer Keith Hamilton and secretary Joanne Fox. Funded by federal and provincial governments, purpose of the Legal Aid Society of B.C. office is to provide assistance to people financially incapable of retaining their own lawyer. A "flexible" means test is involved.

Ask The Times

Q. We took our family to see the Calgary Stampede this summer for the first time and thoroughly enjoyed it. It was our first experience of rodeos. Is it the largest rodeo in the world and how did rodeos start? P.M.

A: The Calgary Stampede is the largest rodeo in the world. The record attendance for one day was set on July 14, 1962 — 124,463 people. Earliest references to the sport of rodeos are from Santa Fe, New Mexico, as far back as 1847. Steer wrestling first came in with Bill Pickett of Oklahoma in 1903. Rodeos first came into being, of course, in the early days of the North American cattle industry.

Nice Ending to Thanksgiving Meal Contributed by Noted Gastronomist

BY HILDA BEASTALL

When you have successfully followed a few recipes using packaged baker's yeast, you will not hesitate to make a special kind of break-cake for a special occasion. With Thanksgiving not far off what would be more suitable than making a fruit Savarin? Filled with whatever fresh fruit you prefer, it makes a good-to-look-at, perfect ending to a home prepared Thanksgiving Dinner.

The word Savarin commemmorates Brillat-Savarin a famous French gastronomist, and always refers to a light textured bread made with yeast and usually baked in a ring mould, the centre filled with fresh cooked fruit before serving.

If no ring mould, use any tinned mould, for the attractive effect, then pour the fruit around and over the outside of the cake which you have turned out on a wide platter. It is delicious any way you shape it, and not at all difficult to make.

FRUIT SAVARIN

¼ C. warm water
1 tsp. brown sugar
1 pkt. or 1 Tbsp. dry yeast
¼ C. hot water
3 Tbsp. soft margarine
1 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 medium or small eggs
1 C. unbleached flour
¾ C. wholewheat flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. wheat germ
¼ C. skim milk powder

Into a small warm bowl, measure the warm water. Add teaspoon sugar, sprinkle yeast on surface. Stand in warm place for 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, in large bowl measure hot water. Add margarine and tablespoon sugar. Stir until melted and fairly cool. With wooden spoon beat in the eggs. Add and mix in the now bubbly yeast mixture.

Measure flours and other dry ingredients into sifter. Add half the flour mixture to egg-yeast mixture, and beat well for few minutes with spoon.

Add remainder of flour mixture, mixing well until a soft elastic sponge is formed.

Cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. Needs 80 to 85 degs. F. out of draught.

Stir batter down and spoon into well greased ring mould about half filled. If more, put into greased muffin pans.

Cover, and let rise again in warm place until level with mould rim, about 45 minutes. Have oven at 350 to 360 degs. and bake for about 30 minutes until well browned but don't allow to scorch.

Remove from mould to cool on wire rack.

Prepare syrup from canned apricots, or drained from fresh cooked apricots, mixing ½ c. syrup, 1 tsp fresh lemon juice and few grains nutmeg.

When cake almost cool, return to mould and pour warm syrup all over, slowly, so that it is absorbed. If a crust has formed, you will need to prick surface with a fork to allow syrup to soak in.

Invert serving plate over mould, turn upside down to remove cake. Fill centre with apricots.

Serve warm topped with home-made yogurt.

A Blackberry Savarin is particularly good eating if you have frozen a few berries to use at Thanksgiving. So is any fruit with a distinct flavor.

Any kind of Savarin is great to take out on a last picnic of the year, for it is food which dosen't need a lot of snacks to follow as fillers.

A Memory Revived

This month's issue of Maclean's magazine includes an article by June Callwood that brought back memories of one of my most exciting newspaper assignments.

In the article this clever Canadian writer gives us highlights of the royal tour '73, with a few memories of former royal visits.

Those memories include a bit about the 1957 tour when Elizabeth II, as Queen of Canada, came to Ottawa to open Parliament.

It was the first time in the 90 years of Canada's nationhood that the Speech from the Throne was read by the reigning monarch.

So, you can imagine, attention was well focussed on the national capital that Thanksgiving Day, October 14, 1957.

I was in Ottawa as an accredited reporter for this newspaper. It was an experience that inevitably has mellowed over the years but one that will never be forgotten.

There was an hour in which I mingled with the crowd on Parliament Hill that Thanksgiving morning, while the band played, children scrambled around on the grass and their parents jockeyed for good viewing positions for the afternoon event.

There was the place reserved for me in The Senate, high in the north gallery, where the temperature rose to 90 degrees and where 70 men and women of the press stood silent and (I'll confess) emotionally stirred, as the clear, high voice we now know so well, rose to us with the words "I greet you as your Queen!"

There was the arrival of Elizabeth and Philip at the main entrance to the Parliament Buildings; the shining coal black horses, the red coated Mounties, the top-hatted coachmen who sat high on the back of the carriage.

The appearance of the royal couple after the ceremony on a special ramp beneath the Peach Tower, banked at either side with colorful autumn flowers and the crests of all 10 provinces and the territories, outlined in flowers.

I like to remember that I touched the Queen's hand as I went through a presentation line at a reception in Rideau Hall, shortly after she arrived.

Not only that, I was among a few privileged to talk informally with Her Majesty (about Victoria) when she and Philip mingled with the 500 members of the media, before leaving the room.

Strong in my memory is the fact that I played the roll of a "peeper" at the state reception that Thanksgiving night, after the afternoon ceremony.

With 13 others, chosen by lot from press, magazines and radio, I "peeped" down at the state ballroom where the reception was held.

As I remember we arrived at Rideau Hall about 10 p.m., and were taken in through the servants' entrance.

We were ushered through the kitchens where a staff was washing up after the state dinner, in and out of a butler's pantry where petit fours and other confections were ready for reception guests, then upstairs to a room that was sound-proofed for television and moving picture coverage.

All along one side of that room, heavy crimson velour drapes covered an arched opening. On instructions from the aide who accompanied us, each "peeper" was to have a two minute look through those drapes.

We were told we could use two eyes, but the drapes had to be held closely in position at all times.

Just as by turn came around the Queen and Prince Philip joined the gathering, so the aide allowed those who had "peeped" before me, another look.

As we were about to leave we got a break. The room was invaded by newsreel people from the British Isles. They had to have the drapes wide open and bright lights on while they shot their footage.

We crowded around them and got a good second look. There wasn't one amongst us who didn't murmur a few "ohs" and "ahs" over the gown the Queen wore. It was pale green satin trimmed with dark green velvet in a maple leaf design, outlined with crystals and emeralds.

Later, we were given a sketch of that gown and we learned it was by Normal Hartnell and named the Maple Leaf of Canada Dress.

Other memories came crowding in as I look back on that Thanksgiving weekend. The golden mile of autumn leaves and cheering people between Rideau Hall and Parliament Hill. The dignity of a Hull Mayor who welcomed the Queen to his Council Chamber.

The 10 Indian chiefs, each representing one of the provinces of Canada who were presented at a noon hour reception in the great ballroom at Chateau Laurier.

Among them was Elwood Modeste of the Cowichans who travelled the longest distance to meet the Queen.

I recollect asking him later if it was worth it. His answer was "she is great!"

Finally there was the morning of departure when thousands of schoolchildren gathered in Lansdowne Park to shout themselves hoarse as Elizabeth and Philip made a brief appearance before departing for the United States.

When the time came for The Queen and O Canada, some youngsters sang in French and other in English. It didn't matter. The sincerity and the sentiment were there just the same.

All this, of course, was 16 years ago.

Canada walked with history that Thanksgiving Day, 1957.

A day to remember!

Publisher's Advice

DEAR ABBY: In regard to a letter dealing with X-rated movies, you replied, "If the morals squad would just ignore them instead of staging raids, confiscating film, and arresting exhibitors and patrons; thereby giving millions of dollars worth of free advertising to these trashy movies, they would die a slow death."

Now, Abby, you know I am a fan of yours but in this case, if you pardon me, you are nuttier than a fruitcake!

There are a lot of people whose minds never got above their waists, and these movies only encourage more of this attitude. When it comes to trying to put a stop to this type of filth, I believe they should shoot the people who exhibit these films!

The problem has flourished because honest, sensible, sound people like you have refused to take a vigorous stand on this matter.

Best wishes, just the same. Publisher.

DEAR PUBLISHER: I appreciate your classifying me among the "honest, sensible, sound" people, but if you think I haven't taken a vigorous stand on this matter, you, sir, are nuttier than a pecan plantation.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled in favor of leaving the matter of setting acceptable standards up to the local communities and states.

In Albermarle County, Virginia, recently, a special grand jury of five men and two women were asked to recommend "acceptable community standards." They couldn't do it!

In your opinion, who should decide what the adults of Manchester, N.H. should be allowed to see? The city council by ordinance? The chief of police? The sheriff? The PTA?

So far, there has not been a shred of evidence to support your allegation that these movies encourage others to emulate those "whose minds never got above their waists."

Finally, if there is ever a law in this land which requires its citizens to look at X-rated movies you can count on me to take a vigorous stand against it!

DEAR ABBY: A good friend of mine met a very attractive couple at a party at my home one evening. (They were newcomers to town.)

Next thing I heard, my good friend invited this couple to her home for a party, and she didn't invite me! I never would have done such a thing, and claim this is not cricket.

Is this ethical behavior? No etiquet book I have ever seen covers this situation. Wondering.

DEAR WONDERING: It's NOT cricket to invite someone you met at a friend's party without including the friend on the first invitation. After that, you have no obligation to the one who brought you together.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a charity luncheon as a guest of a friend of mine. One of the door prizes was a trip to Hawaii. I won it.

Afterwards, one of the women came up to me an congratulated me, and she said, "I hope the organization can expect a nice donation from you."

To tell you the truth, I hadn't even considered such a thing. I don't want to appear cheap. Should I send in the price of a luncheon ticket for a donation? Lovely Hula Hands.

DEAR HANDS: It would be a nice gesture. (P.S. Why not be a sport and make it a little more than just the price of the luncheon?)

Parents Give Up Daughter

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Connie Marie Smith is a one-year-old victim of cystic fibrosis who has a new lease on life because her parents have voluntarily given her away.

Connie is the daughter of Bob and Bonnie Smith, who agreed Thursday to relinquish control of Connie because they cannot bear the burden of raising a child with cystic fibrosis.

Connie has become the legal ward of Dr. Arnold Dunn, 41, of Fairfax, a pediatrician who has treated Connie since she was two months old.

"I feel pretty good about it," Connie's father said.

"The only reason Dr. Dunn is getting Connie is because he can take care of her."

Cystic fibrosis is thought to involve an enzyme deficiency which affects the lungs and pancreas.

The disease is genetic, and both the mother and father must be carriers to produce a cystic fibrosis child.

Connie's parents lost their first child, Michele Lee, to cystic fibrosis. Although they were told there was an 80 per cent chance that another child would have the disease, they decided to try again.

The mother has since had herself sterilized.

The Smith's have split up since Connie's birth.

"Not having the baby home broke us up," Connie's father says.

"If the baby had been healthy we would have had a healthier home. Cystic fibrosis costs a lot of money, and you've got to have a lot of time and a whole lot of patience."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Sept. 25
BY SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your ability to charm associates comes into play. Some, who considered you overly aggressive, may now say that you merely have plenty of get-up-and-go. Display natural inventiveness. Be an individual to your fingertips. You will have backing of co-workers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow through on hunch. Learn by teaching. Share information. Aquarius, Leo person are in picture. You will be dealing with those who can be just as stubborn as — you! Affair of heart may be featured. Love is here to say.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent versatility, natural abilities. You will be trying many things, experimenting, thinking and changing — and you will feel alive! Sagittarian is in pictue. You get news of property and values. You also have chance to build.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message. You may feel there is too much, too soon. But there also is a way. You discover the way by asking. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Be what you are — you will receive backing from solid source.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are able to sell, to put ideas across, to gain from special efforts. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. Be prepared for change, variety and possible travel. Restless associate issues challenge. Sense of humor is important.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get what you want — but you may not want what is good for you. Avoid excess. Keep peace within family. Strive to break new ground. Taurus, Libra persons could figure prominently. Money surprise is due. Don't waste!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Aura of mystery surrounds some activities. Break through clouds of obscurity. Facts are available if you seek them. Key is not to fear truth. Work in conjunction with organization, charity group, hospital.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reward comes your way through business project, professional endeavor. Accept responsibility. You can deal from position of stength. Popularity is higher than usual. Capricorn, Cancer persons are likely to be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Chips are down, decision is made — past fades and future beckons. Know it and act like you are aware of it. Stop feeding yourself sledgehammer words like, "It should have been" or "If only . . ." Instead, maintain positive attitude.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your creative resources will surprise even you — there is change, dynamic style. You perceive, see ahead, get finger on pulse of public. What you write, say, advertise meets with healthy response. Travel, study and enlarge horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The occult or what is hidden seems to command your interest. You are fascinated now by the unknown, by lost horizons, by unseen resources. Your natural capabilities are highlighted. You teach and learn. You get credit for what you do.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Forces tend to be scattered. You may be judging too quickly. Key now is to wait for others to state their cases. You do best by listening and learning. Build bridge of goodwill; highlight public relations.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, have fine imagination but tend to brood. You are drawn to films, illusions, to endeavors which permit use of creative capabilities. You are sensitive, prescient. You know when something of importance is to occur. August was one of your most significant months of this year—in October you make new start.

Hotline Offers Words of Hope

CHICAGO (UPI) — Her pretty, doll-like face is bright and her words to the point. Georgia Photopulos is talking about the cancer operations that have left her chest "just a ribcage."

She slips off her smart, blue plaid poncho and a hugging turtleneck sweater outlines the reminder of the polio she contracted at age 11. Her spine and pelvis are crooked.

But few would notice the padded chest or the slightly curved shoulders if Georgia Photopulos, 39, didn't speak out about her condition — with candor, humor and a binding conviction that the gift of life itself defies any physical limits put upon it.

Now, four years and eight operations after the first two lumps appeared on one breast, Georgia is the founder and mainstay of a month-old cancer "hotline" to help cancer patients and their families.

"My high school called," the mother of two says. "They're having an alumni dinner to honor me for civic achievement.

"I didn't know cancer was a civic achievement."

She laughs and throws back her head. Not a hair on the perfectly-combed raven head falls out of place. Only later she explains it is a $12 wig she bought to cover hair left sparse from allergies, asthma, 19 lifetime operations including radical and regular mastectomies, a radical hysterectomy, and 12 combined deep X-ray and cobalt treatments.

Today, Georgia is considered medically free of cancer symptoms.

"It means there aren't any today," she said. "It doesn't say anything about tomorrow. But it's important. Four years ago, my prognosis was not good. But I never gave up. I detected every symptom myself and had it treated immediately. And now detection facilities are better than ever before."

Georgia is a headline speaker for the American Cancer Society and made appearances which filled six scrapbooks for the society in the last year. She also received the society's Spirit of Courage award.

Her husbasd, Bud, an ABC-TV newsman, and her adopted children, Jimmy, 10, and Kerry, 7, often accompany her on speaking engagements.

"My family is as much a part of my story as I am," she said. "The expense of my condition has made it a way of life for us. Besides, I have no sensation in my right hand since the operations and I can't lift luggage.

"We can't afford hired help and, outside of insurance, there just aren't many benefits for the middle class. People have been generous with rides to the doctor and for the children. But often, they think I look so good, they don't understand I really could use some help."

Without hesitating, Georgia will say it is her husband and her church that sustain her. She and Bud both sing regularly in the choir at St. Andrew's Greek Orthodox Church, not far from their modest, split level North Side home.

"I'll never forget the first day after I discovered the lumps," she recalled. "No one wanted to talk about it. I guess everyone is so afraid of cancer and it has such a horrible stigma. So I went to church and just cried and prayed."

That was the initial inspiration for the hot-line, Cancer Call-PAC (People Against Cancer). The Photopuloses have spent more than a year devising a system whereby a cancer victim or his family could call a number and be put in touch with the right "listener" any time, day or night. The program has funding and sponsorship from the American Cancer Society.

The "listeners,"—there about 50 on call in the Chicago area—are themselves cancer patients who, as Georgia puts it, "have decided to join the land of the living."

"I knew there was a need for this four years ago," Georgia said. "The cancer society says one out of every four persons in this country is affected by cancer and what they experience most is fear. Fear knows no time limits, and a nine-to-five service just won't help you when you're climbing the walls at midnight."

Chili Chef Quits

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Dick Slocumb, the champion chili cooker of all Texas and the other 49 states, has decided to hang up the old pot and give some young chefs a shot at his title.

Slocumb, the defending champion chili concocter, announced his retirement from active stewmaking Thursday and said he will serve as a judge in the fourth annual state "chilympiad", which began Friday and ends Sunday.

"I have chosen to follow in the footsteps of Rocky Marciano and other great champions," Slocumb said. "I will retire as an unbeaten champion."

With the news Slocumb wasn't going to compete, 50 other chefs converged at the site of the cookoff to compete for his title. The winner will advance to world chili cookoff held in Terlingua, Tex., in November.

Terlingua is a ghost town near the big bend that no one passes through. To get to Terlingua, you have to be going to Terlingua. The chili cook offs started as a joke there a half dozen years ago but became so popular the state title holder had to be decided in regional "Chilympiad," which attracted 50,000 persons last year.

A two-and-one-half mile parade kicked off Fridays' festivities. The parade was led by Maj. Thomas Storey of Austin, a pilot who spent six years in a North Vietnamese prison camp.

Miss Texas, Judy Mallett, will be on hand today to announce the winners of the Old Fiddler's Contest and will help auction the champion pot of chili.

The chefs began heating their kettles at 11 a.m. today and the judging by the thick, tongued judges begins at 3:30 p.m.

The whole shebang ends Sunday with an appearance by a group called the Confederate Air Force.

Save Those Old Jeans

By ANGELA TAYLOR

NEW YORK (NYT) — As anybody who owns a beloved old pair of blue jeans will tell you, you just don't throw them away when they're frayed and tattered. In fact, connoiseurs insist that denim, like wine, improves with age. Stores are selling worn jeans for higher prices than they do new ones, and some package snadpaper with new jeans so the purchaser can "antique" them.

But what do you do with elderly jeans that have gotten worn beyond patching, or if you've lost or gained weight and they no longer fit? Easy. Cut them off, add triangular pieces at the crotch and make a skirt.

"A couple of years ago, while I was in school," said a secretary, "I had some jeans I loved because they were really tattered. Then I lost weight and they were too big. So I cut them off, made a panel of another pair and now I have a hip-hugger skirt I'm crazy about."

This year's long hot summer has brought out a rash of blue jeans skirts. The most desirable — and the cheapest — is the home-sewn one, like the one owned by Norma Lugo, a shoe saleswoman.

Miss Lugo's skirt is knee-length and unadorned. More fun is the teeny-tiny one that Gael Fox, a stewardess, says she ran up in 10 minutes. Her skirt has a ragged hem and patches of plaid seersucker fore and aft. Kitty Hawks, the model, has made a more elaborate skirt with insets of odd fabrics and a sort of ragged ruffle. Lily Hau, a potter, made her mid-thigh skirt from denim shorts that had gotten too tight. She added a hem and side panels of flowered cotton.

The homemade look comes high when it's bought in a store. Merrill Scott, a decorator, plunked down $20 for an unadorned, but well-aged and wrinkled skirt. The boutique has caught on to the fad, and prices go as high as $300 for a custom-made skirt appliqued with velvet and lavishly embroidered.

Most denim skirts are short, but there are long ones, too. Ann Davidson, a visitor from England, got her long skirt in London's Oxford Street and says it's cooler than pants on a hot day. A more elaborate ankle-length affair — with a panel of flowered cotton and embroidery — set Nancy Glick back a cool $75.

Linda Sampson's skirt is literally a work of art — it's currently displayed at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts. The skirt is actually a long apron, made from a pair of jeans. Miss Sampson added appliques of birds and cattails made of intricately pieced fabrics.

One can buy a new Levi's denim skirt for about $8.

Violence Used To Fight High Prices

INDORE, India (AP) — Thousands of India's hard-pressed consumers have found that violence is a handy weapon in the fight against high prices and food shortages. The government is worried about a possible spread of such direct action.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi recently condemned what she called "reactionary forces out to exploit our current economic crisis." She left no doubt that she was talking about food rioters and politicians who sponsor them.

But what she didn't say is that such tactics seem to work.

Consumer agitation in Indore brought out four companies of paramilitary troops recently. They shuttered the town under a three-day curfew.

But when the curfew was lifted and the troops left, government-licensed ration shops suddenly had rice and wheat at reasonable prices.

It was the latest example of what has become known as the "Bombay Example."

Shiv Sena, a rightist party in Bombay, led a violent week of coercion in August, looting shops, forcing merchants to sell scarce commodities at cost or lower and rampaging in general.

Shopkeepers had to sell sugar at three rupees, or 39 cents, per kilogram, compared with four rupees before. Moslem butcher shops were invaded and their mutton, the main meat for Hindus, sold for seven rupees instead of the previous eight to 10. A kilogram is 2.2 pounds.

The Shiv Sena called off the demonstrations with the assurance of the state government that something would be done.

Government ministers called in wholesalers and retailers, and elicited promises from the suppliers to sell edible oils without profit and cut prices on other commodities.

The price of vegetables, which had soared to almost $1 a kilogram on the sellers' plea of short supplies, immediately dropped to 20 to 27 cents. Merchants contended good rains in outlying areas had brought the flood of merchandise to the market.

I have always been interested in collage and now it seems everyone is doing decoupage. I have been experimenting with my own special idea that I would like to share with your readers.

I have been buying ¼- or ½-yard pieces of fabric that have designs (florals, scenes, children, teddy bears) that can form a complete picture. I cut out and glue the individual shapes and create scenes on such fabric backgrounds as pastels, plaids, ginghams.

The fabric designs are used as you would use paper designs when you decoupage. I have been sinking my fabric collages under five to seven coatings of liquid plastic that I buy at the hardware store.

FOOD SYMBOLS

I love to entertain and here is one of my favorite ideas: I draw and cut out of colored construction paper food shapes that appear on my buffet table. These shapes are glued to colored toothpicks. For instance, if the salad contains eggs and ham, I insert a toothpick with these symbols into the salad. This gives people an idea of the ingredients in the dishes they are unfamiliar with, avoiding the embarrassment of having to ask the hostess.

FLAGGING CALORIES

In my house, we all start a diet at least once a week. We eat not because we are hungry but it's force of habit to reach into the refrigerator. What I do is mark food items with flags so none of us overdoes it.

I cut triangles from red and green construction paper and glue them to toothpicks. Red means fattening and green means low calories. I insert the toothpicks into everything in the refrigerator from the cheese to the ice cream in the freezer. These same flags (without the toothpicks) are taped to all canned goods and munchies. The flags make us think twice before reaching. It is really working.

Ground Searchers To Check Out Clue

A ground search crew moved into the Legate Creek area north of Terrace today, hoping to find a Canadian armed forces' Tracker and four-man crew missing since Thursday.

The plane failed to return to Pat Bay airport Thursday after searching for a 26-year-old craft which disappeared Tuesday on a flight from Quesnel to Terrace.

A Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman said today the ground search was organized by the RCMP at Terrace after a flare was sighted in the area about 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

A helicopter flew over the area but saw only what looked like a prospector in a truck. Bad weather forced postponement of a search until today.

The spokesman said the ground searchers will question the prospector if they can contact him.

The tracker crew members are Capt. Larry Schaufele of Shearwater, N.S., and pilot, Capt. Ted Bade and Sgt. Sherman Pye, both of Dartmouth, N.S., and Capt. John Scammel of Lower Sackville, N.S.

The pilot of the other missing plane is Neil Carey of North Vancouver, an experienced Canadian Pacific pilot, who was delivering the plane to a Prince Rupert man who had bought it earlier in Toledo, Wash.

The PRCC spokesman said that the Hallett Lake area was being searched again for his plane because of jumbled noise being monitored on the commercial distress radio frequency.

He said the area was being checked out again but the unidentified noise may not be from the plane but due to other causes.

With all available armed forces and civilian aircraft being pressed into service in the search for the two planes, a Pacific Western Airlines plane was called in for a mercy flight Sunday.

The plane took a 25-day-old baby suffering from respiratory trouble from Bella Coola to Vancouver General hospital.

Act Amendment On Zoning Urged

Saanich mayor hugh Curtis has asked municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer to remove an anomaly in the municipal Act's rezoning provisions which he says could result in municipalities having to send out huge volumes of unnecessary correspondence.

In a letter to Lorimer, Curtis deplores the "impractability" of a recent amendment to the act requiring municipalities to notify by mail all owners and occupiers of property affected by a rezoning or land use contract application.

He points out that the word "rezoning" has not been used in the municipal Act previously, is not defined and is, therefore, open to loose interpretation.

Curtis says he believes those who drafted the amendment intended it to mean an application by an owner or other person with interest in land and buildings, to change their use.

But it could also be argued, he states, that the term rezoning embraces any change in the general framework of zones and zoning regulations by a municipality.

A case in point, says Curtis, is the Saanich zoning bylaw designed to protect flood-prone areas of the municipality.

If the Municipal Act provisions were carried out to the letter, it would mean Saanich being "severely hampered" by having to send notifications to "every owner and occupier within every zone containing a stream, lake or coastline" Curtis says.

He suggests the ambiguities be removed by passing another amendment at the current fall session of the legislature.

Grower Protests Seizure

NANAIMO (CP) — The president of the United Fruit Growers (UFG) said Sunday he will consider legal action regarding the seizure of a truckload of fruit destined for a Nanaimo farmers' market.

Hans Rhenisch said about 12 RCMP and British Columbia Fruit Marketing Board officials seized the truckload of apples and pears at Hope, Saturday night and said UFG lawyers were checking into the warrant under which the seizure was made.

Rhenisch said the truck was travelling alone, but a caravan of produce for the Gastown market in Vancouver got through.

Nigel Taylor, chairman of the fruit board, said the seven tons seized had been illegally removed from the Hayne's Co-Operative Growers' Exchange at Oliver.

He said it was believed the fruit was owned by Rhenisch.

Taylor said the apples and pears will be disposed of by the fruit board through orderly marketing channels.

The UFG has staged a number of fruit caravans from the Okanagan to the coast to protest what it considers inadequate marketing of British Columbia tree fruits and low prices.

Amateur Radio Network Tested

Commercial broadcasters assisted Sunday in what B.C. Civil Defence officials considered a successful test of a province-wide amateur radio network.

Commercial radio and television stations aired a message from Civil Defence to the members of the amateur network, requesting them to test the system.

M. A. Considinet, provincial communication officer for civil defence, said first reports indicated more than 100 amateur stations throughout B.C. went into action shortly after hearing the message.

Boom Year for Farmers

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Island farmers have enjoyed a boom year, but it's still far from being a viable operation, say Saanich growers.

The boom year is reflected in the total value of commodities produced—berries, vegetables, tree fruits—tentatively estimated to be more than $3 million.

Prices for farm produce have been stable and, in some cases, the highest ever, says Ian Vantreight, who with his father, Geoff, operate one of the largest farms in Saanich.

But despite the higher returns some growers have received for their produce, he points out it will take several years before a farmer can say he is making a profit.

"He has to make up for losses of past years," he explained. "This year's returns still does not permit him to operate a farm as he should—operating costs are always rising."

What helped many farms this year was the sudden rise in the price of early potatoes due to a shortage in California. It's a main crop for a large number of growers. The Island produces about two million pounds of earlies and about 19 million pounds of mid-season and late spuds.

Tom Michell of Central Saanich, said early potatoes sold at $200.05 a ton, compared to about $118 in 1972.

"I believe this is the highest price ever received."

However, he noted, prices declined as the season progressed and at the moment the price being paid for one variety of potatoe, is slightly less than last year.

"Except for onions, I don't think we can complain of prices received for vegetables," he said. "But next year we may be operating at a loss. For example, there is no guarantee that we will get the same price for early potatoes."

Dixon Holloway, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association, and a loganberry grower, said this year's drought drastically reduced the crop.

"But higher prices paid for logans and strawberries made up for the loss," he said.

Association members, he said, produced 96 tons of logans and 125 tons of strawberries.

Looking ahead," he added, "things are looking better for the berry grower."

The Island greenhouse industry—an important segment of agriculture—also report receiving stable prices for tomatoes and cucumbers. Total number of square feet under glass on the Island is 1,613,458.

But greenhouse operator Jack Arnaud says the industry has reached a critical stage.

The future of the industry will largely depend on whether meaningful legislation is passed by the government this year," he said. While we were able to move our tomatoes, we never know when we are going to be left in the lurch. We are at the mercy of the wholesaler."

Arnaud believes operators should have the same bargaining rights as other groups in society.

Clyde Snobelen, president of the Vancouver Island Nurserymen's Association, said traditionally prices for farm products is based on supply and demand.

"This no longer can be," he said. "B.C. agriculture is existing in a special environment. In order to survive the grower must have fair returns for his produce."

"Consumers must be prepared to pay higher prices for food," he said. "Wages have increased for everyone but the grower and his help."

Brezhnev Says China Spurned Peace Pact

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, said today the Kremlin had offered to sign a non-aggression pact with China but that Peking had ignored the offer.

Speaking in the Central Asian city of Tashkent, he accused the Chinese leadership of "continuing their line of frenzied anti-Sovietism and opposition to the easing of international tension."

The Soviet leader said the offer — kept secret until today — had been made to Peking in mid-June "but it is characteristic that the Chinese did not even reply."

Brezhnev said the proposed Moscow-Peking pact would have included "undertakings not to attack each other with any type of weapon on land, sea or air and to refrain from threatening to use weapons."

The speech was delivered at a ceremony during which he presented an award of the Friendship of the Peoples, recently instituted by the Soviet government, to the Republic of Uzbekistan of which Tashkent is the capital.

Soviet Central Asia, of which Uzbekistan is a part, shares a long border with China and in the past there have been frequent reports of clashes in frontier areas between Chinese and Soviet troops.

Brezhnev said the Soviet Union "consistently and invariably spoke out for a normalization of relations with China and even more — for the restoration of Soviet-Chinese friendship."

JAYCEES LAUNCH A PEOPLE 'UNIT'

A. J. Faulkner has been elected president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce's new "people unit" — Victoria's first unit to allow females within the membership.

The unit which received its charter Saturday is one of two groups on the Island to allow female membership — the other, in Duncan, was the first in the province.

Faulkner said membership, which stretches from Victoria to the centre of the Malahat, is at a 60-40 ratio with the largest percentage being females.

He said although none of the women members is in a decision-making position in the business world, "let's face it they will be someday."

He added joint membership is the "coming thing."

Other executive members installed Saturday are: Marlene Mondoux, vice-president; Neil Robertson, treasurer; Christine Shaw, secretary; Jennie Nelson, internal director; Patricia Shannon, external director.

NEW GRAIN POLICY TAGGED A FRAUD

SASKATOON (CP) — Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, said today that the new federal feed grains policy is a "fraud and a swindle of all Western grain producers."

Atkinson, in a prepared statement, said Agricultural Products Board prices announced last week "represent nothing more than a smokescreen to tranquilize Western grain growers and obscure the real sell-out of their interests to the feed grain trade in Canada."

He accused Otto Lang, minister in charge of the Canadian Wheat Board, of "devious tactics and glib statements of support for orderly marketing when in fact the Canadian Wheat Board was being emasculated and grain farmers stand to lose millions of dollars."

The Agricultural Products Board Thunder Bay price for barley of $1.98 a bushel and $1.16 for oats would mean a loss to farmers who sell to the APB of 58 cents a bushel for barley and 11 cents a bushel for oats.

Atkinson said farmers are under the impression that the AFB offer-to-purchase price will represent the price at which British Columbia and Eastern buyers will purchase feed grains.

This was not the case. The price such buyers woud be asked to pay would be a so-called "monitored price" calculated from prices Prairie feed mills were offering to pay for off-board grain.

This price could be much lower than the AFB offer-to-purchase price and would be the base price at which B.C. and Eastern buyers would be able to purchase feed grains from the wheat board.

New Protein Discovery Curls, Waves Hair
Women's News

No matter how straight and hard to curl your hair is, now you can thrill to such soft, lovely, natural-looking curls and waves everyone will think you were born with naturally waved hair . . . all without permanent waving solutions. This new kind of hair lotion is called Perform . . . it performs hair waving miracles never dreamed possible only a few short months ago.

Perform, with protein, is already used by thousands of hairdressers in leading beauty salons in the United States. Not only does Perform impart lovely curls and waves without that "set" old country look, but its protein lotion saturates every hair strand from root to tip with a body-rich resiliency that holds the set even in a steamy shower bath.

Simple and so delightful to apply, just shampoo, apply Perform, put your hair up on curlers or pins . . . then let dry. The soft, silky curls and waves fall naturally into place and your hair shapes into your favorite style with merely a flick of your comb! And no matter how damp the weather, your hair stays neat and wavy longer than ever before! Very important Perform is safe for all types and texture hair. Will not fade or strip color from dyed or bleached hair.

Perform is offered by leading drug and department stores everywhere for only $1.75 for enough to curl and wave the hair of eight girls or women. The manufacturer guarantees full satisfaction or return for purchase price refund. For even better results be sure to use new Perform Protein Shampoo with natural herbs.

Greenpeace Not 'Prime Topic'

NEW YORK (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the boarding of the Canadian protest yacht Greenpeace III would not be a major subject at his meeting today with French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert.

Interviewed Sunday en route here for three days of diplomatic talks during the opening of the UN General Assembly, Sharp said there was "very little" he could add to the notes already sent the French government asking for an investigation of the incident.

The minister said the boarding, during which Captain David MacTaggart of Vancouver claimed he was beaten by French sailors, would be "one topic" in his talks with Jobert at UN headquarters this afternoon. "But it will not be the prime topic," he added.

"We have already asked for an investigation and informed the French that we are taking depositions from MacTaggart and his crew and that if there is evidence, we will espouse MacTaggart's cause. There is not very much more that I can say."

The French navy originally denied that its sailors carried weapons when they boarded the Greenpeace in their nuclear test zone in the south Pacific in August and asserted MacTaggart injured his

Public Housing Tenants to Meet

A meeting to organize a provincial association of tenants of public housing projects will be held in Vancouver, Oct. 1.

One of the organizers, Mrs. Lou Jordison, president of Victoria's Blanshard Courts Tenants Association, said today a major effort to organize tenants of housing projects in northern B.C. is under way.

The provincial body was planned at a government-sponsored national conference public housing tenants held in Quebec in September.

BUTCHART GARDENS. OPEN EVERY DAY 9 A.M. - 9 P.M. Many pleasing features combine to add to your pleasure. Regular admission at the International Entrance covers them all: Entertainment . . . Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars" . . . romantic after-dark illumination . . . 6 gardens — fabulous Sunken Garden, English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens . . . plus the Begonia Bower, Show Greenhouse, fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Restaurant and coffee bar service available.

BUTCHART GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Adding a touch of hilarity in a musical way the "Butchart Gardeners" will entertain you Mon.-Fri. inclusive 5:30-7:30 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon 1:00-3:00 p.m. a group of zany but very talented musicians "The Butchart Buskers" with John Dunbar, will provide the fun. Plus color films every evening of the week at dusk. "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains of the Sea."

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand, thrifty outing — the Gardens by daylight . . . entertainment . . . romantic night lighting . . . featuring the Sunken Gardens . . . and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers it all. For added pleasure, dine in the Floral Restaurant.

England's Next Queen?

LONDON — Lady Jane Wellesley described today as "utter nonsense" a newspaper report that she will marry Prince Charles.

The 22-year-old society beauty told reporters at her London home:

"There is no truth in the story and I don't know where the rumor came from.

"I do know Prince Charles, but so do a lot of other young girls."

The Sunday News of the World had reported that Lady Jane blushed when asked whether she was going to be the next queen of England.

It quoted her as saying: "We'll see about that. We mustn't jump the gun. It might all be wishful thinking."

Buckingham Palace later dismissed the story as "pure newspaper speculation."

Charles, 24, is one of the world's most eligible bachelors. Lady Jane is a descendant of the Duke of Wellington.

McGovern Undecided

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern says he will continue to speak out on major issues, but denied Saturday he has made a decision whether to run again for president in 1976.

McGovern, responding to a syndicated column by Tom Braden saying he told financial advisers he would run again, said, "Although I intend to speak out on national and international questions, I have made no decisions either privately or publicly to run for the presidency again.

"I have my hands full with responsibilities in the senate and in South Dakota."

McGovern is seeking re-election to the senate next year.

DIEF'S SPIKE 100 YEARS LATE

OWEN SOUND, Ont.—John Diefenbaker drove a gold spike into the ground here Saturday—100 years after the founding of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway.

The former prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker were among railway enthusiasts and weekend travellers who boarded a special 14-car train at Toronto's Union Station for a 290-mile round trip to Owen Sound to mark the anniversary.

The excursion was sponsored by the Upper Canada Railway Society in conjunction with Canadian National Railways and CP Rail.

The railway, which operated between the provincial capital and communities in the two counties bordering Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, was absorbed by CP Rail in 1884.

BRIGHTON, England—Actor Sir Laurence Olivier scuffled with a burglar in his home during the weekend, suffering a cut on his forehead.

His wife, actress Joan Plowright, said Olivier surprised the burglar in the library of their seaside home Saturday.

"The burglar hit him and broke his glasses," she said. "He was not badly hurt."

SANTIAGO — Pablo Neruda, 69, the Chilean poet who won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1971, died of cancer Sunday.

Neruda, a Communist, was a former senator in the Chilean Congress and an ambassador to France.

CARLTON, England—Little Simon Barwell's sunflower just wouldn't grow, no matter how often he watered it.

Simon, 5, who planted the seed himself, finally poured some of his father's home-brewed beer on the plant. It is now 12 feet high.

Vatican Waits

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has taken no "formal action" regarding its relations with the new Chilean government, Vatican press spokesman Federico Allesandrini said Sunday.

Sabicas' Guitar Did the Talking

By BRYAN HAY
Times Staff

This is the time of year to enjoy flamenco guitar — when the chill winds begin to roar off the strait bringing with them the bite of the first rains of winter.

At such times, one can thoroughly be transported to the warmth of the Iberian peninsula through the magic of flying fingers coaxing forth the classic folk melodies of Spain.

Especially when the fingers belong to a player as talented as Sabicas, who played two concerts at the McPherson Saturday and Sunday.

It is also when listening to flamenco played by a performer such as this Andulusan gypsy who is now the acknowledged "king of flamenco" — although, acknowledged by whom I do not know — that one realizes the wider implications of the flying fingering and fretwork of this unique style of guitar.

Flamenco is more than just brave and flamboyant riffs strummed while a skinny fellow in tight britches and frilly shirt stomps his feet while an amply-endowed female with raven hair and multi-frilled petticoats twirls about him.

It is the true folk music of a people; sometimes plaintive, often happy, frequently vibrant.

And, as such, shares the complex yet simplistic melodies common to the folk genre of any nation.

Once analyzed and broken into its component parts any of Sabicas' offerings would be easily copied by any guitar novice.

But what he could not copy would be the verve, flair and feeling that Sabicas pours into his music.

Therein lies the difference: Why Sabicas is worth five dollars a ticket and the teenager next door only better soundproofing on his bedroom door.

The consummate artistry of the man was only underscored by his lack of oral communication with his audience — Sabicas speaks no English, not even the basics — leaving his guitar as the only communication.

But that spoke more eloquently than any voice could have done.

National Purpose—Or Chaos

WINNIPEG (CP) — Unless some sort of national purpose is developed, with a consequent realignment of priorities, Canada could be headed for chaos and anarchy, delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce were told Sunday.

Senator Maurice Lamontagne said the rapid growth of a variety of institutions, including labor and farm movements, has produced a "feverish struggle for contending appetites."

Each seeks to assert its own economic and social priorities, he said, and the system of countervailing forces inevitably leads to conflicts.

"It is the decision-making process, both in the private and public sector, which is failing and bringing growing chaos and anarchy," the former federal state secretary said.

Lamontagne was a panelist at the opening session of the chamber's four-day meeting, being attended by about 500 delegates. Agreement on his basic theme came from the other two panelists.

W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said "there are so many different priorities, pushed upon us from so many different sources, that the result is often a babble."

President A. W. R. Carrothers of the University of Calgary added: "In lack of national purpose we have a vacuum which to the nature of man as a social animal must be abhorrent."

Senator Lamontagne asserted that participatory democracy, combined with rising affluence, better education and better communications, helped lead to increased confrontation. It had replaced the old consensus, previously dominated by industrial leaders, when the majority of the population was "poor, uneducated, fatalistic, passive and obedient."

It did not mean that participatory democracy was bad, he said, only that it was not enough.

No Favors On Ferries

COURTENAY (CP) — Transport Minister Bob Strachan said Saturday that Vancouver Island residents will receive no special consideration from B.C. Ferries.

He told an NDP regional conference all citizens of British Columbia pay taxes to support the government-owned ferry system, so everyone deserves the same consideration.

Meanwhile, Comox NDP MLA Karen Sanford said work on a highway to Northern Vancouver Island will go ahead full speed from both ends.

She said she couldn't give a definite completion date for the North Island Road, but said the government will spend as much money as necessary to finish the highway between Kelsey Bay and Port McNeill. She estimated the cost at $15 million.

700 Freed

MANILA, Phillippines (AP) — The military announced Sunday that 700 political prisoners have been released from detention centres around the country.

SEA RESCUE 'JUST IN TIME'

HONOLULU (AP) — The rescue of two Seventh-Day Adventist teachers came just in time to save the life of one of them, the master of the British freighter "Benalder" said Saturday.

James Fisher, 26, and Robert Tininenko, 34, were rescued by the freighter Friday, midway between Hawaii and San Diego.

"The younger one had just about reached the end of his tether," said ship's master Angus Mackenzie via radiotelephone.

"He was very emaciated, but he's improving now. They both had a couple of plates of solid food today."

Despite his weakened condition, Fisher was as concerned about his pregnant wife, Wilma, as he was about himself, Mackenzie said.

Mrs. Fisher, of Moss Lake, Wash. is Tininenko's sister.

The Benalder sighted the hull of the capsized 31-foot Trimaran Thursday, but saw no signs of life. The Coast Guard in Honolulu persuaded the ship to return for a closer look.

Mackenzie said the two men had cut a hole in the main body of their homemade craft, and lived inside on a diet of sardines, peanut butter and rain water.

"That is why we didn't see them," Mackenzie said. "They were too weak to come out and wave."

Tininenko's wife, Linda, was also aboard the ship but died Aug. 11, the survivors said.

Mackenzie said he knew nothing else about her death. "I haven't really asked," he said. "I didn't want to upset them."

Abortion Trial Protested

TORONTO (CP) — About 50 women and 20 men, including at least three doctors, marched through a section of downtown Saturday to protest the abortion trial of Dr. Henry Morgentaler of Montreal, due to begin today in that city.

Dr. Gus Tolentino, a Toronto psychiatrist and physician, told a rain-drenched rally in Nathan Phillips Square that Canada's abortion law is "condemned by the majority of people" in the country.

He called for the dropping of 10 charges against Dr. Morgentaler of performing illegal abortions.

Dr. Stanley Eaman, a psychiatrist at McMaster University in Hamilton, said he is setting up a Hamilton committee supporting Dr. Morgentaler.

Stolen Files Recovered

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says confidential files stolen Aug. 30 from the Indian affairs department were recovered Sunday night by the RCMP in baggage lockers in Central Station.

The newspaper says the documents were retrieved after Nick Auf Der Maur, Quebec editor for The Last Post, a left-wing political magazine, received an anonymous telephone call from a man who told him the lockers contained "documents which would interest Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien."

Auf Der Maur telephoned the RCMP who, after obtaining a search warrant, had station police open the four lockers identified by the anonymous caller.

TAX BILL COMES HIGH

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Bill Wiberg, 50, a house painter, knew he owed the United States government some back taxes.

It was "around $130," he said.

But his wife, who opened a bill from the Internal Revenue Service, told him: "It's a little more than you thought it would be."

The IRS said he had until Wednesday to pay $33,037,817.07.

The IRS blamed the mixup on a computer error.

Polyanthus a Winner For Shaded Gardens

Colorful plants are wanted for half shady spots in the garden or for apartment balconies receving only occasional sunshine in spring. What could be prettier than polyanthuses?

In case you don't know the name, these should really be called Primula polyanthus for they are the many flowered primula, with stout five-inch stems of long lasting blossoms.

It is not easy to pin their season to any set number of weeks, for these plants respond to cool moist weather at almost any time of the year. If they are young and healthy, bud clusters may be seen in fall deep down in the leafy crowns.

When a massive display is wanted, these precocious bud stems are rubbed out, but I'm quite sure no balcony gardener would stoop to do this. Rather would it be a matter for great delight in enjoying an unexpected treat in fall when perhaps no other flowers were in the planters.

If the old blossom stem is promptly removed when the florets fade, the plant will likely produce several more later.

In the garden, it is customary to lift polyanthus plants in late spring when they cease flowering, divide them into separate crowns (pieces each with a set of roots) and put them into a partially shaded border to grow all summer. Each small division makes a new healthy young flowering plant.

In the cool moist days of late September, each plant is carefully lifted with a good ball of soil around its roots for replanting where it is wanted in bloom.

The colors of Polyanthus flowers range from palest cream through yellow to deep bronze, and through pink shades to dark maroon; lavender and purple are also seen, but rarely a real blue.

Foliage is ornamental all year excepting during a hard frost. Twiggy conifer boughs arched over the plants reduce cold weather damage, but they must be removed as soon as temperatures again resume a normal range, say between 25 and 35 degs. F. The leaves are deeply veined and four to five inches long by about two inches wide.

It is unfortunate that polyanthus are seldom seen for sale in fall though it is the time gardeners are putting their home raised plants into place. Commercial growers of the plants will be the most likely to have them for sale at this time.

With some of the small bulbs like blue chionodoxa, muscari or scilla put in between for early bloom, tubs, planters or beds of Primula polyanthus reward you with many weeks of pleasant companionship.

The blossoms when picked for small vases indoors have an elusive perfume noticeable when on a small meal table. To enhance the perfume, add a couple of scented violets.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is a fact that deceptive tactics in play are used much more often by declarer than by the defenders. The logical reason for this is that declarer can't ever mislead his partner, the inanimate dummy. But when a defender employs a deceptive play, he is quite apt to mislead his thinking partner. This can result not only in a material loss, but it can also become the cause of a strained partnership relationship.

Nevertheless, situations do arise where a deceptive play by a defender can be the only correct play. Such was the case in today's deal, in which our West defender made a deceptive opening lead which was deliberately calculated to mislead partner. The lead achieved the desired result.

North-South vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♠	Dbl.	Pass	6 ◇
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

The bidding around the table was both sound and imaginative. West's opening four-spade bid was according "to the book": with seven winners in his hand, he was three tricks short of his nonvulnerable four-spade call. When North doubled West's bid, South, looking at his powerhouse hand, felt that his side could make a slam. So South bid it directly, although he probably should have used the Blackwood Convention first to check for aces.

The standard lead from a K-Q-J combination is the king, the top of a sequence of adjacent high cards. But West chose to make the deceptive, unorthodox lead of the spade queen, thereby denying possession of the king. East took the queen with his ace, and perceived the futility of returning a spade (South figured to have the spade king).

From East's point of view, it seemed equally hopeless to play back either a diamond or a club. So he returned a heart — and West ruffed, for the setting trick.

Had West opened the spade king, it would either have won the trick, or East would have overtaken it with the ace, to return his remaining spade. In either case, declarer would have fulfilled his contract.

But, from the outset, West knew that the defenders couldn't ever cash two spade tricks, for if East had two spades, then either dummy or declarer had at most a singleton. So West led the spade queen, hoping that his partner had the ace, and would then return a heart. And so it was.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"Loan me four bucks," said Sally. "I'll pay you back tomorrow."

Steve checked his cash. "I don't have that much," he told her. "But here's something funny. If I had four dollars more and four cents less I'd have just three times what I've got."

How much did he have?

Thanks for an idea to Ann Bates, Toledo, Ohio.

Culp to Retire

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran right-hander pitcher Ray Culp says he will retire at the end of this season with Boston Red Sox. Culp, who tried to make a comeback after undergoing shoulder surgery, reported for spring training with the American League baseball team as a free agent and spent two months in the minors before being called up in early June. He was returned to the disabled list in early July.

8 CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all who gave toward the building fund of Douglas Street Baptist Church in memory of my husband, John A. Kelly. We also wish to express our thanks toward those sending beautiful cards of sympathy, not to be forgotten my Ex-Wren Association.
—Mrs. Janet Kelly

Our thanks to friends and neighbors for their kindnesses and floral tributes during the loss of our beloved husband and father, Eddie Davies. A special thanks to Dr. Cronheim for his help and kindness, also the staff of Central One, Veteran's Hospital.
—Edie and Marion Davies

We wish to extend our thanks and gratitude to our relatives, friends and neighbours, for their sympathy and kindness in our time of sorrow at the passing of our dear husband and loving father, Vic Morley.
—Biddy and Anne Morley

Our many thanks to Dr. Muth, the Matron and Staff of Glenwarren Private Hospital for their care and attention. To our friends and neighbours for their kindness and floral tributes on the recent bereavement of our uncle William J. Berryman, from members of the family.

8 CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my deepest thanks to all my friends, and neighbors of my apartment, for their kindness and sympathy shown through cards, letters, floral offerings and donations to the Heart Fund, in the recent loss of my dear husband, P. D. G. Sanderson. To Dr. S. Kenning, I extend my gratitude for his tireless efforts—Mrs. P. D. G. Sanderson.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BROWN—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Herb Brown who passed away September 23rd, 1951.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who though absent is just as dear.
Sadly missed, Mom, Edie and Linda.

FISH AND CHIPS

The location of this very successful old established business lends itself to versatility. At present it's a "take out only" business but with some changes this could be changed to a combination "sit in-take out" or what have you. At present it nets over $7,000 per annum with just 3½ hours work per day. The zoning is right, the location is right and the price of $34,500 is right. Owner says bring me a reasonable offer. 34 ACRES BEAUTIFUL NEW HOME

Just 30 miles from Victoria. Absolute privacy on a quiet side road. There are approximately 10 acres in meadow, the balance is wooded. Riding trails wind through large cedars, maples, arbutus and firs. The Shake roof and cedar siding exterior of this 2,000 sq. ft. home blend with the surrousdings. Inside, from the entrance foyer, you step into a big living room with natural finish wood walls and enormous windows and one wall of floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace. The ceiling runs with the roof in this room, there are gable end windows and indirect night lighting. Floors throughout are wall-to-wall carpet except main bathroom, 1 bedroom, kitchen and mud rooms which are vinyl. There's a spacious study with stone fireplace, big windows and a wall of bookshelves. The dining room is family size as is the kitchen. The mud room-utility is bright, spacious and practical. There's a powder room off the living room. The bedroom wing has 3 big bedrooms, the master with a spacious en-suite bathroom. A big main bathroom and large storage cupboards. The price of $90,000 is a long way below replacement costs and the house is new. Such properties are extremely rare.

Lethal War Gas Mixed in Shell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The army plans to produce a new kind of nerve gas, composed of two relatively harmless chemicals which become lethal only after they are fired in an artillery shell and mix together on their way to a target.

The United States has renounced the use of nerve gas and other chemical weapons, but maintains a "deterrent stockpile" in case another country uses them first.

First word of the army decision came Sunday from Rep. Les Aspin, (D.-Wis.), a frequent critic of the Pentagon. He accused the army of "quietly" going ahead with what he called "a major escalation of the balance of terror."

The army denied both charges, saying it had previously told congress a switch to so-called "binary" nerve gas had been envisioned "in the next five years" and that the new gas is "no more powerful nor less powerful" than existing stocks which it will replace. Production is to begin in 1977.

The binary gas consists of two chemicals which are said to be relatively harmeless until mixted together. The army said one chemical would be manufactured and loaded into artillery shells at its Pine Bluff, Ark., arsenal.

The second, purchased from commercial manufacturers, would be stored separately until it is loaded into the projectile near the firing site. When the shell is fired, a membrane separating the chemicals breaks, and they are swirled together as the shell spins to its target.

The army says the system will be safer than existing nerve gases, which have occasionally caused public scares, for example when sheepherders in the western United States blamed the gas for deaths of thousands of sheep.

Rep. Edward Hebert (D—La.), chairman of the house armed services committee, called Aspin's remarks "demagoguery" and said that "if Mr. Aspin has any evidence or can document any wrongdoing in this particular instance, then again I say 'put up or shut up.' "

Original Met Back

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets have purchased right-handed pitcher Robert L. Miller from Detroit Tigers thus re-acquiring a member of the original 1962 Mets.

Miller, 34, started the season in the National League with San Diego.

The American League's Tigers purchased him June 22, thus enabling Miller to tie Dick Littlefield's major-league record by pitching for 10 different clubs.

Golf Executive Dies on Course

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Frank Hole, 66, one of Britain's most respected golf officials, collapsed and died at Muirfield's 13th tee Saturday while watching the Ryder Cup matches.

Hole was a vice-president of the British Professional Golfers' Association and a member of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews.

Newmarket Wins

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Newmarket won the Canadian major fastball championship Saturday with a 5-1 decision over Winnipeg in the fifth game of the best-of-seven final. Leading in games by 3-0, Newmarket dropped Saturday's first game, 2-1, but bounced back for a 5-1 decision.

Cleveland Shuffle

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians have reshuffled their coaching staff but announced that manager Ken Aspromonte will be back next season. General manager Phil Seghi accepted the resignations of coaches Warren Spahn, Joe Lutz and Rocky Colavito and then said two new coaches will be Clay Bryant and Tony Pacheco.

Assistants' Champ

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Klatt, 25, from the Riverside Golf Club at Edmonton, fired a final-round three-over-par 73 for a 54-hole total of 218 at the Royal Montreal Gold Club to win the Canadian assistant professionals championship at the weekend.

Marijuana Now Eyed As Useful Anesthetic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A dozen volunteers are being given marijuana in a study to see how it works as an anesthetic.

Dr. Theodore Smith, head of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital team making the study, says the weed holds promise as an anesthetic but it will be at least another year before marijuana can be given to a surgical patient.

Each volunteer is strapped to a table, a mask is placed over the face to monitor breathing, and marijuana dissolved in alcohol is inserted into the heart through a tube entering the body at the neck and routed through blood vessels.

The solution must be inserted this way because marijuana won't dissolve in water and it is extremely painful to inject alcohol with a hypodermic syringe, Smith said.

The researchers hope the large doses of marijuana — 1,000 times the amount of active ingredients in a puff from a marijuana cigarette — will replace a large variety of drugs now required for surgical patients, without the undesirable side effects.

To make it practical, however, biochemists would have to produce a form of marijuana that could be dissolved in water for injection.

The Buoys and Girls

By JACK SCHREIBMAN

SANCTUARY (AP) — The sailor in faded dungarees nibbled affectionately on the neck of the sailor ahead as they waited in a crowded chow line. Nobody lifted an eyebrow.

On the main deck, another pair of swab-jockeys walked hand in hand, gazing blissfully out on a calm sea about 20 miles off the California coast. Nobody turned a head.

It's all part of the somewhat hilarious revolution in the United States Navy, where the first women shipboard sailors in 200 years of history are proving they can pull their weight alongside the men. The stage for the historic experiment is the 14,892-ton hospital ship USS Sanctuary. The skipper, Capt. Thomas Rodgers maintains the experiment is working.

The Sanctuary's 63 enlisted women sailors work side by side with the men, sharing all duties including scrubdowns, watch standing, garbage-hauling, knot-tying, lugging around heavy equipment and huge hawsers, painting, gold-bricking and shoreside binges.

AFFAIRS DEVELOP

It is common knowledge aboard the 30-year-old ship that considerable fraternization goes on in many nooks and crannies offered by any big vessel. But all hands remain casual about it, including the handsome, 43-year-old skipper.

"You'd have to be an ostrich not to believe some liaisons are going on," Rodgers grinned. "I don't personally know about them."

"It's natural," said a beautiful, blue-eyed deck monkey scrubbing down a scupper drain. "We're healthy girls, you know."

Although contraceptive pills are available to any distaff sailors who ask, pregnancies have happened on the ship, some of the women said.

"They do it to get off the ship," said one. "Not everybody likes this duty."

One who does is Seaman Anneliese Knapp of Delavan, Wis., an orphan who said she looks on her captain "like a father."

"He doesn't know me, but I think he's great," she said.

RELAXED GREETING

She spotted the skipper on a wing of the bridge, gave him a big smile and a wave. on the bridge, Rodgers, more accustomed to salutes, leaned against a stanchion and laughed.

"She's cute," he said.

The women, of course, have brought dramatic changes to the spit-and-polish of the naval vessel.

In the segregated women's berthing spaces up forward, the girls drape colorful blankets on their bunks rather than the drab navy issue. there also are dozens of stuffed animals on bunks.

The feminine touch is present throughout the ship — a pink ribbon around a waterpipe, a pink telephone in one of the offices, baskets tagged. Incoming Goodies and Outgoing Goodies.

Hardly any cussing at all was heard on the ship in two days the Sanctuary steamed off the coast with a handful of reporters and photographers as guests.

MEN ENCOURAGED

The experiment, said Rogers, "seems to have provided some incentives for the young (male) sailors with respect to the way they look, the way they conduct themselves and their language. And in many cases, they might work a little harder because they're embarrassed if a girl comes along and does a job better than they do, which does happen."

Seaman Susan Telesea of Brooklyn, N.Y., a deck division member, said she enjoys boatswain work.

"I like it outside," she said. "I like being useful. the men work us pretty hard, but after a while they get used to us and we're just one of the group."

The navy at sea traditionally provides even the lowest swabjockey an opportunity to advance in rank. the women of the Sanctuary have not been napping.

Lieut. Ann Kerr of Aptos, Calif., became the first woman line officer in U.S. history aboard Sanctuary after attending deck-officers school at San Diego. A slim, intense woman, she now is authorized to stand watches as junior officer of the deck on the bridge while the ship is under way, assisting in navigation.

Wine With No Alcohol On Market

TORONTO (CP) — A by-product of brandy is being marketed in Canada as an alcohol-free wine.

It was first made in Germany about 70 years ago, at a time when the abstinence movement was booming. It is being introduced in this country under a Counterweight label, for a firm that makes products for people who want to lose weight. They say it contains eight calories an ounce.

Dr. Otto Jung of Rudesheimam-Rhein, says his father developed the process of vacuum distillation at low temperatures that produces the de-alcoholized wine instead of the "spent liquor" usually produced when brandy is distilled from wine.

Dr. Jung is managing partner of Carl Jung Wines.

He says the drink is already marketed in Scandinavia, Arabrian countries, were religion prohibits the use of alcohol, and Australia.

He says the people who buy it usually cannot drink alcohol either out of conviction or for health reasons.

"It's not like grape juice. Grape juice can't taste like wine, because it's not fermented yet."

GM COVERED UP DEFECTS: NADER

DETROIT (AP) — The director of Ralph Nader's Centre for Auto Safety says the centre has obtained internal company documents and memoranda which describe critical safety defects in General Motors Corp. cars.

Interviewed on a local radio station Sunday, Lowell Dodge said the documents and memoranda indicate all 1968 through 1972 Cadillacs have faulty power steering and power brake systems.

Dodge said the centre is preparing a report on what he termed GM's "phantom brakes" and its "power brake check valve," which he charged is defective.

He said company papers acquired by the centre include car owners' complaints to GM concerning brakes which fail to work upon one application but work perfectly when tried again.

Dodge said the company documents indicate GM engineers admit they have no idea what causes the brake failure.

He also reported customers have complained of a brake loss allegedly caused by a "power brake check valve."

Dodge said the valve is constructed of a plastic which cracks under the high operating temperatures of modern cars. The crack causes brakes to lose fluid-pressure and braking-power, he said.

A spokesman for General Motors said company officials could not comment on Dodge's charges until they have seen his report.

RIGGS PLANS BRIDGE JUMP

ATLANTA (AP) — Bobby Riggs, who lost an exhibition tennis match to Billie Jean King, plans to fulfil a promise to jump off a bridge.

The 55-year-old Riggs had said that if he lost the so-called Battle of the Sexes Thursday night, he would leap from Suicide Bridge in Pasadena, Calif. Riggs lost in straight sets.

However, he told an Atlanta news conference Friday he will jump from the London Bridge, instead.

He said the Suicide Bridge is wired up "so I can't make it there, but I will go to the London Bridge at Lake Havasu (Arizona) by Wednesday or Thursday and take the leap."

Riggs is in Atlanta today for an exhibition match.

Emerging from the plane that brought him from Houston, Riggs told reporters he feels "lousy". What happened to me shouldn't have happened to a dog. . . .

"I don't want to take anything away from Billie Jean's victory. She played superbly. I must say I got a little carried away. I really felt there was no way I could lose."

Riggs, the 1939 Wimbledon singles champion, added, "Billie Jean has earned my respect. My hat is off to her. I dished it out pretty good and now I have to be a gentleman and take it."

. . . And Tooth-Saver

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto dentist who says marijuana may be the latest weapon against tooth decay.

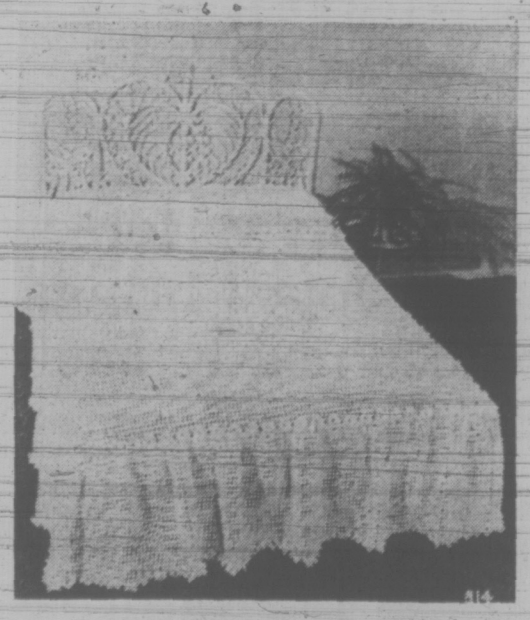
Dr. Harry Slade, 63, said in an interview Sunday he can always tell which patients smoke marijuana "and that sometimes alarms them."

What gives them away is the amount of food plaque — the carbohydrate residue of food that coats the teeth.

Regular marijuana smokers have little or no plaque, he said, but he doesn't know why.

The result is fewer cavities because it's the plaque that combined with saliva to etch away at tooth enamel, he said.

COUTURE PATTERN



By LOIS HOLMES

Unlimited uses of the fantastic floral mesh collection are further extended in this multiple offering.

True beginner's crochet is used in all the items which range from lovely household crochet to a charming cardigan. The raised blossoms combined in various designs accent each piece for a total look of unique crochet.

Dainty clustered flowers border the bedspread, shown above, which features a magnificent floral arrangement and directions include sizes from Twin to King. The placemats and napkin rings will enhance any talbe setting and make splendid gifts that will be welcome any time.

The beautiful pillow has contrasting cluster blossoms to fit into any room decor, complemented by a fabulously fringed afghan. Diamonds of blossoms adorn the soft graceful cardigan which is edged with dainty clusters. New Lands Policy On Way: Williams

NARAMATA (CP) — A new, more responsible land-use policy is developing in British Columbia and provincial government departments are changing to meet the new policies, provincial minister of land, forests and water resources, Robert Williams, said Sunday.

Williams told about 170 delegates to the Man and Resources conference the government is trying to change the attitudes of existing departments rather than establishing new departments.

The environmental and land use committee, established by the previous government, was an example of a "vehicle that could be developed," he said.

The resources minister also said the provincial civil service has been repressed and understaffed for 20 years. The civil service is now being encouraged to speak out, he said.

In the lands branch there was no engineer, planner or biologist, he said, and because of a staff shortage there are no maps showing land ownership.

In the final plenary session of the three-day conference, delegates passed nearly 275 recommendations for consideration by the federal and provincial governments.

"I think you have a fair reason to expect what you are proposing to become policy," Williams said.

The delegates compiled recommendations, more than 250 of them, into a brief summary to be forwarded to the two governments.

The statement said preservation of ecological systems requires a stable population and stable use of natural resources.

"We call on the provincial and federal governments to publicly recognize this reality; to open a dialogue with the Canadian people; to promote redirection of all our activities within a framework of a stable society, vital, diverse and changing; with no net addition to population or resource consumption," the summary said.

The conference was the result of two years work by various organizations.

The recommendations of the conference will be discussed at a national Man and Resources Conference to be held in Toronto later this year.

4 Killed On Roads In B.C.

At least four people died in traffic accidents in British Columbia on the weekend.

Robert Cowe, 11, of Vancouver, was killed Friday night when he was hit by a car as he crossed a Vancouver street.

Donald Wayne Smith, 27, of Abbotsford, died after his car was in collision with a tractor-trailer truck early Saturday at Matsqui.

On the Sugarcane Indian Reserve, near Williams Lake, Charles Dennis Gibson, 18, was killed Saturday when he drove a car into a utility pole.

In Surrey, 35-year-old Chamkaurs Dosanjh died Sunday in a two-car collision.

Socred Hopefuls Make Pitches In Chilliwack

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Social Credit leadership candidate Harvey Schroeder told 125 enthusiastic supporters Sunday that party members "believed we were dead after the last election, but we deceived ourselves."

Schroeder (SC—Chilliwack) told the party's Fraser Valley regional convention Social Credit is gaining support because the New Democratic Party government wants to centralize all power in the cabinet.

If elected party leader at the Nov. 24 leadership convention, Schroeder said he would press for a three-per-cent incentive loan to industry.

He said he would also require able-bodied men who receive welfare to work for the government and would make the insurance industry more competitive if he were leader.

Leadership hopefuls Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) and James Mason, a Burnaby accountant, also addressed the meeting.

McClelland repeated charges he made last week in the legislature against the provincial government bureaucracy.

He said the government is "gouging the taxpayer" by dispensing patronage to "superflacks" while "a free and independent civil service is going down the drain."

Mason, who has never been an MLA, said he did not think a party leader needed to have experience in the legislature.

CP AIR ACCORD REACHED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Agreement was reached Saturday night between CP Air and the airline's striking machinists.

Federal mediator Douglas Cameron announced that both sides had unanimously accepted settlement proposals.

He said terms of the settlement would not be released until ratified by membership of Lodge 764 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

A spokesman for the union negotiating committee said the ratification process would be completed by next weekend.

Cameron said the acceptance capped a full week of intensive negotiations.

The strike by 1,300 CP Air machinists started July 25. Their last contract expired April 30.

CP Air has maintained a flight frequency of about 50 per cent during the strike, with supervisory and other non-union personnel handling much of the work normally done by the machinists.

Weiser Men Now Accept Spurned Pact

BURNABY (CP) — The two-month strike by members of the United Steelworkers of America at the Weiser Lock Company was settled Sunday as 450 members of the union local voted to accept a contract that they had turned down earlier.

The company had said it would shut down its operations in the employees rejected the offer.

The new contract gives workers a 24-per-cent wage increase over two years.

SKULL FOUND NEAR PARK

VANCOUVER (CP) — A human skull has been discovered by divers in waters off Stanley Park.

The skull appeared to have been in the water for about a year and a preliminary investigation showed no indication of foul play, police say.

Paper Plant Destroyed

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Fire of unknown origin has destroyed the rear portion of a building housing one of Canada's oldest newspapers, the Port Hope Guide.

The fire destroyed offset press equipment, the darkroom and 20 tons of newsprint.

A complete collection of the guide dating back to the 1880s plus other editions printed in the 1860s were saved.

Managing editor William Johnson said the paper would continue to publish but would have to be printed elsewhere.

The Evening Guide building opened as the Bank of Upper Canada in 1842. The newspaper moved into the building in 1885 after its beginning as the Port Hope Telegraph in 1881. No estimate of damage was available.

More Import Gas

Amoco Canada Ltd. says it plans to import substantial amounts of natural gas into British Columbia in an effort to make up for some of its sharply reduced production capacity in this province.

The company, which imported 60 million cubic feet per day from the Northwest Territories, will increase this immediately to 90 million cubic feet in order to meet part of its sales commitment to Westcoast Transmission.

In addition, Amoco is speeding up work on a new well in the Northwest Territories that could push this total to 120 million cubic feet.

The company also has a Yukon well it is trying to get into production to supply British Columbia.

Ironically, while B.C. is scurrying for imports, it is exporting to the United States at the rate of 900 million cubic feet per day.

Production problems encountered by Amoco in its Beaver River gas field in northern British Columbia will result in a shortage at peak demand periods this winter.

No homes will be affected, as industry will be expectel

BUMPER GIFT of 800 pounds of salmon was given to Greater Victoria Silver Threads Service members Sunday by the Victoria branch of the Pacific Trollers Association. Another 300 pounds were sent to a Kamloops children's hospital. A PTA spokesman said it is hoped to make it an annual end-of-season event with "a couple of tons" being given away in 1974. IMF Hits Famine First

NAIROBI — The western nations today gave the twin crises of hunger and inflation priority over world monetary reform at the first meeting of their five-day annual session.

The meeting brought together 3,500 delegates from 126 International Monetary Fund member nations — the biggest financial session in history.

It opened to the beat of African drums, the cry of Kenyan dancers and a warning from Kenyan president Jomo Kenyatta that "the world cannot continue on its present course" without disaster.

Monetary reform had been expected to take up most of the five-day meeting. But an agreement Sunday by major industrial nations to produce a reform package within 10 months settled that matter and left the forum open for other matters.

"The world cannot continue on its present course," Kenyatta told delegates in the wood-paneled Kenyatta Conference Centre Hall.

"If it does, monetary and economic situations similar to those of 40 years ago would be inevitable."

While monetary matters figured prominently in this week's discussions, he said, "a more fundamental crisis facing the international community is the economic and social development of the peoples of the Third World. The whole world is watching."

World Bank president Robert S. McNamara announced a record $22 billion budget for 1974-78 to help millions of persons in underdeveloped nations who are "degraded by disease, illiteracy, malnutrition and squalor."

As he spoke, towering Masai tribesmen, driven this year from traditional grasslands by the worst drought in recorded African history, grazed their hungry cattle in Nairobi suburbs within view of the 32-storey conference centre.

Johannese Witteveen, the new IMF managing director, urged the non-Communist nations represented here to work together to halt the onward rush of world-wide inflation, which "could ultimately exact a price that today is only discernible.

"It should be one of our most essential tasks to bring this inflation under control," Wittereen said. He predicted that monetary reform would ease inflationary pressures, but warned that the world still might need "some form of incomes policy to act directly on prices and wages which are not determined competitively."

The original aim of the week-long IMF annual meeting was to revamp the system, which collapsed with this year's decline in the overseas value of the U.S. dollar.

Only two months ago, chances appeared bright for at least some form of agreement on monetary reform at this meeting. Finance ministers from the committee of 20 reported at the time they were near accord.

When the minister's deputies met early this month in Paris, however, they failed to close the remaining gaps, leading to pessimistic predictions about the IMF meeting.

Sunday morning, the committee of 20 met in a basement conference room in Nairobi's new Kenyatta Hall. The two-hour session produced agreement on two points — that U.S.-European differences persist on almost all aspects of reform, but the nations would pledge to resolve the conflicts within 10 months.

Conference sources said one reason the ministers agreed to the compromise was heavy criticisms at home from businessmen and the public over the slow pace of reform.

PROBE HALT SOUGHT

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Vice-President Agnew's lawyer says he will file suit this week to stop the federal investigation of Agnew's alleged involvement in a Maryland kickback scheme because of the flood of news leaks about the case.

The apparent hardening of Agnew's strategy, including formation of a defence fund, came as attention re-focused on the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal after a seven-week recess.

Agnew attorney Judah Best said, "there have been an inordinate number of disclosures that would preclude the right to a fair trial."

Junta Hunts Arms

Times News Services

SANTIAGO — The army cordoned off 10 blocks of mid-town Santiago today as it pressed a search for illegal arms and for supporters of the late President Salvador Allende.

Chief target in the area appeared to be a large block of apartments, many assigned to officials in the Allende regime.

A number of foreigners also lived there.

Along with the campaign to "exterminate Marxism," the junta is trying to reorganize the economy to curb inflation that in 12 months reached nearly 325 per cent.

Shops have begun to sell essential items at prices set by the government.

Junta member Gen. Gustavo Leigh said "the doors will be opened to foreign capital seeking a place in Chile."

Foreign investors would be guaranteed against expropriation, he said, but indicated there would be no rollback of Allende's nationalization of the copper mines and other major United States investments.

The junta, in denying a report by an American couple, said that it had not executed "even one person" in the national stadium where thousands rounded up in the hunt

U.S. Sets Hike In Gas Prices

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon told the Cost of Living Council today to act this week to increase the retail price of gasoline.

Acting as some service stations closed down to protest pricing policies, the president got assurances from Cost of Living Council Director John Dunlop that the panel would try to speed up action on the issue.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said the council had already concluded that an increase in retail gasoline prices was needed and had been following a timetable that would have placed the increase into effect Oct. 2.

Thousands of gas stations have been closed for the last three days in California and about 75 per cent of the stations in Indianapolis closed today.

In Bremerton, Wash., a spokesman for Olympic Peninsula gasoline dealers said a continuing protest closure was 98 per cent effective Sunday despite reports of oil company efforts to maintain supplies for consumers.

Tom Logudice, chairman of the Olympia Peninsula gasoline dealers group, said only eight stations between Purdy and Poulsbo — a 65-mile stretch — were open. He said about 175 stations were closed.

But, he said, his group was trying to confirm reports that two major oil companies, Standard and Union Oil, were offering dealers unlimited quantities of gasoline if they remained open.

Half-Way Houses Stressed

OTTAWA (UPI) — A special task force urged the government in a report, made public today, to assist in development of more half way houses across Canada as an alternative to prisons.

The task force, headed by W. R. Outerbridge, of the University of Ottawa's criminology department, was formed in 1972 by solicitor-general's department.

Its 85-page report identified 156 community-based residential centers in existence across Canada in 1972. While all accepted released prison inmates, only 52 were half-way houses in the traditional sense.

The report said the centres appeared to represent "an alternative to correctional forms of incarceration whose potential has only begun to be realized."

While stressing that the centres had risen as a response to "perceived need," the report said they survived "in the face of considerable difficulty."

Chrysler Lines Rolling

DETROIT (UPI) — The assembly lines at Chrysler Corp. plants in Canada and the U.S. began to roll again today as the shortest national rail strike in the history of the United Auto Workers came to an end.

The nine-day strike against the smallest of the "big three" automakers officially ended Sunday when the UAW announced that its rank-and-file membership overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract.

With 38 out of 42 Chrysler production and maintenance locals counted, the vote was 103,907 in favor of the new pact and 16,260 opposed.

First Bomb Death

Times News Services

LONDON — A British army explosives expert died Sunday in a Birmingham hospital from injuries suffered a week ago when a bomb exploded while he was attempting to defuse it.

It was the first fatality as a result of the wave of terrorist attacks in England since Aug. 18. At least 30 people have been injured by bombs, letter bombs and incendiaries. Scotland Yard blames the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing.

The dead officer was Capt. Ronald Wilkinson, who underwent a five-hour operation after the explosion Sept. 17 in the Edgbaston district of Birmingham.

In Northern Ireland, a bomb blast shattered a pub Sunday night in a small town south of Belfast. Detectives questioned two young women captured in a gun battle between an army patrol and a squad of militants in the capital.

A police spokesman said the bomb badly damaged the White Horse Inn in Ballynahinch. He said there were no injuries because the pub was evacuated in time after a man telephoned a warning.

Lights Go Out

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) — The threat of an electric power shortage in the Pacific Northwest is so strong that Oregon Gov. Tom McCall Sunday ordered all outdoor lighting not needed for security purposes to be turned off starting tonight. Western governors were also told at their annual conference that plans for mandatory cuts in electric usage of up to 25 per cent should be ready by Nov. 1.

Eighth on List

NAIROBI (CP) — Canadian foreign aid this year will be eighth in the list of 16 countries providing the bulk of development assistance and will still be eighth by 1976, say figures provided today by the World Bank.

Women to Protest

EDMONTON (CP) — A series of demonstrations will be held across Canada Oct. 22 to support women facing eviction from Indian reserves, Jenny Margetts of Edmonton, co-chairman of a local women's rights group, said Sunday.

Girl Vanishes

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Detectives are investigating the disappearance from a luxury liner on the high seas of an attractive 19-year-old girl stowaway. Michele Kirkwood from South Africa. She vanished on the Rotherwick Castle between Capetown and Southampton. Police are holding a 17-year-old engineroom crew member for questioning.

MORE UFO SIGHTINGS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — An unidentified flying object blinked its spotlights twice Sunday night, then disappeared into the darkness with a whirring noise, according to Shelby County sheriff's deputy P. L. Pilalas.

"If I was a drinker," the deputy said, shaking his head, "I could understand it, but I'm not."

At least three other UFO sightings were reported in the Memphis area late Sunday night and early today.

Skylab Clean-Up Begins

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The Skylab 2 astronauts performed clean-up chores in their space station today to prepare for Tuesday's end of their record 59½-day orbital journey.

Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma planned to spend all of their last full day in space tidying the craft for the eight-week visit by the Skylab 3 crew starting Nov. 11.

Included is the transfer of film, tapes and equipment from the space laboratory into the Apollo ferry ship and the shutting down of systems not needed during the nearly seven weeks the station will be unmanned.

Meanwhile, a top Russian space official said Sunday the Soviet Union will attempt a soft landing of an unmanned spacecraft on Mars next March.

Roald Sagdeyev, director of the Space Research Institute, said at least one of four unmanned spacecraft now speeding toward the red planet will make the attempt.

Viet Flare-Ups

SAIGON (UPI) — The Indochina war flared into fierce combat on all three fronts today. A South Vietnamese ranger station was believed overrun, and new fighting broke out in Laos and Cambodia.

A battalion of between 300 and 400 South Vietnamese rangers, former Montagnard mercenaries for the U.S. Green Berets, lost radio contact with headquarters while under heavy Communist assault, military spokesmen said.

In Laos, North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops attacked at least three government positions in the first reported violations of the Laotian truce signed 10 days ago. The defence ministry spokesmen said the Communists attacked the hill-top headquarters of Maj. Gen. Vang Pao, whose private army has long been financed, trained and paid by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and another base nearby.

About 400 other pro-Communist troops overran a government outpost only eight miles southeast of Luang Prabang, the royal capital 180 miles northwest of Vientiane.

In Cambodia, insurgent gunners ambushed a supply convoy on the Mekong River, setting afire one of three freighters. The other eight ships in the convoy steamed through the ambush unharmed, shipping sources in Phnom Penh said.

True Peace: Kissinger

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the United States "seeks true peace, not simply an armistice," and called upon all members of the United Nations to abandon their bickering and join in a co-operative effort for a more harmonious world.

Kissinger made his maiden address to the U.N. General Assembly almost exactly 48 hours after being sworn into office.

His speech was a broad philosophical outline of "the spirit of U.S. foreign policy" in which he pledged U.S. efforts and influence in settling such regional issues as the Middle East and Southeast Asia, but he made no specific pledges beyond promising that the United States would not abandon its traditional allies in carrying out its policy of detente with the Soviet Union and China.

He acknowledged that the U.S. people and government "have sometimes been disappointed because this organization has not been more successful in translating the hopes for universal peace of its architects into concrete accomplishments."

Hunt Fingers Colson 'Plot'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt testified today that the White House, trying to win the Catholic vote for President Nixon in 1972, tried to prove falsely that the Kennedy administration had plotted the 1963 assassination of South Vietnamese President Diem.

Hunt, first witness as the Senate Watergate hearings resumed after a seven-week recess, said he had been "directed" by Charles Colson, then a special counsel to Nixon, to concoct phony state department cables to implicate Kennedy in the deaths of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu and then leak them to reporters.

"I believe it was desired by Mr. Colson, or at least some of his colleagues, to establish that a Catholic U.S. administration had conspired in the assassination of a Catholic chief of state of another country," Hunt testified.

The implication was that Catholic voters would vote for Nixon when they learned that Kennedy, a Democrat, had been implicated in the assassination.

Hunt, one of the original Watergate Seven who pleaded guilty in January to conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters here last June said he believed he had been acting as a secret government agent when he broke into the Democrat offices and when he participated in the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

He said in the aftermath he felt "crushed by the failure of my government to protect me and my family, as in the past it has always done for clandestine agents."

As part of his clandestine work, Hunt said, Colson asked him to review secret government communications in the weeks leading up to the 1963 coup in which Diem and Nhu were killed.

He said he found gaps in the records but nonetheless felt there was "every reason to believe . . . that the Kennedy administration was implicitly if not explicitly responsible" for their deaths.

Italian Cholera Arrests

NAPLES (UPI) — Authorities fighting a lingering cholera outbreak arrested four owners of food packaging plants today on charges of polluting public lands and waters with noxious wastes.

The arrests came as health officials resumed a second round of anti-cholera vaccinations in the province which recorded 15 of Italy's 23 cholera deaths since last month.

In the city of Naples, street vendors crowded into the most densely-populated areas to sell fruit and vegetables, ignoring a ban on such sales.

Residents of the areas around the port of Naples filed protests today about an infestation of large rats in their sewers. Elsewhere in the city there were complaints of sand in the drinking water.

PERON VICTORY CELEBRATED

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Thousands of Argentinians danced, sang and shouted in the streets of Buenos Aires early today, celebrating the election of 77-year-old Gen. Juan Peron to the presidency from which the military ousted him 18 years ago.

Unofficial returns from Sunday's election gave Peron 7,286,034 votes, or 61.68 per cent in 54,777 of the country's 55,475 election districts.

Ricardo Balbin of the Radical Civic Union ran second with 2,887,587, or 24.44 per cent; Francisco Manrique had 1,440,049, or 12.19 per cent; and Juan Carlos Coral of the Socialist Workers' party had 187,002, or 1.58 per cent.

The outcome had never been in doubt; the only question was how big the winning margin would be.

Peron's third wife, Isabel Martinez ran with him. When she takes office with her husband Oct. 12, she will become the Western hemisphere's first woman vice-president. Because of Peron's age and uncertain health, she might succeed him as president.

The Day of the Movers —Life's Darkest Hour

Being some items selected from a man's personal diary:

★ ★ ★

Item: The movers here today to give their estimate on hauling our stuff to the new digs and I know of no more humiliating domestic experience.

You may go on for years contentedly thinking that you have some pretty nice things or, at least, that you're reasonably comfortable, but the moment that an outside, appraising eye lights upon your dearest possessions they become just so much junk.

The mover seems a nice enough man, but when he says "Does this go?" indicating that it might be smarter if it stayed or got burned with the rest of the thrown-out rubbish, some terrible doubts may come to your mind.

Suddenly you see the sag that's been there, unnoticed, in the chesterfield and the worn patches in the rugs and the generally seedy appearance of everything that, only yesterday, was loved. It's all you can do not to apologize to the chap for asking him to dirty his hands by touching it.

It's a particularly hard time for a woman who, anticipating a new home as a fresh start, already visualizing it in her mind's eye, sees through a stranger's eye what she'll have to begin with and realizes, cringing, that it isn't very much.

Item: Reading this night a profound article by the Swedish poet, Tomas Lofstrom, and I found myself in a deep depression because there is not one of his judgments on the world's condition that is not terribly true.

Lofstrom writes this:

"Like children tampering with the mechanism of a parlor clock with their grubby fingers, or like amateur surgeons, we have opened the body and soul of the earth and are conducting experiments on its heart.

"Today's forests are planted on cultivated fields. Today shrubs and brush are destroyed by poisonous chemicals. Today forests are being chopped down in Sweden, Canada and Siberia. Today erosion is rampant, life-giving plants are being murdered, ground water is drying up, fields are turning into wild steppes, steppes into sand dunes, sand dunes into deserts. The jungles of Vietnam have been turned into a sterile moonscape. This is only a fraction of the total devastation of living organisms.

"Today merchant vessels sail from industrial ports carrying hundreds of thousands of tons of unknown poisonous chemicals, wastes of synthetic products, oil and radioactive substances. They are buried in an ocean grave, but one, three, 10 or 50 years hence, they will return to our tables in the cyclic process.

"Today seaweed is perishing in the seas, fish are dying out. Dead birds fall to the ground, killed by the poisonous clouds that hang above the large cities and industrial centres. The populations of Tokyo and Los Angeles, of New York and London, of the Ruhr Basin and Katowice live in an eternal fog. Today, the number of units producing poison increases endlessly (machines, heating plants, factories, vehicles) and the number of poisons continues to increase.

"Today people are moving from the country to the cities where they find employment. The developing countries of the Third World are compelled to welcome industries that are harmful to the environment because industry means economic progress, at least in the short run.

"Today most of the Earth's people go hungry. The natural resources are being exhausted and wells are drying out. It is possible to predict with fairly reliable accuracy when the supplies of oil, natural gas, coal and uranium for nuclear power plants will run out. This can occur in the late 1980's or perhaps even at the end of the present decade.

"We are already living with radioactive substances in our bones and this pertains not only to those who were born in Hiroshima. Our internal organs are wasting away. Sulphuric acid falls in raindrops on our heads in the spring and autumn and during the winter blizzards.

"This is the situation today. Tomorrow is not far away."

Item: Yet another note today from a hitch-hiker, this now being the 15th, and it's interesting how this came about.

Seems a certain senior civil servant ran off some copies of the notes in which we described the Polish system of hitch-hiking. (For about two dollars any Pole over the age of 17 may buy a card which identifies him, provides insurance for the driver who may pick him up, and rewards the driver with prizes in periodic draws.)

Along with the item outlining this fine idea the civil servant includes a letter addressed to the hitch-hiker, urging him to write his own ideas about the Polish plan or any other aspect of the subject. The letter, handed to hitch-hikers, says, "Your fare for this trip, if you care to accept the responsibility, would be to discuss this idea with another hitch-hiker . . . a note on the back of this sheet might prove fertile." And a stamped addressed envelope is given.

The hitch-hikers agree unanimously, two of them being university students with no other way to reach the campus, that the Polish idea is a good one and that motorists would be more inclined to stop if they knew they were protected in the case of an accident.

But half or more of them take the jaundiced view that fewer than one in a hundred drivers, even if they are alone in big cars, are willing to give a thumber a lift and that no inducements will make much difference. And I guess they ought to know.

Beach Giant Sewer

Oak Bay council is being bit heavily with letters from residents who claim the extension of the breakwater at Oak Bay Marina and a spur from Mary Tod Island is turning the beach into "a giant sewer."

The letters will be dealt with at tonight's council meeting.

One resident said the beach from the marina to Glenlyon School is in an "abominable and filthy condition," adding that the stench is repugnant and that the beach will become a giant sewer unless the breakwater is removed.

Residents complain that the cutback of tidal action in the bay by the breakwater extension has taken away the cleansing action and the beach's muddy surface is now covered with a filthy, sewage-like slime.

"Now the whole bay is dead," says another resident.

"The health people should be called in to investigate," says Dr. W. T. Westwood of the Rudyard Kipling on Beach. "The sludge over the sand is just like sewage."

"Any time you interfere with nature," says another resident, "something's bound to happen. The muck and stuff is pretty terrible."

Mayor Frances Elford promises:

"We must find out what is causing this and what can be done about it."

She concedes the beach has deteriorated. Instead of sand it now has a "kind of scum over a muddy bottom."

"Those who are objecting claim it is caused by the extension of the breakwater and the spur built last spring from Mary Tod Island. However, the federal government did extensive studies on a hydrographic model for about two years to determine the possible effects of the breakwater."

Agreeing that there appears to be a lack of current in that part of the bay, Elford says the whole matter will be investigated from a technical point of view.

Residents near the marina are also complaining that the marina complex has depreciated their properties.

"Disgust, despair and anger," says one resident, is felt by those who live near the marina because of the noise and traffic.

"To live on the waterfront has become a nightmare," she writes.

Blaming the "quarries" that have been built (the breakwater and the Mary Tod Island spur, she adds:

"It's deplorable to see the Oak Bay Marina complex growing like a cancer."

Test Turnout Startling

Five times as many people wrote the first set of provincial high school equivalency tests at Camosun College over the weekend than anywhere else in British Columbia.

A total of 310 registered to write the five tests and all but about a dozen showed up Friday and Saturday, Graham Holland, Camosun counsellor in charge of the tests, said today.

At eight other community colleges in the province where the tests were offered, the turnout ranged from nine at New Caledonia College in Prince George to 62 at Douglas College in New Westminster.

Provincial director of examinations Harry Chalmers called the Camosun turnout startling.

"It's an anomaly of some kind going on," said Chalmers.

Finding the reason for the high turnout in Victoria will require some investigation, he added.

The tests, never before offered in the province, give people who never finished high school a chance to earn a high school equivalency certificate.

Chalmers said there is already a list of 50 people in Victoria anxious to take the tests the next time they are offered.

Next scheduled testing was to be in December, but the demand may prompt the education department to offer the tests at a special session this fall, he said.

People who write the five multiple choice tests must be over 19, out of school at least a year and a B.C. resident at least six months.

The group who wrote the tests at Camosun ranged in age from 20 to 59, with people in their 20s represented more than any other age group.

Turnout at other testing centres was: 11 at Okanagan College, 33 at Vancouver City College, 33 at Malaspina College, 30 at Selkirk College, 10 at Capilano College, and 22 at Cariboo College.

The tests were given two weeks ago to 83 inmates of the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster and 47 inmates of Matsqui Prison.

Results of the tests won't be sent to those who wrote them for several weeks.

Want Ad Changes

Following the general trend to recognize equal job opportunities for both sexes, Victoria Press Ltd. will introduce a new system of "help wanted" classification headings effective Oct. 1, Hector Alexander, director of advertising and assistant general manager, announced today.

Alexander said the present categories of male help wanted, male or female help wanted and female help wanted will be replaced by one overall classification: help wanted—general.

Other headings under job opportunities will be: office help, skilled trades, sales persons and agents, teachers, part-time-temporary help, and situations wanted.

The two Victoria daily newspapers will not have the same number of classifications as the Vancouver Sun, which has also changed its job ads. structure, as Victoria has a much smaller employment market.

But Alexander said if experience dictates that more categories are needed, these will be added in due course.

Noting that newspapers in Ontario, Alberta and Manitoba already have advertising recognizing equal opportunity, Alexander said: "It's the coming thing and we're trying to get ahead of it."

Jitters Raise Rents

By WAYNE HARDING

Times Staff

Landlords' feelings of insecurity about the economy and the law are creating sharp rent increases throughout Greater Victoria, welfare and industry spokesman said today.

John Woods, director of the Landlord and Tenants Advisory Bureau, said:

"I think there is a general feeling of insecurity among landlords which may account for it. It may be partly inflation and may be partly the hint there will be rent control —although the government has denied there will be."

In the past, rents on apartments would rise by "$2 or perhaps $3.50 a month," Woods recalls, "but we hear of some that are $25 a month."

Wes Dickie, president of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association, confirms "there is a feeling of insecurity" but adds the association does not keep track of rental increases.

Not knowing what is going to happen to the Landlord and Tenant Act, which has been referred by the provincial government to the Law Reform Commission for major revision, is one of the sources of the insecurity, Dickie says.

He adds that it is reflected in the availability of financing to landlords.

Jim Nelson, director of Victoria Rental Aid, reports a major increase in the number of people calling his agency to say their rents have been raised.

Act Violations Claimed

Rent increases reported to his agency have been between $20 and $60 a month for houses and $5 and $20 a month for apartments.

He charges many landlords are violating the one-year control on rents and in some cases, raise rents every time a tenant vacates a premises.

The sharp rental increases are adding to the general shortage of housing for poor people, Nelson claims.

Woods said a number of persons who have phoned the municipally-supported Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau indicate they cannot afford the rent increases and "will have to move one."

Among the hardest hit are senior citizens whose fixed incomes — even with the $200 minimum old age pension — cannot pay the increases.

"You can get a room for $60 or $70 a month if your income is $200," says Brigadier V. C. Underhill of the Salvation Army welfare department. "But some people really should have small apartments and they can't afford them."

He notes, however, "the lot of elderly people is generally better than it has been."

Earlier this month a spokesman for the Victoria Silver Threads Centre reported the organization knows of a number of cases of rent increases on accommodation for old people.

"But very often these people are frightened they will lost their place and they won't complain," she said.

Lorner Nicholson, provincial minister responsible for housing, was not available to comment on the situation.

Case Hasn't Missed Boat

A Victoria architectural firm will have its bid on a new ferry design contract considered by the provincial government, the firm's president said today.

John Case, of Case Existological Laboratories, said he had a "very good" meeting this morning with Transport Minister Robert Strachan and the minister promised to consider his offer.

The naval architect criticized the government Saturday because he thought the design contract had already been given to a Seattle firm, Spaulding and Nickum.

"He (Strachan) said he would consider our proposal," Case said, adding that the minister made it clear that he "had absolutely not committed himself" to the Seattle firm.

Case said a Canadian team could design the ferries and would be able to meet the 1975 delivery date.

He said the purpose of his meeting with Strachan was to promote a Canadian contract hopefully for his own company, but above all Canadian.

The architect emphasized that a Canadian company would have the technology to design the ferries and that his own company could meet the deadline.

The charge that Canadian firms are more expensive is unjust, Case said, because the architectural fees are set by the B.C. Association of Professional Engineers.

"We are bound to that fee," he said.

Case said he also recommended to Strachan that a technical advisory and planning committee be set up immediately to operate separately from the existing ferry authority to look into the mismanagement of the ferries.

The committee would "overcome poor and no planning" within the service, he said, advise on new ferries under consideration and monitor safety on all B.C. ferries.

Case said he talked to the minister "on a number of urgent matters needing instant consideration" but would not disclose what those matters were.

FIRST FULL-TIME legal aid office was opened in Victoria today at 69 Bastion Square and handled a dozen inquiries before noon. It is staffed full-time by lawyer Keith Hamilton and secretary Joanne Fox. Funded by federal and provincial governments, purpose of the Legal Aid Society of B.C. office is to provide assistance to people financially incapable of retaining their own lawyer. A "flexible" means test is involved.

Ask The Times

Q. We took our family to see the Calgary Stampede this summer for the first time and thoroughly enjoyed it. It was our first experience of rodeos. Is it the largest rodeo in the world and how did rodeos start? P.M.

A. The Calgary Stampede is the largest rodeo in the world. The record attendance for one day was set on July 14, 1962 — 124,463 people. Earliest references to the sport of rodeos are from Sante Fe, New Mexico, as far back as 1847. Steer wrestling first came in with Bill Pickett of Oklahoma in 1903. Rodeos first came into being, of course, in the early days of the North American cattle industry.

'Spirit of Algiers' Spells Trouble For Affluent World

By JIM HOAGLAND

ALGIERS — Coming soon from those Third World folks who are bringing you the energy crisis; the sugar shortage, the copper crunch and other hair-raising commodity confrontations.

That might have been the slogan to emerge if Madison Avenue had had a hand, in packaging the most important message to emerge from the fourth non-aligned summit conference in Algiers this month.

The mood of the non-aligned after Algiers is of economic militancy. It stands in sharp contrast to the pious politics of neutralism that was the focus of this third world grouping in the last decade and, although few specific steps were taken at the Algiers conference, it could spell new trouble for consumers and investors of the western world.

The spirit of Algiers, as some are optimistically calling this new mood, is marked by growing distrust of foreign investors and multinational corporations, increased confidence in the third world's bargaining power because of the sharp upturn in petroleum and other commodity prices this year, and a distinct lessening of commitment to purely political ideology.

A New Mood

It was the biggest gathering ever of the 76 nations of Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe that have formally declared their independence of the big power blocs. It was also the first non-aligned summit since detente between those powers had become a reality.

No new definition of political non-alignment in the era of detente emerged, despite energetic prodding from the host Algerian delegation, Libya's Col. Muammar Qaddafi, and a few other leaders. But the new mood of the poor of the southern hemisphere confronting the rich of the north could, over the coming decade, transform itself into a definition, if the members of the non-aligned take a serious view of the new unwieldy group.

That remains a gigantic if, as the degeneration of the conference's public sessions into pointless repetition of the same outmoded rhetoric by nearly all of the leaders there demonstrated.

The Algerian plan to sidestep this broke down because of the Afghan factor. In the middle of the third day—after the most important Arab leaders and the traditional hierarchy of the non-aligned that includes Yugoslavia and India had given their talks—the conference steering committee decided to limit the remainder of the hall-emptying formal speeches to one representative per continent and get on with serious debate.

The man from Afghanistan was on his feet immediately, protesting that the viewpoint of the new democratic government there (installed by military coup in July) had yet to be heard. The conference secretary-general gloomily predicted that if Afghanistan could not give up its turn, neither would any one else. Twenty-four hours later the speeches were still going on.

Moreover, the strength of the 76 nations that make up the non-aligned group continues to lie more in word than in fact. The leaders who assembled here may represent the majority of mankind, as they repeatedly said, but the fact remains that the majority of that majority is still sunk in poverty, misery and ignorance.

To build a true independence, it is necessary to eliminate foreign domination and to take in hand the national resources and to exploit them for the benefit of the people, states the political declaration that the conference approved.

The tone and substance of the Algiers declarations were significantly different from those of the Lusaka summit of 1970, where the little attention paid to common economic strategy centred on getting more aid from abroad.

The net flow of financial transfers from developed to developing countries should correspond, by 1972, to a minimum of one per cent of the gross national product of each developed country, three-quarters of which should be from official sources, the Lusaka declaration wistfully pleaded.

This year aid was scarcely mentioned in the conference's final documents. If detente was a shaping factor of the mood at Algiers this year, so was the growing disinterest of the United States and the Soviet Union in continuing large foreign aid programs. That message was received loud and clear in Algiers, even if little was publicly said about it.

Different from Lusaka, the Algiers declarations bear even less resemblance to the tidy, oralistic principles that established the non-aligned grouping in Belgrade in 1961, in a meeting held one month after the Berlin Wall went up.

Seeks New Role

Many of those principles, enunciated by a fairly cohesive group of 25 countries presided over by Tito, Nehru, Nasser and Sukarno, have been overtaken by the momentous change in the world order of the past three years.

The Belgrade meeting deliberately did not set binding membership qualifications nor establish any permanent committees for the group.

At the Belgrade meeting members were asked to commit themselves to elimination of colonialism, imperialism and neo-colonialism in all their manifestations, and to support peaceful co-existence as the only basis of all international relations.

With the heady initial days of liberation from colonial rule having passed and the big powers striking out on the road of peaceful co-existence and disarmament without the help of the non-aligned, the movement is clearly casting about for a new political role.

Allowing the non-aligned movement to define itself as it goes along has, as colonel Qaddafi forcefully pointed out this year, created a pseudonymous grouping of countries, few of which could truly be classified as non-aligned politically. The majority of the countries represented here were ex-colonial territories that have either kept tight relations with their former metropoles or, in angry reaction, have become clients of Communist powers.

'Dignity'

Thus, the two qualifications most usually cited by students of non-alignment — that member states should not belong to military alliances with the big powers, and should not have foreign bases on their territory—have never been officially prescribed by the movement, and have in fact been blithely ignored in the name of third world solidarity.

Algerian President Houari Boumediene probably defined the current common denominator of the grouping when he spoke of the non-aligned members searching for dignity, which is a meaningful word for all the peoples who have been dominated and oppressed.

This definition breaks the world down along racial and poor vs. rich lines much more sharply than does the communism-capitalism split of the cold war.

Siting the conference in Algiers contributed significantly to the new militancy. With its political independence achieved, Algeria is turning its attention to an ambitious economic development program being built around its petroleum industry. The Algerians suggested that their policies should become the model for the third world.

The more serious leaders here kept focusing on the economic balance sheet for the developing world, which turned upward sharply this year as booming industrialized countries scrambled for raw materials from the third world producers.

Clearly, the most visionary leaders here hope that they see the beginning of a long-term pattern in the energy crisis: that of the developed world depleting its own natural resources and having to turn to developing countries for commodity supplies that the producers, in a united front, will be able to charge ever spiraling prices for.

Ghana's cocoa, Peru's copper and Malaysia's rubber are all bringing twice as much in world markets this year. The commodity prices indicator established by The Economist magazine of London shows an overall 89 per cent increase. Developing countries that trade with the world's richest nations are piling up foreign reserves at twice the rate of the industrialized countries and may end up with an unprecedented surplus on balance of payments.

Much of this financial increase is narrowly concentrated on the oil-producing states of north Africa and the Middle East, which should take in $15 billion this year. But Arab leaders here argued to the producers of minerals and other commodities that they must copy the pattern of banding together and bargaining ruthlessly, as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has.

The conference economic declaration picked up on this advice, stating that the oil tactics reflect the power and the efficiency of an organized and concerted action of the producing and exporting countries.

Copied West

If the message sank in deeply enough in Algiers, this could affect development strategy in a number of countries that have tried to copy the western world and Russia by industrializing, often with disappointing results. They may now find it more useful to expand commodity production — if they are prepared to ride out the sudden market fluctuations, which have killed such booms in the past.

But it remains to be seen if most developing countries can afford to risk foregoing immediate revenue in a confrontation with consuming nations, the sparsely populated Arab oil producers can.

Another weakness in expanding economic coordination in the third world is the relative incompatibility of most developing economies. Ethiopia cannot import Uganda's copper, since it cannot process it, and Uganda does not want Ethiopia's coffee, since Uganda also exports the crop.

Qaddafi underscored the lack of general economic linkage of the third world by proudly declaring at the meeting that "my country has raised the price of petroleum several times since the revolution." Most of the countries at the meeting are oil importers and eventually will have to cough up more money for petroleum because of Qaddafi's actions.

Another important edge of the new economic program adopted at Algiers was the conference's specific promise of support for countries that nationalize their natural resources and also set their own levels of compensation for the nationalized properties.

The summit declaration called for joint action against multi-national corporations that pose a threat to developing countries. A centre for the study of the 500 leading international firms is to be set up.

Because of its loose structure, there is a considerable time lag between the planting and blooming of ideals and trends in the formal non-aligned world.

The economic program adopted here is remarkably similar to the plan that Tanzania tried, and failed, to get discussed at the Lusaka summit in 1970. After another three years, when the leaders are to gather in Colombo, Ceylon, for their next summit, the economic ideas may have made more headway than one would have guessed in the organizational chaos of the Algiers conference.

It is not inconceivable, in fact, that Liberia's relationship with Firestone, or Saudi Arabia's with Exxon, may be as controversial in Colombo as Cuba's ties to the Soviet Union and Malta's harboring of NATO bases was in Algiers.

Price Too High For Progress?

By ALVIN SHUSTER

STOCKHOLM — The cliche about Sweden is that she has the world's highest standard of living, income levels almost as high as the U.S., an unparalleled system of social-welfare benefits and pretty girls. The unanswered question is whether the Swedes are happy.

This month's election, which left Premier Olof Palme and his Social Democrats on a precarious perch but still in power, suggested a large measure of discontent. There is applause for the record of the Social Democrats in four decades in power, but also rising disquiet.

Those who voted against the durable Social Democrats were not saying: "What have you done for me lately?" They seem to be saying, among other things: "What you've done has come at too high a price."

★ ★ ★

Fewer voted for Palme's party, wiping out the 10-seat parliamentary advantage it enjoyed with its allies, the Communists. The non-socialist coalition of three parties — the "bourgeois" group — gained ground and ended with the same number of seats as the socialists — 175 for each group in the 350-member Parliament.

The 46-year-old premier, who has a way to go before he achieves anything resembling the father-figure image of his predecessor, Tage Erlander, did not lose the reins of power in the deadheat election, but he did not win a mandate either. The 5.1 million votes — about 90 per cent of those eligible in the population of eight million — were split virtually down the middle.

Now the morning-after debate continues. Why, it is asked, does there appear to be declining public support for the Social Democrats, who have become accustomed to winning since 1932, when they came to power and proceeded to transform Sweden.

Many people take the view that the price for all the immense progress has been running too high. The tax bite is nothing less than incredible — the highest in the world, at 42 per cent of gross national income. The people, who are paying 40 per cent and more of income to the government, found themselves in agreement with opposition pleas that it should be "worthwhile to work."

The Social Democrats, to their credit, have overcome the housing shortage, for example, but people complain that they have built the wrong kind. The public wants one-family houses rather than the apartments that tower outside prosperous Stockholm.

Under the lavish system of welfare benefits, there are no fears about going broke because of illness — a patient pays about $2 a day for hospitalization — but the complaint is that medical service is too impersonal, that the doctor is likely to be different at each call or visit.

The downturn in the economy two years ago — since partly remedied — has also given many people the uneasy feeling that the Social Democrats may no longer know all the answers. Inflation is running at about six or seven per cent a year — low for most European countries — but unemployment, at rate of more than three per cent, is unusual here and is causing concern even among those working.

Moreover, there is a sense that perhaps Sweden has become overly organized and overly directed and overly bureaucratic despite the benefits that flow from the machine. One appeal that struck home during the month-long campaign was the nostalgic references to the countryside, the days before intense industrialization, when life was simple and carefree and a man enjoyed his work.

Most experts seem in agreement that the success of the former agrarian party, now the Centre party — the big gainer in the non-socialist group — stemmed not only from its hammering at high taxes but also because its leader, Tordjohn Falldin, was a pipe-smoking sheep farmer with big hands who evoked images of green fields and tall trees.

This may seem difficult to grasp, but in a country as highly industrialized as Sweden, it strikes chords among those who find their work boring even if they are enveloped in a blanket of security from cradle to grave.

Heart Attack Country

Finland Area Rate High Despite Physical Work

By LAWRENCE K. ALTMAN

JOENSUU, Finland—Tens of thousands of Finns have begun to change their diets and life-styles in a community-wide experiment to soften the deadly impact of arteriosclerosis in the area with the world's highest incidence of heart attacks.

The five-year experiment, which involves 186,000 Finns living in North Karelia, along the Russian border, will seek evidence that many of the heart attacks caused by arteriosclerosis can be prevented. The experiment aims also at determining just how far people accustomed to a tasty diet unusually high in fat content will go to increase chances of longevity.

Because heart disease is the leading killer in most Western countries, results of the experiment are expected to be as important to Americans as to Finns. For that reason, many American doctors have come here to see the project sponsored by the World Health Organization and Finnish government.

In the past, doctors have advised individual heart attack patients to stop smoking and eat less fat.

However, doctors have not actively intervened with intense public education and medical examination and have not monitored the effect of life-style changes in a community as they are doing here.

Studies have documented that the heart attack incidence in North Karelia is twice that elsewhere in Scandinavia. Each year heart attacks strike 9.3 per 1,000 North Karelian males aged 20 to 64 ccompared with 5.3 in Helsinki and about one in Sofia, Bulgaria, where the rate is considered the world's lowest.

Ilomantsi, with 14.9, has the highest rate in North Karelia. Even towns with the lowest rates are higher than Helsinki's. Rates for female heart attacks, though higher, do not show as dramatic a rise.

The specific reasons for such large geographic and sex differences are not known.

"It's very dangerous to be a man in North Karelia—we have many beautiful young widows," Dr. Harry Mustaniemi, a cardiologist here said.

Mustaniemi recalled the cases of a father and his 8-year-old daughter who complained of chest pains the same day. The father survived. The girl died of a heart attack.

The fact that North Karelia has the highest incidence of heart attacks is a paradox.

Heart attacks have come to be considered a disease of stress in industrialized urban societies. Typically, they are thought of as striking overweight people who seldom exercise, sit behind desks at work and drive home to watch television.

But North Karelia is a serene lakeland, forested with fire and pines. Farming and lumbering are the bases of the economy.

Hard physical work is the way of life.

Yet heart attacks fell robust Finnish lumberjacks like timber.

Doctors have identified several risk factors that are associated with a greater chance of suffering a heart attack. North Karelian health leaders have concentrated on just the three they consider the most important and easily measurable—cigarette smoking, increased cholesterol blood levels and high blood pressure.

Dr. Pekka Puska, principal investigator for the North Karelia project, said in his University of Kuopio office:

"We're working on the hypothesis that it is the environment—chiefly the diet and smoking."

The predominant weight of scientific evidence points to the North Karelian diet, which is high in dairy fats and contains few vegetables, as the primary risk factor for the rising number of heart attacks.

North Karelians rely on dairy products with highly saturated fats as a basis for cooking other foods. North Karelian housewives use butter to bake fish and a pastry called piirakka. Lumberjacks customarily take along for lunch a food that contains herring and globs of fat rolled in black rye bread.

In co-operation with local dairies and health officials, many North Karelians have started to drink milk that contains much less fat yet tastes as delicious. Doctors are also encouraging North Karelians to eat more vegetables and less butter.

OVERTIME DISPUTE CAUSES SERVICE DELAYS

B.C. Telephone advises its customers that some installation and repair services are being temporarily curtailed due to an unprecedented demand for service and a continuing ban on overtime work by the Federation of Telephone Workers.

Although B.C. Tel has increased its outside work force by more than 300 employees so far this year, the union's actions have hindered our efforts to meet customer demands.

Every effort is being made to return service to normal as quickly as possible.

In the meantime, the company must give priority to installations of new residential and business telephones, transfer of telephones for people who are moving and out-of-service repairs.

Services such as installation of extension telephones, changes in party line status, relocation of telephones and addition of optional equipment are being reduced to a minimum for the time being.

B.C. Tel greatly regrets the inconvenience caused its customers and asks for their co-operation during this difficult period.

More Import Gas

Amoco Canada Ltd. says it plans to import substantial amounts of natural gas into British Columbia in an effort to make up for some of its sharply reduced production capacity in this province.

The company, which imported 60 million cubic feet per day from the Northwest Territories, will increase this immediately to 90 million cubic feet in order to meet part of its sales commitment to Westcoast Transmission.

In addition, Amoco is speeding up work on a new well in the Northwest Territories that could push this total to 120 million cubic feet.

The company also has a Yukon well it is trying to get into production to supply British Columbia.

Ironically, while B.C. is scurrying for imports, it is exporting to the United States at the rate of 900 million cubic feet per day.

Production problems encountered by Amoco in its Beaver River gas field in northern British Columbia will result in a shortage at peak demand periods this winter.

No homes will be affected, as industry will be expected

BUMPER GIFT of 800 pounds of salmon was given to Greater Victoria Silver Threads Service members Sunday by the Victoria branch of the Pacific Trollers Association. Another 300 pounds were sent to a Kamloops children's hospital. A PTA spokesman said it is hoped to make it an annual end-of-season event with "a couple of tons" being given away in 1974. John Taylor, 96, of the Beverley Hotel at 724 Yates, was the first to receive his share. (John McKay photo.)

IMF Hits Famine First

NAIROBI — The western nations today gave the twin crises of hunger and inflation priority over world monetary reform at the first meeting of their five-day annual session.

The meeting brought together 3,500 delegates from 126 International Monetary Fund member nations — the biggest financial session in history.

It opened to the beat of African drums, the cry of Kenyan dancers and a warning from Kenyan president Jomo Kenyatta that "the world cannot continue on its present course" without disaster.

Monetary reform had been expected to take up most of the five-day meeting. But an agreement Sunday by major industrial nations to produce a reform package within 10 months settled that matter and left the forum open for other matters.

"The world cannot continue on its present course," Kenyatta told delegates in the wood-paneled Kenyatta Conference Centre Hall.

"If it does, monetary and economic situations similar to those of 40 years ago would be inevitable."

While monetary matters figured prominently in this week's discussions, he said, "a more fundamental crisis facing the international community is the economic and social development of the peoples of the Third World. The whole world is watching."

World Bank president Robert S. McNamara announced a record $22 billion budget for 1974-78 to help millions of persons in underdeveloped nations who are "degraded by disease, illiteracy, malnutrition and squalor."

As he spoke, towering Masai tribesmen, driven this year from traditional grasslands by the worst drought in recorded African history, grazed treir hungry cattle in Nairobi suburbs within view of the 32-storey conference centre.

Johannese Witteveen, the new IMF managing director, urged the non-Communist nations represented here to work together to halt the onward rush of world-wide inflation, which "could ultimately exact a price that today is only discernible."

"It should be one of our most essential tasks to bring this inflation under control," Witteveen said. He predicted that monetary reform would ease inflationary pressures, but warned that the world still might need "some form of incomes policy to act directly on prices and wages which are not determined competitively."

The original aim of the week-long IMF annual meeting was to revamp the system, which collapsed with this year's decline in the overseas value of the U.S. dollar.

Only two months ago, chances appeared bright for at least some form of agreement on monetary reform at this meeting. Finance ministers from the committee of 20 reported at the time they were near accord.

When the minister's deputies met early this month in Paris, however, they failed to close the remaining gaps, leading to pessimistic predictions about the IMF meeting.

Sunday morning, the committee of 20 met in a basement conference room in Nairobi's new Kenyatta Hall. The two-hour session produced agreement on two points — that U.S.-European differences persist on almost all aspects of reform, but the nations would pledge to resolve the conflicts within 10 months.

Conference sources said one reason the ministers agreed to the compromise was heavy criticisms at home from businessmen and the public over the slow pace of reform.

PROBE HALT SOUGHT

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Vice-President Agnew's lawyer says he will file suit this week to stop the federal investigation of Agnew's alleged involvement in a Maryland kickback scheme because of the flood of news leaks about the case.

The apparent hardening of Agnew's strategy, including formation of a defence fund, came as attention re-focused on the Senate investigation of the Watergate scandal after a seven-week recess.

Agnew attorney Judah Best said, "there have been an inordinate number of disclosures that would preclude the right to a fair trial."

Junta Hunts Arms

Times News Services

SANTIAGO — The army cordoned off 10 blocks of midtown Santiago today as it pressed a search for illegal arms and for supporters of the late President Salvador Allende.

Chief target in the area appeared to be a large block of apartments, many assigned to officials in the Allende regime.

A number of foreigners also lived there.

Along with the campaign to "exterminate Marxism," the junta is trying to reorganize the economy to curb inflation that in 12 months reached nearly 325 per cent.

Shops have begun to sell essential items at prices set by the government.

Junta member Gen. Gustavo Leigh said "The doors will be opened to foreign capital seeking a place in Chile."

Foreign investors would be guaranteed against expropriation, he said, but indicated there would be no rollback of Allende's nationalization of the copper mines and other major United States investments.

The junta, in denying a report by an American couple, said that it had not executed "even one person" in the national stadium where thousands rounded up in the hunt

U.S. Sets Hike In Gas Prices

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon told the Cost of Living Council today to act this week to increase the retail price of gasoline.

Acting as some service stations closed down to protest pricing policies, the president got assurances from Cost of Living Council Director John Dunlop that the panel would try to speed up action on the issue.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said the council had already concluded that an increase in retail gasoline prices was needed and had been following a timetable that would have placed the increase into effect Oct. 2.

Thousands of gas stations have been closed for the last three days in California and about 75 per cent of the stations in Indianapolis closed today.

In Bremerton, Wash., a spokesman for Olympic Peninsula gasoline dealers said a continuing protest closure was 98 per cent effective Sunday despite reports of oil company efforts to maintain supplies for consumers.

Tom Logudice, chairman of the Olympia Peninsula gasoline dealers group, said only eight stations between Purdy and Poulsbo — a 65-mile stretch — were open. He said about 175 stations were closed.

But, he said, his group was trying to confirm reports that two major oil companies, Standard and Union Oil, were offering dealers unlimited quantities of gasoline if they remained open.

"If I was a drinker," the deputy said, shaking his head, "I could understand it, but I'm not."

At least three other UFO sightings were reported in the Memphis area late Sunday night and early today.

Skylab Clean-Up Begins

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The Skylab 2 astronauts performed clean-up chores in their space station today to prepare for Tuesday's end of their record 59½-day orbital journey.

Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma planned to spend all of their last full day in space tidying the craft for the eight-week visit by the Skylab 3 crew starting Nov. 11.

Included is the transfer of film, tapes and equipment from the space laboratory into the Apollo ferry ship and the shutting down of systems not needed during the nearly seven weeks the station will be unmanned.

Meanwhile, a top Russian space official said Sunday the Soviet Union will attempt a soft landing of an unmanned spacecraft on Mars next March.

Roald Sagdeyev, director of the Space Research Institute, said at least one of four unmanned spacecraft now speeding toward the red planet will make the attempt.

Viet Flare-Ups

SAIGON (UPI) — The Indochina war flared into fierce combat on all three fronts today. A South Vietnamese ranger station was believed overrun, and new fighting broke out in Laos and Cambodia.

A battalion of between 300 and 400 South Vietnamese rangers, former Montagnard mercenaries for the U.S. Green Berets, lost radio contact with headquarters while under heavy Communist assault, military spokesmen said.

In Laos, North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops attacked at least three government positions in the first reported violations of the Laotian truce signed 10 days ago. The defence ministry spokesmen said the Communists attacked the hill-top headquarters of Maj. Gen. Vang Pao, whose private army has long been financed, trained and paid by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and another base nearby.

About 400 other pro-Communist troops overran a government outpost only eight miles southeast of Luang Prabang, the royal capital 180 miles northwest of Vientiane.

In Cambodia, insurgent gunners ambushed a supply convoy on the Mekong River, setting afire one of three freighters. The other eight ships in the convoy steamed through the ambush unharmed, shipping sources in Phnom Penh said.

True Peace: Kissinger

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the United States "seeks true peace, not simply an armistice," and called upon all members of the United Nations to abandon their bickering and join in a co-operative effort for a more harmonious world.

Kissinger made his maiden address to the U.N. General Assembly almost exactly 48 hours after being sworn into office.

His speech was a broad philosophical outline of "the spirit of U.S. foreign policy" in which he pledged U.S. efforts and influence in settling such regional issues as the Middle East and Southeast Asia, but he made no specific pledges beyond promising that the United States would not abandon its traditional allies in carrying out its policy of detente with the Soviet Union and China.

He acknowledged that the U.S. people and government "have sometimes been disappointed because this organization has not been more successful in translating the hopes for universal peace of its architects into concrete accomplishments."

Hunt Fingers Colson 'Plot'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt testified today that the White House, trying to win the Catholic vote for President Nixon in 1972, tried to prove falsely that the Kennedy administration had plotted the 1963 assassination of South Vietnamese President Diem.

Hunt, first witness as the Senate Watergate hearings resumed after a seven-week recess, said he had been "directed" by Charles Colson, then a special counsel to Nixon, to concoct phony state department cables to implicate Kennedy in the deaths of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Nhu and then leak them to reporters.

"I believe it was desired by Mr. Colson, or at least some of his colleagues, to establish that a Catholic U.S. administration had conspired in the assassination of a Catholic chief of state of another country," Hunt testified.

The implication was that Catholic voters would vote for Nixon when they learned that Kennedy, a Democrat, had been implicated in the assassination.

Hunt, one of the original Watergate Seven who pleaded guilty in January to conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters here last June said he believed he had been acting as a secret government agent when he broke into the Democrat offices and when he participated in the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Most Active Stocks

Prices were down in moderate trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume was 2,557,905 shares. (Earlier prices, Page 8.)

In oils, Seneca Development was unchanged at $1.03 on volume of 22,300; Pialis Pete rose one cent to .28 on 21,200 and Vargas rose .02 to .17½ on 20,500.

In the mines, Silver Standard led trading at 460,370, closing at $2.88; up .28. Copper Lake was up .06 at .59 on volume of 165,000 shares. Brendon Ltd. dropped .09 to .38 on 120,656, Pinnacle rose .02 to .19 on 70,000 shares traded, Leemac was unchanged at .40.

Italian Cholera Arrests

NAPLES (UPI) — Authorities fighting a lingering cholera outbreak arrested four owners of food packaging plants today on charges of polluting public lands and waters with noxious wastes.

The arrests came as health officials resumed a second round of anti-cholera vaccinations in the province which recorded 15 of Italy's 23 cholera deaths since last month.

In the city of Naples, street vendors crowded into the most densely-populated areas to sell fruit and vegetables, ignoring a ban on such sales.

Residents of the areas around the port of Naples filed protests today about an infestation of large rats in their sewers. Elsewhere in the city there were complaints of sand in the drinking water.

Half-Way Houses Stressed

OTTAWA (UPI) — A special task force urged the government in a report, made public today, to assist in development of more half-way houses across Canada as an alternative to prisons.

The task force, headed by W. R. Outerbridge, of the University of Ottawa's criminology department, was formed in 1972 by solicitor-general's department.

Its 85-page report identified 156 community-based residential centres in existence across Canada in 1972. While all accepted released prison inmates, only 52 were halfway houses in the traditional sense.

The report said the centres appeared to represent "an alternative to correctional forms of incarceration whose potential has only begun to be realized."

While stressing that the centres had risen as a response to "perceived need," the report said they survived "in the face of considerable difficulty."

Chrysler Lines Rolling

DETROIT (UPI) — The assembly lines at Chrysler Corp. plants in Canada and the U.S. began to roll again today as the shortest national strike in the history of the United Auto Workers came to an end.

The nine-day strike against the smallest of the "big three" automakers officially ended Sunday when the UAW announced that its rank-and-file membership overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract.

With 38 out of 42 Chrysler production and maintenance locals counted, the vote was 103,907 in favor of the new pact and 16,260 opposed.

First Bomb Death

Times News Services

LONDON — A British army explosives expert died Sunday in a Birmingham hospital from injuries suffered a week ago when a bomb exploded while he was attempting to defuse it.

It was the first fatality as a result of the wave of terrorist attacks in England since Aug. 18. At least 30 people have been injured by bombs, letter bombs and incendiaries. Scotland Yard blames the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing.

The dead officer was Capt. Ronald Wilkinson, who underwent a five-hour operation after the explosion Sept. 17 in the Edgbaston district of Birmingham.

In Northern Ireland, a bomb blast shattered a pub Sunday night in a small town south of Belfast. Detectives questioned two young women captured in a gun battle between an army patrol and a squad of militants in the capital.

A police spokesman said the bomb badly damaged the White Horse Inn in Ballynahinch. He said there were no injuries because the pub was evacuated in time after a man telephoned a warning.

PERON

PERON VICTORY CELEBRATED

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Thousands of Argentinians danced, sang and shouted in the streets of Buenos Aires early today, celebrating the election of 77-year-old Gen. Juan Peron to the presidency from which the military ousted him 18 years ago.

Unofficial returns from Sunday's election gave Peron 7,286,034 votes, or 61.68 per cent in 54,777 of the country's 55,475 election districts.

Ricardo Balbin of the Radical Civic Union ran second with 2,887,587, or 24.44 per cent; Francisco Manrique had 1,440,049, or 12.19 per cent; and Juan Carlos Coral of the Socialist Workers' party had 187,002, or 1.58 per cent.

The outcome had never been in doubt; the only question was how big the winning margin would be.

Peron's third wife, Isabel Martinez ran with him. When she takes office with her husband Oct. 12, she will become the Western hemisphere's first woman vice-president. Because of Peron's age and uncertain health, she might succeed him as president.
